COAL STRIKE CALLED; 158,000 MEN TO QUIT AT MIDNIGHT MONDAY

Status of Maintenance Workers to Be Settled Later by Parleys Now Under Way.

FINAL PEACE MOVE FAILED

Order Surprises Operators, Who Had Not Expected It Till End of Philadelphia Meetings.

Inglis Says Miners Will Lose $1,000,000 a Day—Necessary, Union Chiefs Say.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 27.—A strike of 158,000 anthracite mine workers, to become effective midnight Aug. 31, when their agreement with the operators expires, was ordered tonight by the International Union officers and the three anthracite district Presidents.

The order was mailed to 325 local unions in the hard coal fields from the Mine Workers' headquarters in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel. The question of the conditions under which the union would permit the maintenance men to continue was not settled at a meeting of the Anthracite Board of Conciliation today, and the strike order announced that supplementary instructions to cover the maintenance men would be issued as an agreement was reached with the anthracite operators. Another meeting of the Conciliation Board is scheduled for tomorrow morning.

The issuance of the suspension order came as a surprise to the anthracite operators, who were under the impression that it would be withheld until the question involving the maintenance men was settled. The mine union leaders said they felt they could hold back the formal order no longer, as it might reach the local secretaries too late to permit them to call meetings and officially advise the membership of the strike instructions.

Hope of Peace Ended.

The final hope of averting a walkout died, as dawn broke this morning, when John H. Uhl, Chairman of the Coal Region's Citizens' No Strike Committee, left the room of President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America and motored back to Wilkes-Barre, carrying Mr. Lewis's answer to the citizens' committee. The operators on Wednesday had told the citizens' committee that they were willing to resume negotiations, but on the understanding that by so doing they did not abandon their opposition to a wage increase, the check-off and other demands. When this statement was shown to Mr Lewis at an early hour this morning, after Mr. Uhl had pursued him in an automobile from Wilkes-Barre to this city, the miners' chief pointed to the following statement in his Hazleton speech Tuesday:

"I say to you, Chairman Uhl, and the members of your committee, we are always willing to meet the operators if they but concede that the negotiations are to be on a basis of fact, if they withdraw their statements on record in the conference that they will yield nothing but reject everything that tends to disturb the factor of mine costs. We want an agreement now. We would like to make an agreement to avoid a suspension on Sept. 1, but we will not make an agreement with the anthracite operators as long as they deliberately and arbitrarily set up barriers that prevent negotiations."

Mr. Lewis is not a member of the Conciliation Board, the body set up jointly by operators and mine workers to adjudicate disputes, and he did not attend today's session, where the status of the 10,000 maintenance men was discussed.

After the miner members of the Conciliation Board had reported the result of the Conciliation Board conference to Mr. Lewis and Vice President Murray it was decided to send out the strike order immediately.

Text of Strike Order.

Here is the notice:

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 27, 1925.

To the officers and members of local unions of Districts 1, 7 and 9, United Mine Workers of America.

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

The present agreement between the anthracite operators and mine workers expires Aug. 31, 1925. Your Scale Committee, charged with the responsibility of making a new contract, has been unable to arrive at any understanding as affecting wages or conditions of employment to be effective after Aug. 31, 1925. Therefore, our membership in Districts Nos. 1, 7 and 9 is advised that, no contract being in effect, a suspension of mining will automatically take place at midnight, Monday, Aug. 31, 1925.

Concerning the question of maintenance men remaining at work during the suspension, we advise that proper instructions will be issued to our membership, as an agreement covering this subject can be consummated with the representatives of the anthracite operators. Please hold yourselves in readiness to put our policy with respect to maintenance work into effect as soon as possible after receipt of its contents.

Your Scale Committee will continue

Untermyer to Return Sept. 15 To Aid New Haven Commuters

Samuel Untermyer has cabled from Wiesbaden, Germany, to a friend that he will return to New York on Sept. 15 and will be prepared to enter the fight being waged by commuters against the increased commutation fare on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, it was announced yesterday. Mr. Untermyer said he would render every assistance possible to patrons of the road.

When Corporation Counsel Charles Van Auken of New Rochelle was told of Mr. Untermyer's cable, he said: "That's fine. We have not been in touch with Mr. Untermyer on the subject, but I suppose he recognized the fact that the increase is a forerunner of increases in commutation rates all over the country."

DR. YOUNG ENDS LIFE IN HIS PRISON CELL

Los Angeles Dentist Strangles Himself With Twisted Wire From Radio Set.

DUE IN COURT FOR TRIAL

He Was Accused of Killing Wife by Gas and Burying Her Body in a Cistern.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 27.—Dr. Thomas W. Young, dentist accused of murdering his wife and burying her body in a cistern, strangled himself to death in his cell here early today.

His cell partner, trying to arouse the dentist, found him dead, with a copper radio wire twisted tightly around his neck.

Young had killed himself without an outcry, slowly strangling to death. The act was performed so silently that his cellmate, who was awake, was unaware that anything unusual was being enacted.

Jailers called Young and his cellmate, Harry S. Foster, a former policeman, at 6 o'clock. Both were due in court today for trial and a 6 o'clock call is the custom in such cases.

Foster arose from his cell bunk.

Dr. Young answered the jailer's hail, saying "I'm getting up."

About 6:45 Foster, noticing that the dentist murderer was staying quietly on his bunk with a blanket pulled up over his head, sought to arouse him but could not. He pulled the blanket back from the dentist's face and discovered that Young had tied a short length of copper radio wire to a short stick and had twisted the wire band deeply into his neck. One hand still clutched the stick.

The wire was part of a radio set installed in Dr. Young's cell at his request several days ago. It was purchased for him and taken to the jail by Attorney John S. Cooper, chief of his defense counsel. The radio had furnished entertainment nightly for the prisoners in that part of the jail in which Young's cell was situated.

Attempts of Foster, the jailer and Dr. Benjamin Blank, jail doctor, to revive Young failed.

Dr. Young's body was taken from the jail, which has been his home for the last three months, after Deputy Sheriffs had made an investigation.

Search through the doctor's effects for a will or note proved fruitless.

It seemed fairly certain that the doctor had considered suicide for several days. Several pieces of broken and twisted wire were found lying about his cell, indicating that he had made previous attempts or experiments at strangling himself.

The suicide leaves court attachés "up in the air." At least three weeks had been allotted to the Young case and no new juries have been impaneled to care for other cases. It is possible that Judge Hahn's court will be idle for several days while the regular routine is being again established.

Young, who confessed to murdering his wife weeks ago, later denied the charge and repudiated his confession. His original confession was that, following a quarrel, he strangled his wife with somnoform, a dental gas. Her body was found cemented in the bottom of a cistern in the doctor's Beverly Glen cabin.

Young had made his wife's son by a former marriage, Pat Grogan, heir to "Ripe Olive" Grogan's millions, help him put a cement floor in the cabin cistern. The boy had given help, unconsciously of the fact that he was helping to hide the murdered body of his mother.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—After forty-eight hours of fighting, the French nineteenth army corps has occupied the entire Branes country between Klfane and Msila and holds all the territory south of El Hadar River, in several places having pushed its advance guards a mile or two north of the stream.

Three caravan routes leave this area to Ajdir, Abd-el-Krim's capital, forty miles further north and all run practically straight north and south, thus being the best available lines of communication Abd-el-Krim had with the front. Also they are the best routes for the French if they wish to push north into Riffian territory.

The fight was not easy by any means and the Branes, together with Riffian regulars, opposed a stiff resistance overcome largely by tanks, which were used in every possible encounter.

Numbers of Branes are gathered in the four valleys formed by the northern confluents of El Hadar River, and it is believed the majority intend to retreat fighting if the French attack is pursued. Several tribes of the Branes family have surrendered as a result of the action and so have some of the Beni Ouriaghels, who are in this sector far from their homeland north of the Ouergha River.

Abd-el-Krim has adopted a consistent policy of thus shifting tribes from their own territory in order to make submission to the French difficult and portions of the same Beni Ouriaghels, supported by Riffian artillery, also are reported at Sheshuan in the western sector of the front.

Riffian regulars have been gathering at El Kahba plateau, south of Bab Taza, and the Leben River, at the northwest corner of the Tsoul country, where evidently they are planning a raid on the Tsoul country recently conquered by the French, with the object of interfering with lines of communications and wreaking vengeance on the families which surrendered.

French Meet Strong Resistance.

FEZ, Aug. 26.—The fiercest fighting of the whole campaign marked the attack today of the French Nineteenth Army Corps on the Branes tribe north of Taza. The French found the rebels, strongly backed by small groups of Riffian regulars, occupying an extremely well-organized system of trenches, and despite the terrific aviation and artillery bombardment they have sustained the last week, they were determined not to cede an inch. Largely through the aid of tanks, for the sirocco handicapped the aviation except in the early morning hours, the infantry gained the first day's objectives, advancing three miles over a front fifteen miles long, bivouacking tonight on the line of the former posts from Dahar to Jebel Amessef. The Riffians dropped back to other previously prepared positions, giving an early intimation they intend to keep up resistance tomorrow.

The action was especially significant as being the first time the French when advancing have encountered such serious opposition. The Riffians, accustomed to seeing the French advance only to relieve an outpost and then retire, have heretofore offered little resistance, saving themselves to fall on the French as soon as they started a retreat, at which times they have always inflicted heaviest losses.

Now that the French have shown, as in the operation against the Tshouls, they have sufficient troops to keep on

Two Army Flyers Killed in Air Collision; Thousands See Fatal Smash-Up Near Chicago

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Two army aviators were killed in sight of thousands of persons tonight when their planes crashed in attempting to make a landing at the air mail field at Maywood.

The dead are the pilot of one of the planes, Lieutenant T. P. Smith of Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., and his passenger, William L. Heptig, President of the Illinois Chapter of the National Aeronautical Society, Captain in the Reserve Corps and head of the brokerage firm of William L. Heptig & Co.

The second plane was seriously damaged, but the pilot, Lieutenant B. B. Douglas, managed to make a safe landing.

Smith's plane burst into flames and was destroyed almost as it landed.

The two planes, with a number of others, had been at Camp Grant, Rockford, where Governor's Day was celebrated by the soldiers now at the encampment. The pursuit plane piloted by Douglas was flying in front and a little above that in charge of Smith. This plane, an army DH, was the formation leader, and as such was to land first. Smith swooped down toward the landing field, but noted that a mail plane in charge of William Page was taking off. In order to miss this machine Smith "zoomed," taking a sharp upward turn.

This manoeuvre failed to clear the pursuit plane and the tail of Smith's plane cut sharply against that of Douglas.

The DH overturned. Pilot Smith made desperate efforts to regain control, but, seeing they were fruitless, took to the parachute. Hettig, with thousands of eyes on him, waited a moment longer as the machine plunged. Then he, too, leaped.

Lieutenant Smith's parachute failed to open and his body crashed to the ground. He died almost immediately. Captain Heptig also hit the ground and died at Edward Hines Hospital a short time later.

Patients of the Edward Hines Hospital, all ex-service men, witnessed the crash.

Absent-Minded Scientist Leads Britons About in Rain

LONDON, Aug. 27.—A group of distinguished scientists attending the meeting of the British Association at Southampton demonstrated at least one scientific fact today—that scientists are still absent-minded.

A large party set out by surface car on a two-mile journey in a pouring rain from one subsidiary meeting to another. Halfway there one scientist got off and walked briskly down a side street, apparently wrapped in deep thought. The rest of the party followed him.

The unconscious leader walked on for half an hour, up steep hills and across wide parkways, with the rest struggling trustfully, if wetly, behind. The leader awoke suddenly from his deep meditation on the earth's age, or some other equally profound subject, and asked a boy the way. He had walked a mile and a quarter in the wrong direction. The party arrived at their meeting an hour late and soaked to the skin.

YAWL FROM NORWAY HERE AFTER 73 DAYS

HAD BAD WEATHER A MONTH

Replenished Water Supply by Catching Rain in a Sail—Plan Return Early in September.

Three weatherbeaten middle-aged Norwegian mariners arrived at Quarantine at 3 P. M. yesterday in a forty-five-foot yawl, the Farhlannet, after being at sea seventy-three days, coming from Droennoey, Norway, to attend the Norwegian centennial celebrations which commenced last June in Minnesota.

The men were Andreas Grimsoe, the skipper; Wickstram, a coastal pilot, and Gresgend, a sailor, who also acted as the cook on the voyage. The distance is nearly 3,500 miles and the captain said he had steered a southerly course to keep clear of the cold, rough weather. The yawl was not reported from the day she sailed, June 15, until the stout-built craft dropped anchor yesterday.

The Farhlannet is ketch rigged and is fifteen feet beam, twelve tons, and was formerly engaged, according to the captain, in smuggling along the Scandinavian Coast.

Captain Grimsoe, who speaks English with difficulty, said they had had fine weather for the first two weeks after leaving port and then had run into squalls, gales, hailstorms and heavy seas which continued off and on for a month.

Had to Throw Out Sea Anchor.

"The weather was so rough at times," he continued, "that we had to heave the yawl to and throw out a sea anchor astern to ride out the storm. For the past twenty-five days before making Sandy Hook today the weather has been fine and all we had to do was to keep watch, trim the sails and cook the food. We had plenty of provisions, including hardtack, on board and a good supply of water. There was plenty of opportunity to replenish the casks during the heavy rains by catching the water in a spare sail. The quadrant we used for making observations is more than 100 years old."

The Farhlannet appeared to be a comfortable craft as she lay at anchor last night off the foot of Fifty-eighth Street, Brooklyn. She has one mast with a leg of mutton sail and a jib on the boom. The yawl also has a flush deck fore and aft with the cabin rising about three feet abaft the mast. The cabin is just abaft the gallery and contains three bunks.

The three were happy and got on well together on the voyage. Each man took his fair share of the lookout at night and the necessary work during the day. When the wind fell they caught bonito, albacore and other fish to add to the supply of canned foods in the lazarette.

Captain Grimsoe said that it had been difficult for the health steamboat to get alongside of his craft as she was six times the size of the yawl. Her bow wave kept sending the little vessel one way and then the wash from the screw would send her in another. The captain and his two companions were quickly passed and the Farhlannet given pratique.

B. Bonnevie, the acting Norwegian Consul General, said he had received the passports for the three modern Vikings ten days ago from the Minister of Foreign Affairs at Oslo.

When a United States Coast Guard cutter goes down the bay to Quarantine at 7:30 A. M. today an Immigration inspector and a customs officer will be put on board the Farhlannet to comply with the regulations for allowing the vessel and crew to enter the port. Later, the yawl will sail up the harbor and make fast at one of the piers in the North or East River, which will be decided upon today by the Acting Consul General.

The captain and his two companions expected to have reached New York in forty-five days. As their stay is limited they will leave the yawl here and go to Minneapolis and St. Paul by train and sail for home early in September before the equinoctial gales commence. With a good westerly wind the Farhlannet should make Droennoey in thirty to thirty-five days, the captain thinks.

COOLIDGE UNSHAKEN IN HIS INTENTIONS BY LONDON DEBT DEAL

Believes France Is Able to Pay Us on Same Terms Granted to Britain.

CONTRARY MUST BE PROVED

President Is Said to Know Congress Would Not Follow British Example.

PARIS IS COOL TO OFFER

Dissatisfied Because France Must Pay Britain Even if Germany Defaults.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 27.—The impression gained in official circles today was that President Coolidge would not be influenced by the tentative agreement reached between Great Britain and France, by which France received most favorable terms for funding her debt to Great Britain on condition that the United States allow France a similar settlement.

That the Administration is annoyed at the turn of events which the negotiations in London have taken was the view of those in position to know. It was intimated that the Anglo-French negotiations had tended to harden the Administration in its announced intention of exacting from all the countries obligated to the United States adequate terms for funding their debts.

The impression has prevailed that France so manoeuvred as to put Belgium at the council table first, hoping that most favorable terms would be granted her, which could be used later by France as an argument in settling her own debt. This second move has strengthened that impression and it is believed that France is employing all the leverage possible to influence leniency. Those who reflect the President's opinions felt that these moves, which they regarded as intended to force the hand of the United States, would, instead of having the desired effect on public opinion, which must be followed by the United States Debt Commission and President Coolidge, react unfavorably against France.

President Against Concessions.

While President Coolidge may consent to some modification in the terms for France, it is known that he is against such a course at this time, his opposition being based upon information in the possession of this Government as to France's ability to pay, her industrial prosperity and her individual wealth. If any modification is made it will result entirely from France's debt commissioners convincing the American commissioners that more favorable terms than those the British accepted should be granted.

It is pointed out that Great Britain always has followed a course of canceling or reducing greatly the debts of countries with which she has engaged in war. That she can wisely do this because she gets returns under the reparations accord is urged as an explanation of her present concession to France. With the United States it is different. This country obtained nothing from reparations and must account to the American voters for the money raised during the war for which the American taxpayers are carrying the burden at interest rates ranging over 4 per cent.

Moreover the President is represented as knowing that Congress would not consent to grant terms similar to those Great Britain has offered France and also as believing that France is well able to fund her debt over a period of sixty-two years upon the same interest rate that England is paying.

In the case of Belgium, Administration advisers find that public sentiment is supporting the debt settlement terms agreed to and they report to the President that the next Congress will ratify the program.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—Uncle Sam is to be the villain of the piece—that is at least one thing which stands out to observers here with regard to the English offer which Finance Minister Caillaux brought back from London this evening. Winston Churchill is a clever gentleman and, it is being said, right cleverly has he continued the British preachment that it is all American's fault if England is collecting money on the Continent.

Whether true or not, all this does not help the already waning esteem of Europeans for the United States, and its propaganda value is enormous.

It will be recalled that Lord Balfour announced that England was perfectly disposed to cancel the interallied debts but that America refused to enter into the program.

Then there was Mr. Churchill's letter last Winter in which he proclaimed that England would collect from friend and foe alike only the money she must pass over to America.

After this comes last night's plan, under which England sets a moderate base for the settlement of France's debt to her, but only on condition that America gives as liberal a settlement, for Mr. Churchill makes it quite plain that England expects pari passu treatment with America, adding:

"It would be no service to Europe, clearly so grievously stricken, if the

Smith and Walker Cross the Bridge; Thousands in Brooklyn Cheer the Invasion

Governor Smith and Senator Walker crossed the East River last night at the head of an automobile parade of twenty cars, preceded by an escort of motorcycle police. The invasion of Brooklyn was carried out quite peaceably and the invaders were halted only once, when they posed for pictures as the wheels of the first automobile reached the Brooklyn end of the Brooklyn Bridge.

As the Governor and the candidate for the Democratic nomination for Mayor sped through the streets of Brooklyn thousands on the sidewalks cheered lustily and shouted for "Jimmy Walker." Red fire in abundance added to the customary street illumination and small boys, too late to obtain their share of the red flares, were not to be outdone and rose to the occasion by burning twisted rolls of evening newspapers.

The Governor and Senator Walker's party were met at the end of the bridge by a delegation headed by James Auditore, President of the Italian-American Democratic Alliance, and Edward Francis Gallagher, the taller half of the team that made "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean" famous.

Then the Governor and the Senator posed for their pictures, while men, women and children of the neighborhood cheered lustily.

Through the main business section of Brooklyn, past Borough Hall, down Fulton Street, where moving-picture theatre crowds were assembling, the automobiles of the Governor and his party sped past. From all sides came shouts of encouragement for Senator Walker and his principal supporter.

Prospect Avenue between Fifth and Sixth Avenues had been closed to traffic and there an enormous throng assembled to obtain a glimpse of the candidate and the Governor.

Police reserves from half a dozen precincts kept the crowd in check, and when the Governor's car reached Prospect Hall and the band inside the hall commenced to play the famous Smith campaign song, "The Sidewalks of New York," the crowd outside took up the strains and "East Side, West Side, All Around the Town" was sung half a dozen times.

Text of Gov. Smith's Brooklyn Speech Supporting Senator Walker for Mayor

Reviews Bitter Struggle for Primary Law and Says Hylan Fails to Understand It—Calls Mayor Boss-Ridden—No Man Can Control Democratic Party, He Declares.

The text of Governor Smith's speech in Brooklyn last night follows:

Mr. Chairman, Friends and Neighbors of Brooklyn (the Governor here moved the microphone): If you notice I adjusted the pie plates. I am rather expert at this.

While I was sitting on the platform a note was sent up to me that I desire to make answer to. It comes from the American War Veterans' League. It says: "Dear Governor: We are with you until hell freezes over." (Laughter and applause.)

I thought immediately of this reply, that it came nearest this morning, but it got warmer during the day. It is necessary for the league to stick around a little while.

On a great many occasions I have had my attention called to what to my way of thinking would be an important part of a campaign speech by something that would be put in my hand while I would be entering the hall. I was too busy in New York tonight to see the evening papers, but this much was torn from the corner of an evening paper and handed to me as I walked in the door.

Mentions Hylan's Charge.

It says that our Mayor had made the statement that George—meaning Olvany—knew that a gambler nominated Walker.

I think that it is within the realm of reason, and it certainly is within the bounds of fairness, to let one more or less distinguished Democrat ask another distinguished Democrat who that gambler is.

Now the nominating speech in the Executive Committee of Tammany Hall for Senator Walker was made by Daniel E. Finn. Daniel E. Finn is the son of "Battery Dan" of blessed memory and a good old, upstanding, straightforward character of New York.

Incidentally, he happens to be a member of the Mayor's cabinet. [Laughter.] Now, the Mayor, either does not know a gambler when he sees one, or he does not know who made that nominating speech.

However, this is a little family quarrel, and I am not going to be too harsh, and I am going to make reasonable allowances for all the conditions.

Discusses Direct Primaries.

Now, the Senator and Judge McKee made pretty clear to the gathering tonight just what the meaning of the direct primary law is. Remember that from 1907 until 1913 it rimwracked not only the Democratic Party from one end of this State to the other, but also the Republican Party.

No more bitter controversy was ever known in all the annals of politics in this State than the controversy over the principle, the very principle itself, involved in the direct primary law. It was held that after a convention those that disagreed with the attitude of the delegates were helpless and the great underlying fundamental principle of the direct primaries was that in the last analysis the nomination had to be made by the enrolled voters themselves.

What Democrat in this State or in this country can quarrel with that principle? How can any Democrat say that anything but the very essence of democracy must grow from the united action of the people that own the parties and that are the enrolled voters?

Says No Man Owns Party.

George Olvany doesn't own the Democratic Party, neither does Eddy Flynn; neither does John McCooey; neither does Rendt; neither does Maurice Connolly, or neither do I, or neither does any other man own it.

We are all members of it. And if a man wants to set himself up inside of it as a leader of thought and he is able to convince a majority of it, he is the leader.

Of course when we debated direct primaries in Albany we never believed that if any considerable portion of the members of a party disagreed with the others they would be immediately landed upon and beaten over the head and abused and called crooks and pickpockets and plotters against the public. Nobody suspected that. And from intelligent sources nobody expects it. (Applause).

I would like to know if it is a human thing to find out the operation of the Mayor's mind on this question [laughter and applause] of direct primaries; whether he has any conception of what it really means. I am exceedingly doubtful about it, and I take it from his own words. He wrote a letter to Dr. Copeland and in it he warned the doctor that he had no quarrel with me. He says:

"I have no quarrel with Governor Smith. I did everything in my power to help elect him as Governor the four times he was a candidate."

Now, that sentence alone in the Mayor's letter to Senator Copeland convinces me that he has no understanding of what the direct primary law really means. Of course he supported me every time I was a candidate, there wasn't anything else for him to do. I supported him the two times he was a candidate. I left my private business to go to the steps of the City Hall to place him in nomination the second time.

And you know me, and you know that such a thing as the "big hand" is as far away from my nature as anything could be, and, therefore, when I say this you know that it is in no spirit of egotism—I supported him—and if I say it myself, made more intelligent speeches for his election than he was able to make himself.

Now, wait. Let us see if the Mayor understands the primary law. He says he supported me the four times I was a candidate. Did he support me for the nomination? (Cries of "No.") You know that he did not. You know that he went to Syracuse in 1922 avowedly and from his own lips to do every human thing that he could do to stop me from getting the nomination, but the progressive, intelligent, upstanding rank and file of the party in the State chased him back to New York. [Laughter and applause.]

[A voice: Not only him, but Mr. Hearst.]

The Governor: He said so himself in the Academy of Music in Brooklyn. He said the only thing I was not able to beat him at was in getting back home. See if I haven't got a pretty good memory. That is exactly what he said.

Likes Hylan as a Man.

Now, a little over a year ago all the Democrats of this State and all the Democrats in the eastern part of this country stood day in and day out during the long, hard siege in Madison Square Garden against the forces of religious and racial bigotry.

Not so much for me as for what I represented in that fight. And where was the Mayor?

[Voices: With McAdoo; with Hearst.] In secret conference with the representatives of the Klan.

Now, there is not any question as between the Mayor and me as to what he thinks about me, or what I think about him. As a citizen of this community and as a New Yorker and as a man that fought his way up the ladder I have a great admiration for him. I like him. I like his family. I like his good clean life, I respect him very much and I speak of him in this contest not as John F. Hylan, but I speak of his ability to be the Mayor of this city.

That is what we are dwelling on and all of his complaints against me never were based on the question of my ability. It was his blind, obedient subservience to a super-boss, who stood over him and was the keeper of his heart, the keeper of his conscience and the director of his polit-

CITES GOVERNORSHIP RACE

Charges the Mayor With Opposing Him and Supporting Hearst.

WALKER ALSO A SPEAKER

Reviews His Transit Record—Addresses by General Berry and Joseph V. McKee.

Leading the invasion of the Tammany Tiger into Brooklyn, Governor Alfred E. Smith crossed "the bridge" in a blaze of red fire last evening, and in a speech at Prospect Hall declared that he was opposed to the renomination of Mayor Hylan because he believed that a man with greater ability than the Mayor was needed.

Cheered by the 3,000 men and women inside the hall and by nearly as large a crowd listening through the amplifiers outside, the Governor asserted that the five-cent fare was not an issue in this campaign, but a "smoke screen" used by the Mayor to obscure the real issue, which the Governor declared to be "subway transportation relief."

The Governor did not mince words in referring to the Mayor, and met the latter's challenge for a fight "without kid gloves."

Says Daniel E. Finn Nominated Walker.

He denied the Mayor's charge that the nomination of Senator Walker was dictated by "the poolroom king," at a meeting of the Tammany Executive Committee, and declared that Senator Walker's nomination was made by Daniel E. Finn, a member of the Mayor's cabinet.

The Governor referred good-humoredly to the Mayor's assertion that he had supported him four times. "Did he support me for the nomination?" the Governor asked. "You know he did not," he continued. "He went to Syracuse and did all that was humanly possible to prevent it."

Governor Smith swept aside the Mayor's recent protestations of loyalty to him, and after referring to Mayor Hylan's attempt to obtain the Democratic nomination for Governor for William Randolph Hearst in 1922, charged the Mayor with working against him when he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President at the Madison Square Garden convention last year.

"While I stood against the forces of racial and religious bigotry, where was the Mayor?" the Governor asked. "He was in secret conference with the Klan, with the representative of the Klan."

This assertion was interpreted as a charge that the Governor had knowledge of conferences between Mayor Hylan and the supporters of William G. McAdoo, at the time Governor Smith's leading opponent for the Democratic Presidential nomination, reports of which were current then.

Another reference by the Governor which indicated that the causes for the present Democratic primary contest go beyond city issues was an unmistakable reference to Mr. Hearst, although the Governor did not mention the publisher by name. This was when Governor Smith charged Mayor Hylan with blind subservience to a "super-boss."

At the end of his speech, the Governor answered the question of why he was in the fight. He declared that he was in the contest to aid Senator Walker because he was a citizen of New York City and believed the problems confronting it required a man of greater ability and understanding than the Mayor and that he believed Senator Walker was such a man.

Governor Smith urged support for Major Gen. Charles W. Berry, candidate for Controller, and Justice Joseph V. McKee, candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen.

The Governor received a most enthusiastic reception, which indicated that he had lost none of his personal popularity in Brooklyn, even though the Democratic organization there might be supporting a different set of candidates.

Before he rose to speak, the band played the familiar "East Side, West Side" and "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here." Nathat S. Jonas, who presided, referred to the Governor as "our leader in the State, our coming leader in the nation and the man of the hour," which brought more applause.

Senator Walker, the Tammany candidate for Mayor, received a demonstration that was only less slightly enthusiastic than that for Governor Smith. Senator Walker, apparently with a realization that it was Governor Smith's night, confined himself mostly to a recital of his transit record, particularly of his record in maintaining the five-cent fare and opposing attempts to increase it.

Senator Walker read a copy of a bus bill sent to him by the Corporation

Counsel, presumably at the instance of Mayor Hylan, in which the rate of fare was left to the Board of Estimate. Senator Walker said that he had refused to introduce it in that form and had insisted that a five-cent fare provision be written in. He added that in at least one instance he considered that he and not the Mayor had been the real five-cent fare defender.

Senator Walker declared that he was not only for the five-cent fare, but for more and greater subways. "You can not talk a hole in the ground," he added, "You have got to do it with picks and shovels."

"The Tiger Crosses the Bridge."

The Prospect Hall meeting not only marked the first appearance of Governor Smith in the primary campaign, but the first time that the "Tiger crossed the bridge," at least in force. Governor Smith, Senator Walker and their party swept into Brooklyn by automobile, crossing Brooklyn Bridge, which John H. McCooey, the Democratic leader of that borough, had left temporarily unguarded, in a blaze of red fire and to the accompaniment of the blowing of sirens and horns.

Twenty automobiles, carrying a delegation of Brooklyn citizens headed by John J. Curtin, Chairman of the Brooklyn Democratic Citizens' Committee for the Tammany city ticket, met the Governor and the candidates and proceeded to Prospect Hall, getting plenty of fireworks and cheers on the way.

At least 3,000 men and women, all the hall would hold, greeted Governor Smith and Senator Walker on their arrival. It is no disparagement to Senator Walker to say that the crowd was a Smith crowd. Perhaps 2,000 persons unable to get inside, who had gathered outside to hear the speeches through the amplifying horns, cheered the party enthusiastically. Their enthusiam was mild compared to the applause that broke loose when the Governor and the Senator entered the hall. Both were kept busy acknowledging salutations from friends as they moved slowly to the stage.

The band played "East Side, West Side," a tune made familiar at two Democratic National Conventions, as the Governor took his seat on the stage. He smiled again and made some remark to Senator Walker.

Walker Greets Three Senators.

Three Brooklyn Democratic Senators, who have deserted the McCooey organization to support their leader in the Senate, Senators Philip L. Kleinfeld, James A. Higgins and John A. Hastings, occupied seats at the front of the stage. Obviously pleased at this evidence of open support by his colleagues, Senator Walker waved a greeting to them and they smiled back.

Other prominent Brooklyn Democrats on the platform were Frank B. McLaughlin, State Superintendent of Banks, and Mrs. Jennie McMahon, woman leader of the Sixteenth or Coney Island District, who has come out for Walker. William A. Butler, a lawyer, was another leading Democrat present. The cheering for Governor Smith and Senator Walker lasted several minutes. As soon as he could obtain order, Mr. Curtin, as temporary Chairman, opened the meeting.

"Your Excellency," said Mr. Curtin, indicating the Governor, "the next Mayor (bowing to Senator Walker), the next Controller (indicating General Berry), and last, but not least, the President of the Board of Aldermen (indicating Justice McKee).

"Don't forget the President of the United States in 1928," shouted a voice, and the crowd began its demonstration at this reference to the Presidential ambitions of Governor Smith.

"I won't delay you but a moment," Mr. Curtin continued, as soon as he could quiet the audience. "I know what is to follow and how anxious you are. It remains for me only, as Chairman of the Kings County Citizens' Democratic Committee for the nomination and election of Walker, Berry and McKee, to introduce the permanent Chairman of the evening. I need say only a word about him, but it seems to me that he is a very typical Chairman of this unusual and extraordinary outpouring. This is a great night for Brooklyn——"

"We know it," a voice shouted.

"A great night for free democracy," Mr. Curtin added.

He then presented Nathan S. Jonas, President of the Manufacturers' Trust Company, whom he characterized as one of the leaders in Brooklyn in business and philanthropy, as the permanent Chairman.

Nathan S. Jonas Speaks.

Mr. Jonas, who received a cordial welcome, said in part:

"There should be no differences or hard feeling between the Brooklyn and Manhattan regular Democratic organizations after these primaries are over, as all will naturally support the winners and all should be fairly and equally recognized if the party is successful.

"I have been for years a personal friend of John H. McCooey and have an affectionate and high regard for him. Our difference as to who should be the Democratic standard-bearer in November will not affect that friendship, and I shall go a long way to help elect the splendid county ticket designated by the Kings County organization and headed by Borough President Joseph A. Gulder.

"Many years ago, when discord existed among the Democrats in Kings County, I had the honor of serving as Chairman of a harmony committee, which was successful in bringing about a satisfactory solution of the problems which then confronted the party, and I wish there were some way now in which I could be helpful in serving and healing present party differences.

"For seven years we have listened to slush and drivel about the 'interests' and about traction combinations and I say to you now as a business man and banker that there is no such thing as the 'interests' in that sense and no such combinations except in the minds of some people. We ask now for the production of proofs. Give us the names of individuals or combinations who are looting the people, and tell us what particular things they are doing and then our able district attorneys will do their duty promptly and efficiently.

"Does the mere possession of wealth make a man an indecent or dishonorable citizen? Or are there two classes of wealthy men—the decent and honorable because they are for the Mayor, and the indecent and dishonorable simply because they are not for him.

"If the citizens of New York believe that an official is all right who slanderously attacks every man who differs with him; if the citizens of New York feel that credit is reflected upon our city by a Mayor who is obsessed with the idea that he and only he can save our fair city from destruction and that every one who honestly opposes him is a scoundrel and must be publicly denounced as such, and if the citizens of New York believed in the numerous talk that has emanated from our City Hall during the past few years and are satisfied to further tolerate it, then they will deserve another four years of an undignified and humiliating administration which will make our New York City Government more than ever the laughing stock of the country."

Berry Criticizes Edwards.

General Berry was the first speaker. He criticized the Mayor for exhibitions at City Hall and in the Board of Estimate that gave citizens reason to be ashamed of him, and asserted that the record of his opponent, William H. Edwards, as a great sportsman and football player did not indicate that the latter was particularly well fitted for the office of Controller. General Berry added humorously that if any one were to ask him who should be picked for Controller he would say a soldier. He added seriously that any man who rose to general rank in military service necessarily had to have the ability to handle a number of specialized departments under him.

General Berry was succeeded by Justice McKee, who spoke rather briefly.

"We come here with malice and ill will toward none," Mr. McKee said. "We desire to place before the people of Brooklyn our records and achievements and to prove that we are better fitted than our opponents to be the candidates on our ticket in the general election that is to follow.

"I want you to look at Senator Walker; I want you to look at General Berry; I want you to look at myself.

"I ask you people of Brooklyn, you home-loving people, if you honestly believe, do you sincerely believe that our election means the selling out of our city and the betrayal of our people to those who gain their wealth and have their control in the lower strata of our society?"

"I think the charges fall of their own weight, and, rather than be received in any dignified way, should be put aside as the outpourings of some disordered mind that in its frenzy is picking up whatever weapon it can to fight back in blind fury."

Chairman Introduces Walker.

Mr. Jonas made a rather extensive introduction of Senator Walker. "He was born and bred in the City of New York," Mr. Jonas said. "He has been a successful and outstanding member of the bar.

"He represented his district in the Assembly for five years and has been a member of the Senate since 1914. He has been leader of his party, both as majority and minority, since 1920. I would like to call your attention to the fact that he is the same man now as he was in all those years, when he advocated and presented all of the successful Democratic measures, and especially the legislation in the city of New York, and only since he has been opposed to some one else have all his faults been discovered and his virtues been forgotten.

"He established the Home Rule Commission, introduced the bill on housing, incorporated the New York City Police Fund, was the author of the anti-Ku Klux Klan bill, of the eight-hour day for women and children in industry and numerous other welfare and humane measures. It should not be and is not necessary to enumerate all the things that he has done.

"I present him to you as a man eminently qualified by his experience at the bar and in the Legislature. And, in presenting him to you, I present him not only as a real typical New Yorker, but a man who will smile his way into your hearts."

Senator Walker received an ovation which was only exceeded by that which came later for Governor Smith. His speech consisted mainly of a recital of his record, and incidentally part of Mayor Hylan's record, on the five-cent fare, and he produced and read a copy of a bus bill sent him by the Corportion Counsel, presumably at the instance of the Mayor, in which he said he had insisted on writing a provision for a five-cent fare.

Senator Walker's Speech.

Senator Walker's speech follows:

It is with no little gratitude that I accept your invitation to visit Brooklyn after being designated as the choice of the Executive Committee of the Democracy of New York County and of the County of the Bronx for Mayor of the great City of New York. This great distinction that has been visited upon me came not alone from the loyal Democrats of the Counties of New York and the Bronx but the petitions designating me contained the names of thousands of loyal Democrats in the counties of Kings, Queens and Richmond.

I have been reliably informed that this campaign is not all good natured. It is very difficult for me to understand that, because if any one should be "peeved" in the premises I am the only candidate that might with any degree of logic occupy that position.

And let me tell you why. It was back in the year 1913, when the Empire State's favorite son of all sons was Speaker of the Assembly and Mr. Justice Aaron J. Levy was the majority leader of that body, that in response to a demand that had been general, a demand from all over the State, and in compliance with a plank in the Democratic platform the law for direct primaries was written into the statute books of this State.

Nominee Under Old Convention Plan.

That may not be particularly interesting at the moment to some of you, but may I not with some grace call your attention to the fact that if the old system of nominations had been followed, and if we had sought for a candidate for Mayor in this city in the old-fashioned convention hall, there would be but one candidate before you tonight and that would be myself. You know now that I would have had the unanimous delegation from the County of New York. You also know that I would have had the unanimous delegation from the Bronx, because they have already indicated that, and I am not unmindful of the fact that I would have had many delegates from Kings, Queens and some from Richmond.

Let me assure you, though, that, no matter whatsoever may be the outcome in this primary, after this experience I shall be more intensely in favor of direct primaries than I was before. And, though it should result in defeat to me, I will abide by the result and be just as true and just as loyal to democracy the day after the primaries as I am today.

As Democrats, loyal to genuine democratic principles, let us review the demands of the situation in which we find ourselves. Were I to look to the other side, I think I may say with some degree of certainty that there is an issue known as the five-cent fare. If that is so, I purpose that you should know where I stand. I am not going to ask you to depend on any assurances I can give you. I am going to let my record speak for me.

His Record on Five-Cent Fare.

The five-cent fare was first made mandatory by the dual subway contracts of 1913, twelve years ago, and it was never attacked until 1919. The attack was then made in Albany, when I was a member of the New York State Senate. I repeat, the attack was made in Albany, not in the City Hall. It was made in the Capitol at Albany when I was a member of the Senate.

This year the Carson-Martin bill was introduced. This bill gave to the Public Service Commission, without the consent of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, the right to raise fares. The Democratic Legislature fought and defeated this under my leadership.

In 1921 there was introduced the Knight-Adler bill, which sought to increase fares by empowering the Transit Commission, upon agreement with the traction companies, to increase the fares in our city as a part of a scheme for the unification of all the traction companies throughout the city. You will probably remember that this was the year that I had the distinction of leading but eleven members in the Senate out of a total of fifty-one, and despite our vigorous opposition the bill was passed and became a law. That bill, however, provides that the local authorities, with the consent of the Transit Commission and the approval of the traction companies, may increase the fares, but the Transit Commission has heretofore and since the enactment of the Knight-Adler bill gone on record to the effect that they will not approve an increase in fare in our city.

Cites Bills He Introduced.

Since 1923 I have introduced all the affirmative legislation that had for its purpose the protection of the 5-cent fare for the people of this city, and with your permission I shall now submit the documentary evidence which permits of no doubt whatsoever.

Bill Int., 656, Print No. 1715, introduced in the Senate on Feb. 12, 1923, by Mr. Walker, entitled: "An act granting to the City of New York power to construct, acquire, own, operate and regulate transit facilities in such city," &c., &c., a copy of which I hold in my hand. This bill was brought to me by the Assistant Corporation Counsel of the City of New York, representing the Mayor. On page 82, at lines 14, 15 and 16, I find these words, which I shall read: "The rate of fare to be charged shall not exceed 5 cents per person for one continuous ride, except by special authorization of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment." This bill I succeeded in having passed by the Senate, only to meet defeat at the hands of the Republican Assembly.

Let me, before I lay this bill down, again call your attention to the fact that the Mayor's bill, though it provided for a 5-cent fare, still left open the door for the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to increase the fares if it chose so to do.

Now let me proceed with the record and read for you from a bill submitted to me by the Assistant Corporation Counsel representing the Mayor in Albany during the session of 1924. This bill was printed some place in the City of New York and not in Albany, and it bears on its face (and I submit for your observation) the words "William A. Walling, Assistant Corporation Counsel, City of New York, 37 Ten Eyck Building, Albany, N. Y." From that bill, entitled "An act to amend generally the City Law in relation to the ownership, establishment, construction, acquisition and operation of public utilities," I find these words on page 6, reading from lines 3 and 4: "The rates and charges of every nature shall be fixed, approved or authorized by the local appropriating body."

There can be no doubt in any one's mind as to what is meant by the local appropriating body in the City of New York. There are none of us but who understand very thoroughly that that means by the local appropriating body in the City of New York. There are none of us but who understand very thoroughly that that means the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. I have no hesitation in reviewing for you the misgivings that I had in my own mind when I saw what a change there was in the language of the representative of the Mayor in the two bills I have read for you, one of 1923 and the other of 1924.

Let me revert to the bill of 1923 and again call your attention to the fact that while a five-cent fare was provided for in 1923, but with the further privilege of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to increase the fares if they decided to, that influence, that inspiration, that moral obligation which was written into the bill of 1923, was left out entirely in their bill of 1924. It was because of the absence of any mention of the five-cent fare in the bill of 1924 that I refused to introduce it. But, my friends, the city was not left without their protectors. The Democratic Party of the City of New York had its representatives on the job in Albany, and as one of them I subsequently, on Feb. 19, introduced in the Senate Bill Int. No. 802, Print. No. 857, by Mr. Walker, entitled: "An act granting to the cities of the State power to acquire, own, operate and regulate transportation facilities," &c., &c.

Write In a Five-Cent Fare Provision.

From this bill, which I gladly introduced, I read from page 73 at line 24, and these are the words written on that line: "The rate of fare shall be five cents." These words are mine, written solely by myself without any assistance from the City Hall in New York or elsewhere.

My friends, I don't want you to conclude from this that at the time I had any doubt about the honesty and the integrity of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, but I deemed it my duty, after so many years supporting the five-cent fare, to leave no opening for anybody, no matter whosoever he might be, to increase the fares in this city.

I hold in my hands four other bills with reference to the transit conditions in the City of New York, all introduced by me and all containing these words which were written in the bill I have just described, "The rate of fare shall be five cents."

Isn't it fair to conclude that I have always been for the five-cent fare? Isn't it fair to conclude that I am for the five-cent fare, and that I always will be for the five-cent fare? The five-cent fare that I am for is with a seat and not a strap, because I believe that you cannot talk a hole in the ground. It can only be accomplished with picks and shovels.

Now that I assume that every intelligent man and woman throughout the city understands my attitude and realizes that this five-cent issue was only concocted to be used in this primary, let me turn for a moment and rather than looking backward and downward, lift our eyes upward and forward. There never has been any doubt in my mind of the importance that Brooklyn bears to the greater city. Its rapid growth of population alone entitles it to more consideration than I believe it has heretofore received.

Favors Gulder Subway for Brooklyn.

There isn't any doubt in my mind, and there has not been any doubt in my mind for many years that one of Brooklyn's chief needs, if not its chiefest need, is additional subway construction done with shovels. There has been a crying need for a direct subway connection between Brooklyn on the south and Brooklyn on the north at Long Island City. That can only be accomplished by such a subway as has been proposed by the Borough President of Brooklyn, Joseph A. Gulder.

Indeed, I have never been able to understand why the subway link at Ashland Place has never been built and used. It is my opinion that if it were put to proper use, the use for which it was designed, there would be no further necessity for an elevated structure along lower Fulton Street. It is also beyond my understanding why the express tracks under Eastern Parkway have never been used. It shall, however, be my business to find out why.

In addition to the crosstown subway there should be a highway constructed parallel with or a part of that subway. It is too ridiculous to discuss now or argue about the necessity for connecting Brooklyn and Queens by straight routes. As you know better, even than I, travel between the points I have mentioned is only possible now by a trip through the Borough of Manhattan, except by paying extra fares and a long, tedious journey by surface cars. This will get my prompt and serious consideration.

For Atlantic Avenue Boulevard.

There is no doubt in my mind, and there has not been for many years, of the necessity for the construction of a boulevard from the foot of Atlantic Avenue at the East River to Jamaica, and I shall make every effort to bring that about. Atlantic Avenue is the only street running east and west with a right of way wide enough to be utilized as an artery of traffic.

In connection with the improvement of Atlantic Avenue as a highway it goes without saying that my earnest cooperation shall be given with a view to the construction of an adequate passenger terminal by the Long Island Railroad Company at Atlantic Avenue and the relocation of the present freight terminal at that point and the providing of adequate trackage under Atlantic Avenue.

I believe that the Metropolitan Avenue in the eastern district, which is a direct diagonal thoroughfare from the Williamsburg Bridge Plaza to Jamaica, should be widened as an artery of traffic before property values go higher and make it practically prohibitive in cost. This improvement will undoubtedly mean as much to the eastern district of Brooklyn as the extension of Flatbush Avenue linked up with the Manhattan Bridge.

One of the most beautiful residential sections in the United States is that part of Brooklyn bordering on the Narrows and upper New York Bay, known as the Shore Road section. There is no reason why the City of New York should not seriously consider the matter of improving Shore Road and providing additional appropriations that would make it the rival, if not the superior, of Riverside Drive in Manhattan.

Indeed, I should favor taking up with the Federal Government, through its appropriate agency, the extension of Shore Road through the military reservation at Fort Hamilton, thus making a continuous shore boulevard through Dyker Park to Coney Island. This includes, of course, making adequate provision for the improvement of Dyker Park.

With respect to the downtown section of Brooklyn, you all know that traffic conditions are as congested there as they are in lower Manhattan, and it is becoming daily more seriously congested with the gigantic growth, and means should be provided for adequate arteries so that automobile traffic can be accommodated as well as its pedestrian traffic.

These desired improvements which I have reviewed will, I repeat, receive my serious consideration and the humblest citizen of Brooklyn may, in the event of my becoming Mayor, bring to the City Hall any suggestion which in his or her opinion will make for the betterment of this city. And I can guarantee to them tonight at least respectful and courteous treatment.

The reassurances which I have recently had from my Democratic colleagues in the Senate representing Brooklyn districts, have been a source of great comfort and consolation to me. They tell me my leadership in the Legislature always spelled a fair deal for Brooklyn. And that that leadership was progressive, was humane, was constructive, is best evidenced by the fact that it in turn followed the greatest individual force for statesmanship and public service throughout the United States of America in the person of his Excellency, your Governor, Alfred E. Smith.

SMITH SPEAKS TONIGHT.

Walker Will Also Address Meetings in Queens.

Governor Smith and Senator Walker, Tammany candidate for Mayor, will speak tonight in Queens and tomorrow night will open the campaign for the Tammany City ticket in Richmond. In each county the Walker supporters have arranged for large meetings, with parades, red fire and all the accompaniments of an old-time political campaign.

The Queens meeting will be held in Public School 93, Ridgewood. Frank X. Sullivan, the Queens campaign manager, said that already the demand for tickets to the meeting had exceeded the supply.

The Richmond meeting will be held at the Democratic Club room at Stapleton. Governor Smith, Senator Walker and General Berry and Justice McKee, the other Tammany city candidates, will be met at the ferry terminal at St. George by a committee headed by County Judge J. Harry Tiernan, candidate for Borough President. One of the biggest political meetings ever held in Richmond is predicted.

The Bronx branch of the Tenants' League of Greater New York, with a membership running well up into the thousands, Indorsed Senator Walker and the other Tammany candidates and condemned Mayor Hylan.

A reception and garden party for Senator and Mrs. Walker will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto B. Shulhoff in Point Breeze Place, Far Rockaway, Sunday afternoon. More than a thousand invitations have been issued, and Mrs. Shulhoff announced that because of the haste in arranging the party that any one would be welcome who desired to attend the reception.

Coolidge Has a Farewell Handshaking As He Prepares to Leave Swampscott

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 27.—This was the first White Court handshaking day, and perhaps the last. From 2:30 to 4 o'clock President Coolidge received scores of persons, including old political friends and many Summer residents along the North Shore, who desired to pay their respects.

The fact that he opened White Court today as a sort of farewell and later attended a flag raising at Lynn, is taken to mean that the President is about ready to return to Washington. He may suddenly decide some morning that official responsibilities require his attention at the Capitol and hurry away without much notice.

The most conspicuous caller was a gray-haired negro, about 80 years old, R. J. Taylor, who ran the first elevator in the Massachusetts State House and carried fifteen Massachusetts Governors to their offices. He officiated while Mr. Coolidge was a legislator and Governor. He has attended Republican conventions for fifty years.

Three boys from the Duxbury Yacht Club, Captain Raymond Hunt, Marshall Dwinnell and Edmund S. Kelley Jr., who won the fifth Massachusetts junior yacht championship at Marblehead yesterday, were also received. The party also included Captain Harry W. Sturgis Jr., Byrd W. Wenman Jr. and C. Davenport Lockwood of the Stamford, Conn., Yacht Club, and Captain Harry B. Thayer, A. Goodwin Wood Jr. and Benjamin Langmaid of the Pleon Yacht Club of Marblehead, who competed with the Duxbury crew in the finals.

President Coolidge also presented thirty-four medals to school children of New Bedford, Mass., for making the greatest improvement in the use of English of all the school children of that city. The medals were awarded by The New Bedford Standard newspaper.

Following this the President put on his top hat and cutaway coat and with Mrs. Coolidge went to the Commons in Lynn, where they looked on during the exercises incident to the dedication of a new flagpole and new American flag for the Commons.

Arrangements were completed today for the President's visit tomorrow to Plymouth, where he and Mrs. Coolidge will visit the various historic spots associated with the landing of the Pilgrim fathers and their early settlement upon American shores. The journey will be made aboard the Presidential yacht Mayflower.

LYONS CAMPAIGN TO OPEN TONIGHT

Republican Candidate for Mayor Will Speak at Four Meetings in Brooklyn.

From the headquarters of John J. Lyons, candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor, this statement was issued yesterday:

"John J. Lyons, former Secretary of State, and contestant for the Republican nomination as Mayor against Frank D. Waterman, who has been characterized as the 'Rip Van Winkle' candidate, will open his speech-making tour this evening in Brooklyn, where he will address the enrolled Republican voters at two of the regular organization clubs and also at several volunteer organization meetings which have been arranged by Republican workers who are in revolt against the attempted dictation by the eleven self-constituted sponsors of the Waterman candidacy.

"Mr. Lyons's first speech, which will be the opening gun of his speaking campaign, will be delivered before the members of the Unity Republican Club at 929 Bushwick Avenue, Brooklyn, where he will appear at the invitation of Ernest C. Wagner, President of the club. This organization is in the district which is under the leadership of William Schnitzspan and covers the Twentieth Assembly district.

"This meeting will be followed by the appearance of Mr. Lyons at one other regular Republican club meeting in the Borough of Brooklyn, and then he will talk at two additional independent meetings which have been arranged by Republican workers who are in revolt against the designation of Mr. Waterman as the candidate to head the party's ticket.

"At the Lyons headquarters in the Hotel McAlpin it was stated yesterday that more than twenty leaders of Republican clubs throughout the city had extended invitations to Mr. Lyons to appear there and address the membership at meetings that are to be held before the primaries. Hr. Lyons stated that he had no doubt that all of the leaders of the city would extend to him the same courtesies of addressing their members at such functions as are tendered to Mr. Waterman.

"Although the fighting leader of the Republicans would not definitely name leaders who are advocating his candidacy, he intimated that within the next few days he would issue a statement that would prove something of a shock to the complacent Eleven Wise Men of Gotham who went 'over on the Jersey side' with the 'Rip Van Winkle Waterman' from his long sleep to interject him to New York politics.

"Mr. Lyons also refused to make further comment on the alleged bribe that was offered to Alfred B. Simonds in order to make him desert the Lyons ranks after Simonds's Club has unanimously voted to support Lyons and not Waterman."

OLVANY SAYS HYLAN LIED IN VICE CHARGE

Calls Accusation That Tammany Is Influenced by Gambler "Deliberate Falsehood."

SAYS MAYOR HAS LOST HEAD

Hylan Reiterates Assertion, Saying Olvany Knows It's True—Sees His Manhattan Leaders.

George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany, denied yesterday the assertion of Mayor Hylan that an unnamed "poolroom king who wanted a wide open town, a B. M. T. lawyer who wanted a ten-cent fare and a representative of a gambler whose place was closed by the Hylan Administration" took part in the meeting of the Tammany Executive Committe which selected Senator James J. Walker as the Tammany candidate for Mayor.

"Mayor Hylan, when he made that statement, knowingly stated a deliberate and malicious falsehood," Judge Olvany said. "He personally knew that no one was present at the meeting which suggested Senator Walker to the voters of the City of New York as a designee for Mayor except the members of the Executive Committee of New York County.

"The truthfulness of this statement applies equally to all his other wild statements.

"He is probably sore and peeved because his name was not even mentioned in the Executive Committee for a third term. He seems to have completely lost his head."

Mayor Hylan repeated his charge in somewhat different form in a statement issued at City Hall when informed of Judge Olvany's denial.

"George Olvany knows that he advises with the poolroom king," the Mayor said. "He knows that he advises with the B. M. T. lawyer who wants to increase carfares in the city. He knows likewise that he advises with the friend of the biggest gambler in the city.

"And these three men gave Olvany orders that unless Hylan was turned down there would be no money forthcoming from them for the primary campaign. Hylan was turned down by the minority, by Mr. Olvany and Mr. Flynn. The money is now flowing like running water. These three men I refer to have absolute control of Olvany, and he knows it, and no amount of denials by him will be effective to the people of this city so long as he refuses to answer the fourteen questions submitted to him. And may I ask him another question—if he was ever present at any of the dinners given to the poolroom king?"

"The Mayor's answer to my denial is as true as his original statement," Judge Olvany said. "I don't know whom he means by the poolroom king. He is probably more familiar with such persons than I am."

Mayor Hylan made his first visit to his Manhattan and Bronx headquarters in the Hotel Roosevelt yesterday and had a conference of more than an hour with former Surrogate John P. Cohalan, his campaign manager. "We merely discussed details of the campaign," the Mayor said, as he left.

When Judge Cohalan asked why Justice Joseph V. McKee, Tammany candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, did not resign his seat on the City Court bench. "Is it ethical for a sitting Judge to run for a non-judicial position?" Judge Cohalan asked. The question recalled the fact that Mayor Hylan did not resign as County Judge of Kings County when he run the first time for Mayor.

William A. Cokeley, Hylan candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, commented on Judge Cohalan's question as follows: "The answer is very plain. I have asked Judge McKee that question through the newspapers and in my speeches many times, and he has not dared to reply. He has no answer, because he is afraid of being defeated for the office which he is now seeking."

Mayor Hylan will speak tonight at a meeting of the National Coalition Political Association, a negro organization, at Renaissance Casino, 137th Street and Seventh Avenue. Ulysses S. Poston, President of the association, will preside, and William H. Edwards and William A. Cokeley, Mayor Hylan's running mates, also will speak with candidates on the Hylan Manhattan ticket.

"The negro vote will remain with Mayor Hylan," Mr. Poston said. "The meeting is expected to give confirmation of this prediction."

The "Volunteer Veterans," organized to promote the candidacy of Mayor Hylan and his associates in the primaries, has opened headquarters in the Hotel Roosevelt. Additional headquarters will be opened throughout Manhattan and the Bronx.

The committee in charge of the headquarters is Francis J. Lowe, who served as a volunteer in the Sixty-ninth Regiment during the Spanish-American War, and in the Naval Intelligence Bureau in the World War; Benjamin Blank, who served in the Dixie Division, 118th Field Artillery, during the World War, and Jerome M. Rosenbloom, who served in the Headquarters Company of the Dixie Division, overseas. The work of the bureau is voluntary, with no paid workers.

The committee has pointed out that an item of $225,000 was included in the first Hylan budget for the relief of veterans, and has been included annually ever since, whereas under Mayor Mitchel and previous administrations no appropriation was ever made exceeding $25,000.

"We have carefully scanned the personnel of the candidates for Mayor on other tickets," said Lowe, "and we fail to find that any of them took active part in any war, and this goes for Governor Smith, too. Mayor Hylan was on the job as the great war Mayor of New York."

CALDWELL ANSWERS CRITIC.

Says He Is Assailed for Not Being "Pork Barrel Congressman."

Former Representative Charles Pope Caldwell, candidate against Borough President of Queens Maurice E. Connolly for the Democratic nomination for Borough President, replied yesterday to charges against him made by Sheriff Mason O. Smedley, Democratic County Chairman of Queens. Mr. Caldwell defended his record in Congress, which Sheriff Smedley attacked. Mr. Caldwell said that he was being assailed because he had not been "a pork barrel Congressman."

Mr. Caldwell in turn attacked the record of the Queens County Administration, headed by Mr. Connolly, which, according to Mr. Caldwell, has failed to develop Queens Boulevard or give sewer relief to the Rockaways.

WATERMAN TAKES SHOVEL AS EMBLEM

Flushing Women Present Him With a Full-Sized Implement for Digging Subways.

FOR TOIL, NOT TALK, HE SAYS

Republican Candidate Declares He'll Use Present to Turn First Dirt for Tubes.

Frank D. Waterman, designated for Mayor on the Republican-Citizens' ticket, accepted last night as the emblem of his campaign a steel shovel presented to him by a committee of Republican women of Flushing, Queens, at a reception in the Third Ward Republican Club of Flushing to George U. Harvey, Republican candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. Waterman had come prepared to read his speech. He held the manuscript in his hand as he was being introduced, but when Mrs. Harry H. Thomas, a leading Republican woman of Flushing, stepped up to present him with a full sized shovel, he discarded his written speech and said:

"I am more than pleased to start this campaign with the words of encouragement you have given me and this emblem. I shall carry it with me throughout my campaign, and I shall use it in the first dirt to be turned in subway building after I am elected Mayor of New York City.

"This is not a political shovel, because it will work and will not talk. It is an honest shovel, the kind the people have been wanting for eight years. I am a business man and I am sure I am equal to the job of being your Mayor. One promise I will make you now—I will see that you get better streets and roads in Queens than you have now."

In presenting the shovel Mrs. Thomas said:

"We have decided to give you, Mr. Waterman, an emblem of encouragement. It is an honest to goodness shovel and we are giving it to you because you know that you must actually dig to get results."

Mr. Harvey, whose candidacy was endorsed by a resolution passed at the meeting, said Queens had been the most neglected part of the city and that persons in power in the City Hall seemed to think it was somewhere in the neighborhood of Sag Harbor.

"Our streets are a disgrace," Mr. Harvey continued, "and unworthy of a civilized community. I have seen much better streets in Morocco. The same applies to all needed improvements. The whole trouble has been that the Borough Hall has been a political headquarters and not a place where the daily business of the borough is attended to.

"Queens for the last eight years has been the football of city politics. The people of Queens are getting much less for their taxes than they did twenty years ago in spite of the fact that the taxes have increased many times.

"When I sit in the Board of Estimate I shall make known the fact that Queens is a part of New York City—a part which is the fastest growing in the city. My election will give Queens four votes in the Board of Estimate.

"Mr. Waterman will dig subways. Politics will be abolished in the schools. The Police Department will protect life and property and our city will no longer be the laughing stock of the nation. Governor Smith says he stands for 'the best for New York.' In that case he must endorse the Waterman ticket, as he has admitted that the Hylan-Tammany administration has been a rank failure."

Several hundred men and women were present at the reception. Other speakers included Major John Holley Clark Jr., Lucien Knapp, William B. Parsons and Mrs. J. Burnett Jones.

TEXT OF GOVERNOR'S BROOKLYN SPEECH

ical will. He cannot deny this and when he does I will give him his own words for it, given to myself.

There is a great cross-fire and a great cross-current of misunderstanding of what we are all about here. I would not be quite so vigorous if I thought for a minute that we were not picking in this primary, not only the candidate, but the next Mayor. There is not any more chance of Waterman taking control of the business of this city than there is of either Jim Walker or myself going into the fountain-pen business.

Perform Duty to City.

We are performing not only a duty to the party, to the enrolled members of the party, but a duty to the city itself when we study with a great deal of care who ought to receive the Democratic nomination, because we firmly believe that he will be the Mayor. Now that does not mean of necessity that when we come over to Brooklyn here, and, because the leader of Brooklyn has a mistaken notion in his head that a majority of the people favor the Mayor, that we should be against him or any of his works. Not at all. Not at all. The fifteenth of September will open the light up to him. [Applause.]

I would be the last man in the United States of America that would come into this Borough if I thought my appearance here interferred in the slightest degree with the election of Joe Guider as President of the Borough of Brooklyn [applause]; or with the election of the candidate for Sheriff, who is a man who has been my associate and has rendered to the people of this city and of this State a conspicuous service in the Legislature of this State that money could not buy; nor Jim McQuade, nor Judge Wingate. Why, bless my heart, I appointed General Wingate Surrogate before he was elected, and Al Novo for County Judge. We have not any quarrel with these men; not at all. If I lived in the County of Kings I would unquestionably vote for them, not only on primary day but on election day.

But we do quarrel a little bit with our friends and members over this question of who should have this Mayoralty nomination and who should be nominated for Controller and President of the Board of Aldermen.

Now, supposing we were deciding this case as against somebody not of our party. How would we handle it? And what right have we to handle it differently when it is inside our party if we want to be true to ourselves and true to the men and women who make up the party.

New York Problems Unique.

The City of New York, unlike practically any other municipality in the civilized world today, has not only the problems that meet every other great community, but because of peculiar circumstances has been obliged to meet these problems multiplied one hundredfold.

It means that no city in the known world today has grown in population in the lifetime of a single person the way the City of New York has. No other city of this country is geographically situated as is New York. No city in the whole United States has ever been confronted with so many perplexing and difficult problems pressing for solution all at one time. What are some of them?

I read what the distinguished candidate said the day after his designation, and I take my cue from him when he enumerated the problems that, in his opinion, were pressing in this municipality for solution.

The first one, to my recollection, was the question of sewage disposal. It isn't so many years ago when I was swimming in the East River and it was a wholesome, clean place to swim. Today the city itself acknowledges the fact that the rivers on both sides of Manhattan Island, between Brooklyn and the Bronx, are polluted, because the floating free baths are no longer supplied with the salt water of the river, but have fresh water from the Catskill Mountains pumped into them to give the boys a chance to swim.

Sewage a Growing Problem.

It is not what the problem is today, it is what will the problem be five or ten years from now, if we continue to dump the sewers of this ever-growing upper end of Manhattan Island into these two rivers that separate Brooklyn from New York and New York from New Jersey. Has there been any thought given to that problem? Has there been any attempt made at even a study of its solution. Why, not at all; not at all.

And judging only from the record, let me ask you this: when you get home tonight, before you go to bed, and you kneel down to say your evening prayer, look into your hearts and look into your consciences, and ask yourselves if you have any right or not to expect even an attempted solution of it from the man who is now in City Hall.

The same thing is true of garbage disposal. The last twenty years have marked the greatest material progress the world has ever known. We have seen the complete development of the automobile and of the telephone and of the airship, of the submarine, and last and probably the greatest of them all, comes this wireless wonder known as the radio.

Says Government Lags.

Medicine, surgery, everything that is directed by the human brain and human ingenuity in twenty years has progressed except government, and we find ourselves today carting the city's garbage out to sea and dumping it so that it can be back on the beaches at the next tide, just as we did twenty years ago. And while you are asking yourselves the other question, ask the further question, whether on the records you have any right to expect any relief from that situation.

One of the most perplexing questions confronting this city and State today is the elimination of railroad operation at grade.

LABOR SIDETRACKS ATTACK ON HYLAN

But Attacks on the Mayor Continue at the State Federation Convention.

CHEERS FOR WALKER

President Holland, Replying to Mayor's "Wanton Abuse," Declares He Is Hysterical.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Although a resolution carefully avoiding personal condemnation of Mayor Hylan was substituted today for the one denouncing him which caused a stormy session yesterday at the convention of the State Federation of Labor, this afternoon speakers continued to assail "the Mayor of New York City" or "the Mayor," and in the end, despite the adoption of the tame resolution, the delegates virtually went on record as "100 per cent. for James J. Walker."

Leading up to a motion that the Executive Committee appoint a committee to work for the restoration of the pre-war eight-hour day and wage rate, Edward I. Hannah, vigorous adherent of the anti-Hylan resolution, described difficulties encountered in obtaining legislative relief.

"We've sent over fifty letters to the State Controller and Attorney General without receiving a single reply," he said. "It seems that the only means of enforcing the law is to do so ourselves.

Hannah Renews Attack.

"With this purpose in mind fifty-two trades in New York City petitioned the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for eighteen months and not a thing was done or contemplated until our recent conference with the Mayor and the board.

"It is not a matter for the Central Trades and Labor body alone, for it was the State Federation that put the prevailing wage rate on the books of the State. What is the difference between criminal and executive enforcement? In each case the prerogative of the people is involved. At the present moment it is absolutely impossible for labor to get relief in New York City.

"It took us twenty-two weeks to try to get the conference, only to be insulted in the end. We merely wanted to present facts. Week after week we'd hang around City Hall until a few minutes before the adjournment of the board, when the Mayor would send a messenger out to tell us that the board had no time to consider our proposal. Never a word about a special order for us. Instead the Mayor finally comes out with the statement that he wasn't going to let organized labor stick a gun up to the head of the taxpayer.

"We want our rights. We're not gunmen but respectable citizens and our fellow-citizens know it. The present law has no teeth. There is no penalizing city officials for malfeasance in office. Restore the law to its pre-war status. I've been careful in making statements today. I don't want to be misunderstood. I'm talking for no political party. I'm here to represent the Central Trades and Labor body, to do my duty."

Applause greeted the introduction of Mr. Hannah's new motion, and then turning slightly to face the whole assembly, Mr. Hannah added, tartly, "but I hope you will remember the original resolution."

Thomas J. Curtis declared that the Federation had made a serious mistake in New York State in allowing the Legislature to amend the eight-hour day law at all during the wartime hysteria which then organization away.

"Every time it possibly could, that fact has been used against us at Albany," he said. "It is impossible to enforce the law in any way, mandamus proceedings included. What's the use of having a mandamus injunction issued against the Mayor or Controller, if they can come back at you with the reply that no money has been appropriated for us? Take the matter up with your Assemblymen and State Senators. Get your city officers to pledge support. Ask them if they're with us or against us. As things now stand, we know we have the support of one of them and we know what we are going to do with it. We're going back to New York 100 per cent. in favor of one man. We know the man who is unfriendly to us."

Joseph A. Mullaney, Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, denied that political motives actuated him or any other member of the committee.

"Personally, I came here as an adherent of James J. Walker and I return as his supporter," he said. "And when it comes to voting, not only I but Mrs. Mullaney and our two sons will vote for Walker."

Speaks of "Mayor's Insult."

E. L. Edwards feared that "the Mayor's" attitude toward the prevailing wage rate might establish a precedent that officers in other cities in the State would emulate. "I see in the Mayor's insult the greatest menace that has ever confronted the organized labor movement," he said.

Joseph P. Ryan mentioned the difficulty the Longshoremen's Union had with the Mayor six years ago, declaring that he had caused a lot of unnecessary misunderstanding and trouble.

"I'm for Walker 100 per cent.," he shouted, "and I know I voice the sentiment of this assembly when I say so." Loud applause followed this exclamation.

John F. Dalton rose and enthusiastically declared, "Walker, first, last and always."

There was more cheering then.

Day estimated that 99 per cent. of the delegates at the convention would vote for Walker. Hannah argued for constructive action and re-echoed the sentiment, "Reward your friends and bury your enemies," as the convention came to a formal close.

Mayor Hysterical, Says Holland.

In a statement issued tonight the President of the Federation, James P. Holland, said:

"I have just received information that Mayor John F. Hylan of New York City has issued a public statement attacking certain representatives of organized labor, including myself. The statements contained therein are absolutely untrue. From his rambling tirade against officers of labor organizations, it is apparent that the Mayor of New York is in a hysterical state of mind.

"The only reason he assigns for his wanton abuse of labor's representatives is the fact that resolutions condemning his official opposition to the payment of union prevailing wages to city employes who are members of various labor unions were introduced at the convention of the New York State Federation of Labor in the City of Syracuse, resolutions containing charges that are verified by scores of delegates and denied by no one seated in our convention.

"I am further informed that the Mayor of New York City has also started reprisals against the organized labor movement because of the charges against him, by directing his subordinates in the City Administration to remove from the Federation Bank of New York certain city funds on deposit in that institution.

"The aforesaid statements and actions of the Mayor of New York are not only without any warrant or justification, but in the opinion of the overwhelming majority of the labor representatives attending our convention, in which I concur, amply warrant the united opposition of organized labor of Greater New York to his candidacy for re-election to the office he now holds and makes such unworthy use of by traducing trade union officials and endeavoring to belittle a financial institution organized and supported by all organized labor of the State."

A resolution was adopted calling on Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, Secretary of State, to investigate working conditions at the Automatic Voting Machine Company at Jamestown and requesting her not to order machines that are made by non-union labor. The charge was made the Jamestown Company is not organized under union rules.

MAYOR ASSAILS BRADY.

Also Attacks Holland—Defends Treatment of Labor.

As a result of the resolution condemning him offered at the convention of the State Federation of Labor at Syracuse Wednesday, Mayor Hylan made attacks yesterday on Peter J. Brady, President of the Federation Bank and former President of the Allied Printing Trades Council, and James P. Holland, President of the State Federation, whom he blamed for trying to align organized labor against him.

The Mayor declared that Mr. Brady, whom he once appointed Supervisor of The City Record, had gone over to the "increased fare interests." He asserted that Mr. Holland, whom he recently appointed a member of the Board of Standards and Appeals, was playing politics with the "labor interests."

The Mayor denied that he had opposed payment of the prevailing rate of wages on city work, as alleged, and said that, as a union man, he had always been friendly to organized labor.

The Mayor's attacks on Messrs. Brady and Holland were contained in a letter to Joseph A. Mullaney, Chairman of the Resolutions Committee of the convention. The letter follows:

Mayor's Office,
New York City,
Aug. 27, 1925.

Mr. Joseph A. Mullaney, Chairman Resolutions Committee, Convention State Federation of Labor, Onondaga Hotel, Syracuse, N. Y.

Dear Sir:—I deeply regret to learn that Peter Brady, whom I appointed as Supervisor of The City Record in recognition of organized labor and who is now in the banking business over which George McLaughlin, Superintendent of Banks, has jurisdiction, is secretly working with the increased-fare interests of this city to cast reflection upon me in labor circles.

When Mr. Brady assumed the active presidency of the Federation Bank of New York he stated in his letter of resignation:

"I am very reluctant to sever my connection with your Administration, for your policies of giving to all of the citizens of this great community the best of service, without fear or favor, made it easy for the heads of departments to render the greatest possible service to all the people."

He supplemented this letter with the personal statement to me, "Mr. Mayor, I can never forget your kindness to me. There isn't a thing in the world I wouldn't do for you if you asked me to."

Now, Mr. Brady has found it expedient to pass up those who had helped and honored him and had fought the battles of organized labor, for those who might be more servicable to him in banking circles.

I regret to learn that James P. Holland, the President of the federation, who accepted an appointment from me to the Board of Standards and Appeals and who several weeks ago endorsed me, should now be working against me and playing politics with the labor interests of this State against one who has given the best that is in him for the cause of labor.

As a labor man all my life, affiliated with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, I have extended every possible consideration to those in the ranks of toil, and have stanchly supported the cause of organized labor. I am content to have my labor record judged by the rank and file.

I have never opposed the payment of the prevailing rate of wages to the members of any union. Only requiring time needed to familiarize myself with all facts necessary to the proper performance of my official duties, I have given my approval to the requests presented.

In the business slump of 1921 and 1922, when wages in a number of trades fell below the city established rate, there was no reduction in the city rates.

The Board of Estimate included in the 1924 budget $500,000 to meet any increase in rates due to the prevailing rate of wage law. Although the Controller had and has the power under the law to pay the prevailing rate to any one so entitled without action by the Board of Estimate, he did not adjust claims payable from this amount during 1924.

In 1925 the $500,000 allowance to take care of prevailing rates and other wage increases, was increased to $1,000,000 at my suggestion, Mr. Hanna will recall that after the conference which I had with him and other labor men, I approved for payment the specific requests brought to my attention.

I have never intentionally said or done anything to hurt the feelings of those advocating the cause of labor or any other righteous cause.

I am quite sure that organized labor in this city will understand the motive which prompted the introduction of the resolution in opposition to me. It was most unfair and wholly unwarranted by the facts.

I have been fighting the battles of the people against the increased fare interests and the underworld interests that want a wide open town with pool rooms and gambling hells openly conducted. I have fought against the sale to the people of this city of putrid meat and foodstuffs which were unfit for human consumption. I have directed my Health Commissioner to prosecute such violators to the full extent of the law. Is organized labor going to permit itself to be used for political purposes?

What has happened that Brady, Holland and Hanna have turned against me? I have been the friend of organized labor and have tried to better conditions of the laboring man because in so doing it has been my conviction that I have been fighting for the cause of humanity.

JOHN F. HYLAN.
Mayor.

Mr. Brady, when told of the Mayor's letter, said he did not care to reply at this time but might do so later.

Rockefellers Convene in Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—The Rockefeller Family Association, consisting of all descendants of the original stock that settled in Germantown, N. Y., in 1724, met for its annual reunion in the Hotel Sherman today. The association will hold five similar meetings throughout the country during this month and in September there will be a combined reunion in New York.

HYLAN REITERATES WALKER IS PUPPET

Tells Three Meetings Opponent Was Picked So "Interests" Can Pull the Strings.

MAYOR CITES OWN RECORD

Praises Police Department and Promises More Opera and Playgrounds If Elected Again.

Mayor John F. Hylan, for the first time in his primary campaign, read from a small pamphlet, apparently "Seven Years of Progress," last night, a list of the improvements he said he had accomplished in New York. He was speaking to an audience of 5,000 persons in Prospect Park, Brooklyn. The Mayor spoke for five or ten minutes before the scheduled concert of the evening, given by the Police Band. Referring to himself in the third person, at the beginning of his address, he told the audience, "the Mayor of New York City has given you more schools in the years of his Administration than all the rest of the Mayors before him put together.

"Through the municipal market established in his Administration he has saved the people of New York $90,000,000, which means a saving of from 10 to 20 cents per day for every person in this city. For the last two years the city has spent $5,000,000 a year to keep together families of orphans who were formerly scattered in different institutions. Nine thousand homes have continued united, instead of being broken up, under this improvement."

He spoke of the improvement in Jamaica Bay under his Administration, and also referred to the Rockaway and Coney Island boardwalks, declaring that the latter would be lengthened next year if he were Mayor. As he launched into an attack on the "traction gang," the Mayor dropped the third person.

Hits Walker As Puppet.

"Olvany and my other opponents, backed by the traction ring, put Walker up as a candidate because they know they can pull the strings through him to increase the fare as soon as they wish."

A man in the audience rose and shouted, "But they won't." The Mayor bowed and said, "Thank you, thank you."

"The only strings they can pull through me," he said, "are the strings tied to the interest of the public, and they know it. If I am Mayor for another term, the city will build its own tunnels and operate its own subways."

Other improvements he promised were more municipal operas and better recreation facilities for the city's children. "You have the healthiest large city in the world," the Mayor said, and added that the city's death rate had decreased in his Administration. He complimented the Police Band and told the audience that it was the best Police Band in the country. "Major crimes have decreased by 33 per cent. during my Administration, and the Police Department, formerly headed by civilians, has become much more efficient under the leadership of a thorough policeman, Commissioner Enright. You are protected by an excellent Fire Department, using the best apparatus in the world."

From Brooklyn the Mayor went to the Hotel Pennsylvania, where he addressed the women's section of the Hylan Five-Cent-Fare Club.

"The most despicable people in the underworld used to operate within a short distance of this very spot," he said. "They want to come back. They want the man named by the minority to take office so that they can collect on it. I don't believe the women of this city want this condition to come back again. If the man designated by the minority is elected he won't stop it. He can't stop it."

"We want a humane Government which will continue to protect the people from this sort of exploitation. We are not going to hobnob with a poolroom king and a traction-increased-fare lawyer and having gambling rampant again and other vice."

The Mayor then went to the meeting room of the men's committee, where he listened to favorable reports of committee heads.

Says Rothstein Aids Foe.

Speaking last night at a meeting of the Ridgewood Community Council, in the auditorium of Public School 93, Forest Avenue and Madison Street, Ridgewood, Queens, the Mayor linked the name of Arnold Rothstein with those of Judge Olvany and Gerhard M. Dahl of the B. M. T. It was the first time since the Mayor began what he calls the "campaign against the underworld element backing Senator James Walker," his Democratic opponent, and he mentioned names. Previously he had merely used the term "Pool Room King." The Mayor maintained that Rothstein and Dahl are behind Olvany in the campaign to secure the nomination for Senator Walker.

"It is true that there is somebody coming into this borough to try and break up the equilibrium of the present City Administration," the Mayor said. "If somebody came into your home and tried to break it up you would soon throw them out. Judge Olvany has around him as advisers in Tammany Hall a B. M. T. lawyer who is striving to get an increased carfare, Tom Chadbourne, and Arnold Rothstein, the big gambler. Hylan stands in the way of Tom Chadbourne. Hylan stands in the way of an an increased fare.

"The sixty million dollar increased carfare gang wants to get rid of me at all costs. Hylan stands in the way of the wide open town which Judge Olvany and the Tammany designee for Mayor will give you if they are successful on primary day. They want a Mayor who will be used by the Traction Trust. The Tammany designee for Mayor likes but two things; one of them is money, and plenty of it—the other I will not mention, because there are women present. I am ashamed to mention it, but you can use your own judgment."

Hylan was introduced by Assistant Corporation Counsel James B. Emmerich as "the best Mayor New York ever had."

SPEECHES SENT BY RADIO.

Heard Clearly, Even the Whispers of Walker to Smith.

The speeches at the Smith-Walker rally in Prospect Hall in Brooklyn last night were broadcast through Station WJY, one of the stations of the Radio Corporation of America, at 33 West Forty-second Street. They were not rebroadcast.

Reception of the speeches was exceptionally clear, and the great radio host listening in heard as distinctly as though sitting in the hall itself. The asides and whispers of Senator Walker as he turned occasionally to Governor Smith to have a date placed were also heard with amusement. This was when the Senator was reading "from the record" of five-cent fare legislation which he had championed at the capital.

In many of the regular Democratic clubs through the boroughs members heard the speeches over radios which, in some cases, had been installed specially for the night. Down on Staten Island, for instance, a radio drew a great crowd to the Walker-Tiernan headquarters in the Hugot Building at St. George, S. I. The auditors at the Staten Island club burst into cheers when Governor Smith made his telling points against Mayor Hylan.

Pinioned Driver Saved From Plunge Into River; Rescuer Cuts Off Power, Stops Truck on Brink

The presence of mind of a Bellevue Hospital ambulance driver last evening saved Jacob Levine of 132 North First Street, Brooklyn, from being drowned in the East River on the motortruck on which he was pinioned. James Harrison, the ambulance driver, of 310 East Thirty-fifth Street, seeing that Levine was held fast between the bent steering wheel of the motor truck and the seat, leaped on the vehicle, severed one of the wires leading to the magneto operated the brake with his hands and brought the truck to a stop five feet from the stringpiece.

Levine a few minutes before had rammed a motor truck of the Street Cleaning Department at First Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street. The impact beat the steering wheel of his vehicle against Levine's body, preventing him from reaching the brake. At the time of the crash the truck, loaded with stone, was headed east.

Harrison and J. McCann, Assistant Superintendent of the hospital ambulance garage, which faces on Twenty-sixth Street, near the river, were testing a new ambulance on the street. They heard the shouts of witnesses to the accident, as the motor truck, with Levine pinned helpless in the seat, came rumbling toward them.

Harrison jumped out of the ambulance and made a flying leap to the motor truck when it was about half a block from the river edge. He swung up the cowl and ripped loose the wire when the vehicle was about forty feet from the stringpiece. Then he pressed on the footbrake with his hands and stopped the truck.

Levine had to be pried out of his seat with crowbars before he could be carried into the hospital, where he was treated for bruises.

NEGROES STAB BOY TO DEATH IN STREET

One Lunges at Youth Chatting With Friends, Then Cows Pursuers With Pistols.

BOTH ASSAILANTS ESCAPE

Friends of Victim Rush at the Attackers, but Are Halted by Threats to Kill.

Thomas O'Connor, 16 years old, of 2,640 Eighth Avenue, and his friend, Maynard Warner, 17, of 2,574 Eighth Avenue, were talking with a group of other boys at the corner of Edgecombe Avenue and 141st Street last night when two negroes assaulted them without warning, stabbing O'Connor to death and escaping after a chase during which they held pursuers off with pistols until they had disappeared in 140th Street east of Eighth Avenue.

The neighborhood where O'Connor stood with his friends is inhabited by both white persons and negroes, but all the boys in the group were white.

The two negroes were sauntering along unnoticed, the boys said later, until they reached the group at the corner. Then one of the negroes, who was described as a mulatto, about 25 years old, weighing 150 pounds and wearing a brown suit and a gray cap, flashed a knife and lunged directly at O'Connor, stabbing him in the heart.

O'Connor started to step toward him, but collapsed on the sidewalk.

Warner rushed toward him. The second negro, darker hued than the first, a little older, with a mustache and wearing a blue or black suit and cap, picked up a barrel hoop of iron lying in the street and struck Warner on the right arm. Warner stopped a moment and then the two negroes ran east through 141st Street toward Eighth Avenue.

The boys with O'Connor and Warner, stupefied with amazement during the attack, started in pursuit.

"Pull your gun and shoot," they heard the mulatto shout to his companion, and, they said, both negroes turned with pistols leveled at them.

The boys stopped and again the negroes ran, but as they approached Eighth Avenue the boys followed, joined now by a crowd drawn by the excitement. Again, they said, the negroes stopped and forced them with pistols to halt, turned into Eighth Avenue and ran south to 140th Street, where they turned east and disappeared, possibly into a tenement.

Meanwhile pedestrians placed O'Connor in a taxicab and took him to Harlem Hospital. He was dead when they got there.

Immediately after the assault was reported to the police at the West 135th Street Station by Patrolman Conboy, Captain Edward Mulrooney and Lieutenant Louis Hyams, accompanied by Detectives Tierney, Burns, Stapleton and Frinter and several uniformed men, made a thorough search of the neighborhood but found no trace of the negroes.

CADETS SEIZE CANTON AND FIGHTING BEGINS

Alleged Red Militarists Arrest 100 Officials and Bring Up Their Artillery.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The Whampoa Cadets, military students of alleged Bolshevist tendencies from the school organized by Dr. Sun Yat-sen, occupied the City of Canton on Aug. 25, and arrested more than 100 South China Government officials, according to a cable to the State Department today from Consul General Douglas Jenkins in Canton, dated Aug. 25, 6 P. M.

The officials arrested by the cadets were alleged to have been implicated in the assassination of Liao Chung-hoi, Finance Minister, and also took the brother of Hu Han-min, the Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, and formerly acting generalissimo.

At the time the cable was filed the cadets were holding strategic points and were carrying out a house to house search. They had also brought in artillery, and fighting was predicted, with the possibility that the cadets might attack General Li Fok-lam on Honan Island.

General Li Fok-lam is described as a powerful personage of rather conservative inclination who has a castle on Honan Island in the Canton area.

TWO HOUSES BURN ON EVE OF WRECKING

Fire in West 39th Street Dwellings Threatens Big Buildings for a Time.

SIX ARE GUIDED TO SAFETY

Policeman and Janitor Take Out Last Tenants of Property Ordered Demolished.

Favored by a flying start, a fire originating in a five-story dwelling house at 256 West Thirty-ninth Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, spread to an adjoining building in a block of four houses, yesterday afternoon and with flames leaping a score of feet above the roof threatened the huge office buildings at the rear on Thirty-eighth Street.

One aged woman, Mrs. Nora Shea, and two small children were rescued from the second of the houses to catch fire by Patrolman William F. Boyd and Charles Smith, the janitor and father of the children, who carried them out as the flames began to penetrate the walls. At the house on the further side from the fire they assisted Mrs. Louise Marbrey and her two-year-old son Roy from the second floor to the street. Mme. Mabrie Burge, who had a millinery shop on the first floor, clung to her rooms while smoke swirled through the street and water poured down from above.

Firemen entered the Plymouth Hotel on Thirty-eighth Street directly behind the blazing house and averted the danger of spreading flames by playing streams of water upon the fire from an upper story. Others attacked the blaze from front and side. Nine fire companies, three hook and ladder trucks, a water tower and a rescue squad answered the two alarms.

Both burned buildings and the two others connected with them were to have been torn down to make way for a new office and factory building. All tenants had been given final notice to leave and the last family remaining in the house where the fire started had moved out yesterday morning.

Because it was one of a series of blazes in buildings under demolition, Acting Chief Joseph Martin declared that its origin was suspicious. The fire marshal started an inquiry. Deputy Fire Chief George Ross declared, however, that there was nothing to indicate incendiarism.

JAPANESE RAIL LINK SOUGHT WITH SOVIET

Coming Moscow Conferences Will Also Affect China, Esthonia and Latvia.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Radio to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Aug. 27.—Much importance is attached to the Russo-Japanese railroad conference scheduled to open here on Oct. 20. It will be attended by railroad, maritime and transport representatives of both countries. The official languages will be Japanese and English with the final protocol written in English.

The purpose is to arrange a through transport for passengers and goods. This has especial interest in view of the following facts:

One, the reported intention a few months ago of the Manchurian war lord Chang-Tso-Lin to build subsidiary lines linking with Japanese roads in Manchuria and Korea to compete with the Chinese Eastern Railroad. Two, the immense amount of contraband trade across the border of Asiatic Russia which a recent issue of Moscow Economic Life declared was carried on by regular convoys, protected by guards armed with machine guns and totaled in 1923 and 1924 fifty per cent. more than the legal imports.

Chang-Tso-Lin's project became public, curiously enough, just about the time the Chinese troubles began. He was then supposed here to be backed by Japanese money, but it is now believed that he has since made a deal with the English which may explain the Japanese desire to link up with the Russian system. At any rate, they have also asked to be allowed to take part in another railroad conference beginning here on Nov. 2, between the Soviet Union and Esthonia and Latvia. This has been agreed by the union. If an accord is reached, passengers can go to Paris from Tokio in fifteen days instead of forty by way of America.

Both conferences are to be attended by representatives of the Chinese Eastern railroad. Economic Life states that the Russians hope to pass a large part of the trade with Japan through Vladivostok, thus renewing activity there and helping the reconstruction of the Far Eastern commercial fleet. Japanese help is also expected against contraband.

The Japanese are also pinning high hopes on the coming conference. Three dozen of Japanese business men now in Moscow probably outnumber all other foreign business men put together. The prospects of their success are enhanced by the fact that the Soviet press keeps insisting on an alleged English intention to make the coming customs conference at Peking the occasion for forming a united bloc against Russia.

ROTARY CLUB CELEBRATES.

Its Sixtieth Anniversary Observed at a Luncheon.

The New York Rotary Club celebrated its sixteenth anniversary at a luncheon at the Hotel McAlpin yesterday. James A. Garrity, Governor of the Twenty-ninth District of International Rotary, was the guest and chief speaker.

Explaining the principles and accomplishments of Rotary, the District Governor declared that Rotary had been a means of centring the mind of the average business man on the need of the community instead of the more selfish need of his family.

The organization, he said, had been a means of promoting that fellowship and friendliness and brotherhood which was the hope of the world as well as Rotary.

Ex-President Alfredo Zayas of Cuba, who is a Rotarian, was a guest of honor.

BOY AND GIRL KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Youth Riding Bicycle Struck by Truck—Child Steps From Behind Car and Is Hit.

SIX ARE INJURED IN CRASH

Man Is Held for Reckless Driving—Six Others Slightly Cut in Long Island Smash-Up.

An unidentified boy, about 15 years old, was knocked down and run over by a motor truck while riding a bicycle last evening at Grand and Gates Street, Jersey City, and received injuries from which he died a few minutes later on his arrival at the Jersey City Hospital. James Mooney of 332 Chestnut Street, Newark, driver of the truck, was arrested on a technical manslaughter charge.

Mrs. Mary Strenk, 59 years old, of 14,712 Humboldt Avenue, Jamaica, Queens, died yesterday in Mary Immaculate Hospital, Jamaica, of injuries received on Aug. 22 when she was knocked down by an automobile owned and operated by Elmer Hendrickson, 122-32 Rockaway Boulevard, South Ozone Park, at South Street and Rockaway Road, Jamaica.

Elizabeth May Gillis, 8 years old, of Merion, Pa., was instantly killed by an automobile yesterday near her parents' Summer home at 3,408 Central Avenue, Ocean City, N. J. Witnesses said she had stepped from behind a parked car into the path of the automobile being operated by Lewis Breckley of Bay and Eleventh Avenues, Ocean City. The driver was arrested on a technical manslaughter charge, but was released in $2,000 bail, pending an investigation.

Two men and a woman were seriously injured and a man, two women and a little girl received slight cuts and bruises when the cars in which they were riding Saturday crashed at Ridgewood and Paramus Avenues, Paramus, N. J. Morris J. Zimmerman of 98 Grand Concourse, the Bronx; his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Grace Zimmerman, of the same address, and Louis Bernstein of 712 West 180th Street, occupants of one car, were removed to the Hackensack Hospital. Zimmerman, who was arrested for reckless driving, suffered internal injuries, his daughter-in-law a broken left leg, and Bernstein had both hips fractured.

The occupants of the other car were Robert Bruce of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Fred Bruce of Glen Rock, N. J., and her daughter, Florence, and Miss Floretta Brainard of Springfield, Mass. They were treated at the same hospital.

In another collision between automobiles at Lakeville Road and Powerhouse Road, Westbury, L. I., six persons were slightly cut by fragments of glass. John J. Lewis was driving his wife, Prudence, their son, John Jr., of 317 Tuckahoe Road, Yonkers, and Mrs. Agnes Merrill of Great Neck, L. I. Abel Thomas, chauffeur for William P. Langley of 136 East Seventy-first Street, this city, with a Summer home at Westbury, was driving Mrs. Langley. All of the occupants of the Lewis car were attended at the Nassau Hospital, Mineola, and went home. Mrs. Langley and her chauffeur were attended at the Langley home by a private physician.

As he lay on the street with bruises sustained when his machine collided with a motor truck last evening as he was chasing a speeding taxicab at First Avenue and Twentieth Street, Motorcycle Policeman Maurice W. Taubin wrote out summons for the truck driver, charging him with making an improper turn and causing the accident.

Taubin had started in pursuit of the taxicab three blocks south. He was gaining on his quarry when the truck, owned by the Consolidated Gas Company and driven by Joseph M. Kyle of 2 Horatio Street, made a turn in the wrong direction, Taubin alleged, shutting off further pursuit and preventing the policeman from swerving before his machine crashed into the vehicle. Taubin was attended for slight cuts and bruises by Dr. Schwartzsarb of Bellevue Hospital.

WIFE ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

After a newspaper photographer had taken her picture, in spite of her tearful protests, Mrs. Edith Rosenberg, 36 years old, of 103 Pulaski Street, Jamaica, tried to throw herself before an automobile in front of the Town Hall in Jamaica yesterday. However, the driver was quicker than the woman, and Mrs. Rosenberg was not hit. Her face struck the pavement.

A few minutes earlier the woman had sat in Jamaica Police Court and heard Magistrate Kochendorfer hold her husband, Frederick Rosenberg, in $25,000 bail on a charge of grand larceny in stealing silverware from homes in Jamaica. When the case was completed and Rosenberg was being led away to a police cell, in default of the bail, his wife kissed him and then departed from the building in company with her four-year-old daughter.

On the steps of the building the photographer faced her.

"Please don't take my picture," she cried. "I have a job now—I'm making $8 a week, and that's the only thing that keeps us from starvation. I'll lose my job if my picture comes out in the papers!"

But the photographer took the picture, later losing himself in the crowd.

POTATO CROP STILL SHORT.

Federal Report Tells of Blight and Rot in the East.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP).—Housewives who have been paying two or three times as much for potatoes this year as last received little promise of relief in a résumé of the potato situation published today by the Agricultural Department.

The potato shortage, the department said, applies to the late crop as well as the early, and to sweet potatoes. The weather recently has been favorable for a larger late production, but on the other hand, the crop will have to run the gauntlet of possible early frosts.

There have been reports of a tendency to blight and rot in the Eastern producing sections. Virginia, Kansas and Kentucky have been furthest behind in production thus far, and shipments, as a whole, are about 10 per cent. below last season.

EXPRESS HEAD SEES TRADE COMING BACK

New York Company President Asserts Public Soon Will Tire of Taxicabs and Big Tips.

WILL NOT MEET DEMANDS

Leader of Strikers' Union Declares He May Seek Injunction Against Trunk Carrying by Taxis.

W. F. Draper, President of the New York Transfer Company, said yesterday that he was not worried by the strike of his expressmen and that he felt confident that the public would soon weary of paying porters, taxicab rates and then tipping taxi chauffeurs to have their trunks moved from the stations to their homes. He said he was sure that the business would come back to them and that in the meantime the transfer men were standing pat and did not intend to negotiate or attempt to meet the demands of their former employes.

"Figure it out for yourself," said Mr. Draper. "It would cost you 80 cents for a taxicab from the Pennsylvania Terminal to Seventieth Street, say, and 25 cents for a porter to put your trunk on the cab and 75 cents to get the driver to take it upstairs. That would be a minimum charge of $1.80 for what we charge $1 for, and it might be much more. People will do that in an emergency, but nobody will try it more than once or twice. We are not worrying at all. We know perfectly well that our business will come back in time. We are not attempting to negotiate with our men. They will never get an eight-hour day again, and we cannot increase our pay. On the other hand, we are making no attempt to increase our rates. It is up to the men and the public. We are standing pat."

Martin Lacey, head of the strikers' union, said yesterday that his pickets had told him of violations of the taxicab laws by taxicabs which have been carrying trunks and other baggage without carrying a passenger. Another law prohibiting cabs from carrying on their running boards baggage which extends beyond the hub line had been violated, he said. He had made a complaint to Deputy Police Commissioner John Daly, said Lacey, regarding these violations and Commissioner Daly had said he could not interfere in an emergency, and that if he could not find a truck to handle his luggage he would ask a taxicab driver to carry it. Lacey said he might attempt to obtain an injunction against the Yellow Cab Company for the alleged violation of these laws.

The Westcott Express Company paid off its drivers and baggage handlers yesterday, each man receiving the pay due him up to midnight on Monday, when the strike started.

Two acts of disorder last night were reported by officials of the Yellow Taxicab Company to the police of the West Forty-seventh Street Station, as having been committed by striking baggage men. In each instance the seats and interior woodwork of taxicabs were slashed by vandals who escaped.

One taxicab was hailed on West Twentieth Street, between Tenth and Eleventh Avenues, by an unidentified man, who had a trunk in the curbside trunk, which was strapped to the chauffeur's seat of the machine. Going east on West Twenty-eighth Street and Ninth Avenue, the driver heard a crash and looking around said that the strap holding the trunk had been slashed.

The trunk was lying in the street. The driver and the passenger saw a group of men fleeing into an alleyway. The driver sought a policeman, but failing to find one, returned to his taxicab and found that the seats and woodwork had been slashed and ripped.

Twenty minutes later a Yellow taxicab was hailed at Sixty-third Street and Broadway by a passenger, and the driver ordered to go to a certain address. Going west on Fifty-third Street, at Eighth Avenue, the driver looked around and observed that his passenger had disappeared. He stopped and examined the seats and found the cushions slashed and the woodwork ripped.

HIGH TARIFFS ABROAD ASSAILED BY CAPPER

Senator, in Vienna, Says They Block Business and Indicate a Non-Cooperative Spirit.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Aug. 27.—Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, in Vienna on the way through Europe, in a talk to a NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today, said that on this, his first trip to Europe, he was studying the international outlook and endeavoring to see whether European countries are recovering from the war.

The Senator was impressed, he said, by the erection of high tariff walls and the spirit of nationalism prevailing everywhere.

"It seems becoming the general practice to levy high tariffs on all imports in an effort to protect home industries," he said. "There is no spirit of cooperation. I think these high tariffs only serve to block business generally and upset the traffic."

The Senator said he believed that Austria could do more toward regaining her standing if she were financially helped in intensive farming.

Senator Capper was received by many important Government and other high officials in his effort to gather information.

He left tonight for Geneva via Venice and expects to arrive in time for the opening of the League Assembly.

Belgian Royalty Leave for India.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 27 (AP).—King Albert and Queen Elizabeth, dressed as simply as scores of other travelers, today left Brussels for their three months' incognito journey to India. Hardly fifty people gathered at the station to see them off. The Queen spent the last few minutes giving Prince Charles, second of the royal sons, enough good advice to last him during his parents' absence.

BRITISH DENY AIM TO EMBARRASS US

French Debt Agreement Is Regarded as the Only Way to Get Same Treatment as America.

INSIST ON EQUAL RIGHTS

Even With £12,500,000 a Year From France, England Will Still Be Far Short of Amount Paid Us.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—The suggestion that the arrangement whereby Great Britain will content herself with a payment of £12,500,000 yearly from France only if the United States makes more favorable terms with the latter than she has with England or Belgium was designed as a method of "passing the buck" to the United States is denied emphatically in official quarters here. It is represented as a logical result of the application to the Balfour principle that Great Britain must be reimbursed by Germany and her allies for her payments on her own American debt, and the Churchill principle that France must meet the British claims pari passu and proportionately to her payments on the American debt.

The same view is expressed by Americans qualified to talk authoritatively on Anglo-American relations. Ambassador Houghton, in his interview with Austen Chamberlain yesterday afternoon concerning which so much curiosity was aroused, was merely receiving British views and explanations on some points of France's note to Germany, it is declared, and did not discuss the debt at all with the Foreign Secretary. Moreover, the view is expressed that to try deliberately to throw on the United States the whole onus of deciding the principle on which all these international debts would be settled would be contrary to the spirit Great Britain constantly displays in her diplomatic dealings with the United States. The fact that in this case she is led into a position in which she seems to be putting an unpleasant dilemma up to the United States is held to be only the result of the difficult position wherein she finds herself.

England Still Short £17,500,000 a Year.

By making a promise to accept £12,500,000 from France, Great Britain is considered, in well informed British circles, to have practically abandoned the stand she took in the Balfour note. To meet her American payments and repay herself for those already made she must get from somewhere £40,000,000 annually. If she realizes £10,000,000 under the Dawes plan from Germany and France accepts her terms there will be £17,500,000 to collect from somewhere. An agreement with Italy still remains to be negotiated, but nobody dreams it will amount even to what now is asked of France, and with the Russian debt practically written off the prospect is pretty black, though some smaller nations have already promised to contribute surprisingly generous sums.

As a matter of fact, the latest reports from Germany received in unofficial quarters suggest the Dawes scheme next year will produce disappointing results. Under it last year England got £9,000,000, but reports for the current year seem to show Germany will be paying sums which will give England only £6,000,000 or £7,000,000.

If the United States stands firm by the British and Belgium precedents in dealing with France, the pari passu principle comes into play. British opinion is quite convinced of the uselessness of reducing British claims against France if the only effect of doing so is to increase France's power of paying the United States. England holds she has just as much right to consideration as America. With her enormous taxation and growing financial burden, English public opinion would make it hot for any Government which assented to France's paying more to America than to England. But it is feared in some quarters that if occasion should arise for England to ask France for more than £12,500,000 she would find that the mere conditional mention of that sum would make the task of getting a greater one very difficult.

Hope for Concessions Here.

The real hope underlying the Anglo-French settlement is that the United States of America, when all the facts are before it, will make a further advance on the principle of considering capacity of debtors to pay. That principle was not introduced when Stanley Baldwin negotiated the Anglo-American debt settlement. Yet it is the underlying principle of the Dawes agreement, which is considered here of American paternity. Some deference was paid to it in the Belgo-American bargain and it is hoped that the American Debt Commission will allow it even freer play in next month's negotiations with the French. If it does not prove elastic enough to cover the case which France is preparing to present, it is likely that all the Caillaux-Churchill negotiations will go by the board.

M. Caillaux, as he left London this morning, expressed himself as thoroughly satisfied with what he had accomplished. He was closeted with the French Ambassador in earnest talk until it was absolutely necessary to make a rush to catch the train. He seemed in the best of spirits as he bade farewell. On leaving he made a short statement expressing his thanks for the courtesy of the British Ministers and officials and especially Winston Churchill.

"In the course of our long, sometimes lively, discussion," he said, "Mr. Churchill, while always defending with rare vigor and great courage the interests of his own country, throughout showed a constant friendliness and genuine desire to arrive at an agreement."

Lloyd George and Bradbury Among Critics.

The list of critics of yesterday's debt settlement between Great Britain and France includes the names of Lloyd George and Lord Bradbury, the latter one of England's most noted financial experts. Lloyd George said:

"I am reserving my final judgment until some explanation is given of the discrepancy between the British version of the settlement and the French. At best, if the British account is correct it is not a very good settlement in view of what we have to pay to America on account of debts incurred on behalf of our allies. If M. Caillaux's version is correct—that is to say, if there is to be a moratorium—it is an incredibly bad settlement."

Lord Bradbury, after pointing out what he considers the mistakes in the British action yesterday, says:

"It is to be hoped that these are among the details left over for subsequent negotiation, otherwise the new arrangement merely amounts to writing off two-thirds of the French bonds we at present hold and substituting for the remaining third instead of unconditional obligations a large number of conditions, all of which are in favor of the debtor with no better security for the new bonds being paid than we had for the old ones."

Engineer Gives His Life to Save Passengers; Remains at Post as Train Hits Open Switch

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 27.—Giving his life that 200 passengers riding with him on the Pittsburgh-Buffalo flyer might escape today, Engineer A. G. Miller, aged 55, of Oil City, stuck to his cab, applying every possible brake as he saw his train ride at a fifty-mile-an-hour clip into an open switch below Brae Burn.

The fireman, J. H. Fidler, aged 45, also of Oil City, was severely injured, but late today his condition was reported as "favorable to recovery."

As the engine hit the switch, jumped high into the air and overturned, Miller was pinioned beneath the levers of his cab. Half an hour later he was extricated, horribly scalded, his pelvic bone broken, and suffering from internal injuries. He died at 2 o'clock in the Allegheny Valley Hospital at Tarentum.

The passengers escaped with little more than a severe shaking up and slight cuts and bruises, although the force of the crash overturned the engine tender, toppled the first baggage car on its side and ripped it into a mass of splintered debris.

Baggagemaster Joseph Flynn of Oil City was hurled from his car and escaped death. He suffered severe bruises, however, and was taken to the New Kensington Hospital.

ANGLO-FRENCH DEAL VIEWED AS FEELER

Washington Regards It as a Clever Scheme to Sound Out This Country.

DOUBT IT WILL STAND

Officials Insist It Will In No Way Influence Negotiations on France's Debt to Us.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Official Washington remained unmoved today by the settlement of the French debt terms agreed upon between M. Caillaux and Mr. Churchill at London, any favorable reaction which the French Finance Minister might have hoped for being conspicuous by its absence. The Government, indeed, is as firm as ever in its determination that France must fund her obligation to this country on a basis separate and apart from any arrangement made by her with other nations.

Refusing to be quoted or to have their identity alluded to, high officers of the Government laughed at the suggestion that America would for a moment entertain a proposal to settle on anything like the terms granted by the British Chancellor of the Exchequer. They paid tribute to M. Caillaux's shrewdness and ability in arranging terms which he will probably wish to urge as a precedent when he comes to Washington in September, but they said they thought M. Caillaux and Mr. Churchill could never seriously entertain the idea that France would be able to force the United States into a comparable settlement.

In the minds of those dealing with the French debt to the United States there is only one question to be determined, and that is, "What is the French capacity to pay?" That issue will stand out single and alone when the French Commissioners join the American Debt Commission at the round table. It will not matter then what terms the United States permitted Belgium, what settlement she allowed Great Britain, nor upon what basis M. Caillaux and Mr. Churchill came to an understanding. There will be the one basic question: "What is the French capacity to pay?"

On this phase of the matter Mr. Winston, Under Secretary of the Treasury, was very explicit.

"We will treat France as we have treated the other debtor nations," he said. "The United States will demand full payment of principal based on the French capacity to pay, and at a rate of interest conforming with that capacity to pay."

Senator Smoot, Chairman of the Finance Committee and a member of the American Commission, said:

"The American attitude will not be affected in any way by the London agreement. It will have no bearing on the interest rate of this Government which was settled at 3½ per cent. and which will be adhered to."

Senator Swanson, ranking Democrat of the Foreign Relations Committee declared:

"There can be no intermingling of debt negotiations. They must be kept separate from each other."

Not many here could be found who fancied the understanding between the French and British Finance Ministers would be a permanent arrangement. "Political makeshift" and "scheme to sound out the United States" were two terms applied to it in private conversation.

QUICK BERLIN REPLY AIDS SECURITY PLAN

Note Accepting French Invitation to Conference of Experts Is Delivered at Paris.

GERMAN DOUBTS REMAIN

Liberal and Socialist Press, However, Praises the Tone of the French Communication.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—Herr von Hoesch, the German Ambassador, handed to Foreign Minister Briand tonight the German answer to the French security note delivered in Berlin the first of the week.

The Reich's reply, which is to be published on Saturday morning, thanks France for the moderation of her note and accepts the invitation extended by the Allies to send jurists to London to confirm preliminary details for a conference on the proposed Rhineland compact. Germany expresses hope for rapid progress in the negotiations. The Reich states it has named Dr. Gauss of the German Foreign Office as her expert.

It is learned tonight the French will send M. Fromageot. Sir Cecil Hurst will represent England and Henri Rollin will be the Belgian delegate.

The experts' conference is expected to handle technical issues which have been raised. One issue will be that of the form the proposed arbitration treaties may take. Another will be the drafting of an exact statement of the status of the Cologne occupation, which the Germans desire ended as soon as possible. The experts are expected to collate suggestions of the various Governments and put them in exact legal form and, keeping constantly in touch with their Governments, prepare for the formal conference asked for in the French note.

This speed on the part of Germany produced a favorable impression in Paris this evening, but those in position to know point out that many barriers remain in the way of Germany's entrance into the League of Nations at next month's Assembly.

Germans Await Results of Conference.

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—Whether Germany will accept the Allies' invitation to participate in a conference of Foreign Ministers on a security compact or will insist upon the presence of Prime Ministers as well at the conference in question can be settled only after the allied and German jurists have concluded their deliberations in London. The juridical researches are expected to last fully a fortnight. Consequently Chancellor Luther has gone off on a vacation among the North Sea islands and will not return to Berlin until the middle of September. Foreign Minister Stresemann also leaves the capital on Saturday to resume his interrupted holiday by the seashore.

The reception given the French note by the Berlin press is mixed. France's conciliatory attitude is applauded by the Republican and Socialist organs, but the Nationalist papers either veil their real opinions in pumped-up pessimism or picture the very substantial progress toward a security understanding recorded in the last few days as a mere sounding process, possibly leading nowhere. Yet, while opposition to the whole idea of guaranteeing territorial integrity seems to be crystallizing in their press, Nationalists pointedly refrain from any political move embarrassing to the Luther Cabinet. Thus Hergt, the Nationalist floor leader in the Reichstag and Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, formally declares there is no necessity for calling that committee together, since "fundamentally the situation remains unchanged either politically or juridically."

With the appointment of Dr. Friedrich Gauss as Germany's delegate to the jurists' conference in London a new and interesting figure appears on the stage of international politics. Dr. Gauss is one of those eminent public servants who are virtually unknown to the general public even in their own countries, but who in the cloistered recesses of European chancelleries do the bulk of the work for which statesmen get the credit. All his life Gauss, who is now in the early fifties, has been in the legal department of the German Foreign Office, of which he became head under the republic. At London he will come in for his share of the spotlight that so long has beaten upon Sir Cecil Hurst and M. Fromageot, the British and French juridical experts.

The most enthusiastic comment on the notes is that of the Vossische Zeitung, which exclaims: "Beyond doubt Briand closes the written discussion in the security compact in a manner which its advocates the world over may applaud."

The Berliner Tageblatt says: "Certainly the note prevents any backward step. The real work can now begin. Good-will will not be lacking on our side, but more than that is needed to overcome obstacles which the note does not remove."

The Socialist Vorwärts welcomes the note's insistence upon German entry into the League of Nations, which "is inseparably linked with the security compact."

The Lokal Anzeiger, chief of the Nationalist organs, remarks that France's note has not made it more probable that Germany's conditions for a security agreement will be met, and in its editorial article declares: "After this performance of Briand the German people can approach the London negotiations only with pronounced pessimism."

Date of Meeting in Doubt.

LONDON, Aug. 27 (AP).—It is hardly likely that the conference of German and Allied experts to discuss the security compact can be held here next Monday, as originally intended. Sir Cecil Hurst, legal adviser to the British Foreign Office, whose presence is necessary at such a meeting, will be in Geneva at that time, and the date of his return is at present undecided.

BRITAIN AND MEXICO NEAR AN AGREEMENT

Resumption of Diplomatic Relations Is Expected Soon as Result of Negotiations.

CLAIMS BOARD IS PROVIDED

And Actions for Damage Outside Its Scope Will Be Settled by Diplomacy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Negotiations are understood to have been virtually completed looking to the resumption of diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Mexico and an announcement of a successful issue of the conversations is expected soon.

It is understood that the agreement contemplates the setting up of a special mixed claims commission to adjudicate claims of British nationals for damages growing out of revolutions in Mexico, and that any claim not within this category will be handled by diplomacy.

The present negotiations were resumed recently after a temporary interruption, which occurred during the exchanges between Secretary Kellogg and President Calles concerning conditions in Mexico.

Since the controversy between the Mexican Government and the British agent in Mexico regarding the Evans case the American Embassy in Mexico City has been looking after the British interests. It is now expected that a regularly accredited British diplomatic representative will take over this work, either as Minister or as Chargé d'Affaires.

Informal negotiations between Great Britain and Mexico began in January when a British private citizen, understood to be affiliated with important petroleum interests in Mexico, approached the Mexican Foreign Office on the subject of resuming relations. He represented himself as speaking on behalf of the British Government.

In April, Sir Esme Howard, the British Ambassador at Washington confirmed this citizen's official status and later notified Señor Tellez, the Mexican Ambassador that he was empowered to open negotiations.

Ambassador Tellez is understood to have replied that the Mexican Government would put no obstacle in the way, but, as in the case of the negotiations between Mexico and the United States, took the definite stand that formal relations must first be re-established, after which questions pertaining to claims, conventions and related matters might be determined.

Sir Esme then stated he was authorized to propose resumption of diplomatic relations on exactly the basis that the United States and Mexico had renewed relations. This proposal is understood to have been transmitted by the Mexican Ambassador to the Mexican Government.

The reply is understood to have called attention to the fact that in 1921 Mexico voluntarily invited all nations whose citizens had suffered as a result of revolutions in Mexico to enter into a claims convention for the adjudication of those claims.

HINDENBURG'S VISIT TO LUDENDORFF DENIED

German President Will Not Call on Former General Today, Says 'Competent' Berlin Source.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—Although General Ludendorff's personal organ, the Munich Volkische Kurier, this morning reaffirms its exclusive announcement on the subject, it is denied "in competent quarters" here this afternoon that President Hindenburg will visit his wartime associate in the General's Munich home tomorrow.

Since several Berlin papers, notably the Deutsche Tageszeitung, mouthpiece of the Junkers and usually well informed about such things, discuss the proposed meeting as though it were a foregone conclusion, the assumption is that the Field Marshal has changed his mind about being General Ludendorff's guest.

The Berliner Tageblatt evidently takes this view, observing that "the abandonment of the visit is fresh proof of a correct understanding of his post held by Hindenburg."

Nevertheless the Neue Berliner Zeitung declares the President meant not only to see Ludendorff but to confer again with the former Crown Prince Rupprecht in Munich.

sacrifice of one creditor of France merely conduced to the advantage of another."

Caillaux's Good Work for France.

That is that, and now it is up to Washington.

M. Caillaux has done a good piece of work for France in that not only has he tentatively reduced by a third what England has been demanding, but he has virtually obtained England's aid for his fight for reductions from the United States. That may be a laudable object, but some observers on the Continent, observing the effect on European opinion, think England lays it on thick.

What does the bargain amount to? England says she is ready to let France off with a payment of 2 per cent. annually on her debt of £623,000,000, but wants more if America get proportionately more. If France settles with America on the same basis it will mean payment on $3,500,000,000 of some $70,000,000. But if the same terms applied by Washington to the English debt and Belgium's post-war debt were applied to the French debt, France would pay about $130,000,000.

If in return she had to give England the same terms on a debt of approximately 20 per cent. less, should would have to pay London over £20,000,000 annually, or a total of about $230,000,000 a year to her two creditors. The squeeze play on America is quite clear.

It will be difficult for the American negotiators entirely to escape the situation. America says her debt policy has two bases: first, consideration of each debt separately; second, payments on the basis of the debtor's capacity to pay. But is it not quite clear that in the case of a country owing another nation as well as America, these two principles may be contradictory?

France's case can be considered separately as long as is desired, but when it gets to considering her capacity to pay, there must unavoidably be taken into consideration what she must pay another creditor whose claim is as good as America's and who demands equality of treatment. Therefore, it is hard to see how Washington can escape bearing in mind the force of the British stand as now outlined.

Of course, when it comes to Italy, the situation is more complicated, for Italy not only owes England and America, but France as well.

It requires little gift of prophecy to foresee the criticisms which will be made of the United States if she demands from France a higher rate than 2 per cent.; that is, if she demands what she has been expecting to demand or if she demands more than the scale the British have now fixed.

Asked tonight to explain the probable effects on the Washington negotiations between France and America of the tentative agreement made between France and England, Mr. Caillaux said he could not go into details.

"It is evident," he said, "that the whole business of France's debts is to be decided in Washington."

Pressed for an interview, the Finance Minister added:

"I fought as best I could. They also fought well on the other side. The important thing is that in the battle no blow was given to Franco-British friendship."

Some Ministers Dissatisfied.

Shortly after 9 o'clock M. Caillaux went before the Cabinet to explain the London negotiations. The council lasted an hour. It is understood that several Ministers expressed the opinion that the British proposal as it stood was unacceptable because no account was taken of possible French receipts under the Dawes plan; that is, that France will have to pay whether she receives anything from Germany or not. This may give an indication of the line the French intend to pursue in Washington.

I learn tonight that M. Caillaux, accompanied by one secretary, will sail on Sept. 16 for Washington, with the intention to have a full explanation with the Debt Funding Commission, returning to Paris before the departure of the full French commission to negotiate a settlement. It is presumed that the Finance Minister thinks he can get in the American capital indications that will guide him in instructing the French misson.

In the French capital the leading subject of discussion this evening is how Americans will react to the effect of the London decision to leave on Washington the burden of assessing France's capacity for payment. The general disposition here is to give England the credit for originating this method of handling the situation.

The French press is unanimous in approving M. Caillaux's reservation that under no condition will France pay her creditors more than she gets from Germany. This factor indicates that if Americans study France's capacity to pay out they must consider her chances of getting money in from Germany. If they do not show they think more of the Dawes plan than did the English, who estimated that it offered a 50 per cent. chance, they must be considerate of the fix the French will be in if the Dawes plan does not work.

The Journal des Débats tonight says sentiment has been left out of the settlement and justice as well, and adds:

"If this is true, we recognize that America is the cause. That is why the settlement proposed between Paris and London will doubtless remain subordinated to the result of the coming negotiations in Washington. The English seem to insist on not signing with us until we have dealt with the United States, reserving the right to ask greater advantages if France gives greater advantages to the United States. Our hardest job is coming."

The Temps says it would like to know what Mr. Houghton and Mr. Chamberlain talked about and if there really is a chance of America agreeing to a three-cornered settlement, and adds that whether technically Washington agrees to this procedure, any settlement must in effect take consideration of the double obligations of France.

The Soir says it was calculated in London that England would stand by her offer if America did not ask more than £19,000,000, or $75,000,000, from France.

The Information is optimistic in saying:

"If by a miracle our American friends give us better terms than the English offer, London will reduce its claims."

WILL URGE TEUTONIC UNION

German Delegates, Led by Loebe, to Join Vienna Demonstration.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Aug. 27.—A delegation of 400 Germans, members of the Austrian German People's Federation, an organization promoting union with Germany, is expected here Saturday night, under the leadership of President Loebe of the German Reichstag.

A mass demonstration is planned for Sunday at the City Hall. The understanding is that this will be entirely unofficial, so as not to embarrass the Government just before the Austrian question is taken up at Geneva. The question of union, however, will soon be presented to the League as a self-determination problem.

President Loebe is said to have received an invitation to visit former Premier Herriot in Paris to discuss the union, and will leave Vienna Monday, accompanied by several members of the Reichstag and members of the Austrian Parliament.

One of the main arguments which Herr Loebe will use in favor of the union is that it would have prevented the election of von Hindenburg.

Strike Closes Radiator Plant.

The Bayonne plant of the American Radiator Company has been shut down indefinitely. This announcement was made yesterday by Adams Geddes, general manager of the plant. The action followed a strike on Tuesday by 400 of the 600 employes, who demanded an hourly wage basis instead of a piecework basis. The company has eight other plants.

WOULD CONSULT ENGLAND.

Moses Says We Should Consult Her in Our Settlement With French.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 27 (AP).—Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, Republican leader, who is here with the Congressional committee investigating postal rates, declared today that the United States should constantly consult with Great Britain in deciding on terms for the settlement of the French debt with this country.

This country, he said, must be duly considerate of Great Britain's wishes, because that nation was the first to recognize its financial obligations to the United States and take steps to meet them. The terms of the tentative agreement reached for settlement of the French debt should insure that "Great Britain will be perfectly satisfied."

Senator Moses added:

"I am not of the opinion that our debt settlement should be made dependent on the productivity of the Dawes plan. Whatever obligations we take from these debtor nations, we should take as a principal transaction between creditors and debtors."

PREMIER DEFENDS 4.4 BEER

Tells Congressmen That Ontario Temperance Act Is Not Weakened.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 27 (AP).—Premier Ferguson today received the committee of the United States Congress which is studying the workings of the Ontario Temperance act and 4.4 per cent. beer.

In reply to questions, the Premier intimated that the Ontario temperance administration had not been weakened by the amendment to the Ontario Temperance act providing for 4.4 beer.

He declared that Ontario temperance organizations "went in too much for politics and not enough for temperance."

Germany Agrees to Free Visas.

Although visas will be required as heretofore they will be issued by both Governments without charge.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 27.—Stephan Engler, a minor Government official had been christened the Midas of Budapest.

Engler received word some months ago from Cleveland that he had inherited $2,500,000 from an aunt. He was immediately promoted, became most popular, even with his chief and finally resigned.

In the meantime the money has not arrived, and Engler and his large family are virtually starving.

MERMAIDS GIVE BATTLE.

Four Attack Two Youths Who Try to Steal Their Clothes.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—Two society youths wearing puffy rings of numerous shades around their eyes today and four mermaids figure in a tale told in Berlin today. The four mermaids sought a secluded spot along the banks of the Wansee near Berlin for a bath. The two youths had previously selected the same spot for a quiet discussion of arts and sciences. The mermaids did not know the were observed by profane eyes until the males appeared and jestingly began to remove their wearing apparel.

Believing words were useless in a case of this kind, the mermaids ran to shore and gave proof that they did not belong to the weaker sex.

LOST COIN REVEALS $75,000 PIRATE LOOT

Detective Goes Into Garage After Quarter and Finds Rubber Stolen From Boat.

CRAFT WAS SEIZED AT DOCK

Towed Out in Stream and Cargo Was Transferred—Four Men Are Under Arrest.

A quarter that slipped from the hand of a detective and rolled through a garage door in Williamsburg, Brooklyn, yesterday morning proved the undoing of alleged daring river thieves. It resulted also in the recovery of crude rubber valued at $75,000 that had been stolen in old-time pirate style when a Pennsylvania Railroad Company lighter was boarded and stripped of the bulk of its valuable cargo. Likewise it brought to light news of the robbery which took place on Tuesday night.

When the detective chased his elusive quarter into the garage he found bales of rubber, cases which afterward turned out to contain kimonas, women's wearing apparel and other articles not usually found in a garage. He also found two men making a hasty exist through a rear window. They were caught and placed under arrest. Two others were also held, and other arrests are expected to follow, the police say.

The story of the rubber robbery was told by Captain Johnson of P. R. R. lighter 44, loaded with 550 cases of crude rubber.

Skipper Cowed by Pistols.

Just before midnight Tuesday, Captain Johnson tied the lighter up at the foot of Thirty-third Street, Brooklyn. Two young men jumped aboard and at the point of pistols ordered him to his quarters. No attempt was made to molest him, but one man remained on guard in the cabin while the other went back on deck. Then the skipper heard the sound of a tug making fast to the lighter. Soon he felt the lighter slipping through the water. For several hours the lighter was towed, and just before dawn he felt it stop.

He heard the noise of cases being unloaded, but in his cabin, with the port hole covered by a sack, had no idea where his boat was. The noise of unloading ceased and Johnson again felt the lighter under way. Then, he said, he heard the noise of tow ropes being cast off and the young man who had remained on guard in the cabin throughout the night left him, warning him not to make any outcry.

Lighter Tied Up in Brooklyn.

Johnson said he went on deck and found that his lighter was at the foot of Dupont Street in the Greenpoint section of Brooklyn. He at once notified the police.

Yesterday morning Detectives Hickey and Downing of the Stagg Street Station and Honan of the Fourth Avenue Station were walking along Moore Street, Brooklyn, when Hickey drew a quarter from his pocket to return one borrowed some time before from Honan. The quarter rolled through the door of the R. & G. Garage. Hickey pushed open the door and saw the loot. At the same time he saw two men attempting to escape through the rear window. They were arrested, as were two others in the place.

The men described themselves as Louis Greiff, 59 years old, and his son, Joseph Greiff, 23, of 34 Bogart Street; Joseph Lewis, 46 years old, of 178 Moore Street, son-in-law of the elder Greiff, and Max Bachillan, 25 years old, of 228 Moore Street, all of Brooklyn. The first three were charged with receiving stolen goods and Bachillam was held as a material witness.

Dr. W. A. Brown of This City Suggests Better Histories at Stockholm.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 27 (AP).—Christian education was discussed by the World Conference of Christian Churches today, the topic being introduced by Dr. William Adams Brown of New York, who declared that history must not in the future be taught for narrow ends, as in the past.

"Too long we have been content to teach the history of a part of the church," he declared, "but now we must teach the history of the church as a whole."

The Continuation Committee elected today included the following Americans: the Rev. Peter Ainslie of Baltimore, Bishop Charles H. ATTACKED, SAYS POLICEMAN

Collapses After Telling of Pistol Fight—Overwork, Doctors Declare.

BERNARDSVILLE, N. J., Aug. 27 (AP).—Patrolman Richard Severine collapsed at headquarters early today after telling of an attack by two men who fired upon him in a lonely road while he was going home from duty. Physicians said that he was suffering from overwork.

The assailants opened fire as he was nearing Stephens Hill, the policeman said, the first shot striking the back of the front seat of his automobile causing him to lose control. From the ditch into which his car plunged he returned the fire of the men, who fled after six shots.

The motive for the shooting was not known. State police began an investigation and police dogs were used in an effort to trace the men.

BISHOP FACES NEW TERM.

Adam and Gluck May Be Held 30 Days More Unless They Pay Fines.

Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy granted yesterday a motion by attorneys for Archbishop Platon Rodzestvensky of the Russian Orthodox Cathedral of St. Nicholas, at 15 East Ninety-seventh Street, to resettle the order of committal to jail of Bishop Adam Phillipovsky and his attorney, Maurice B. Gluck. This means that Bishop Adam and Mr. Gluck will have to remain in Ludlow Street Jail thirty days longer unless they pay fines of $250 each assessed against them when they were held in contempt of court.

H. H. Shepard of counsel for Archbishop Platon said there had been no indication that either the Bishop or the attorney intended to pay the fine.

TONG MEN TO CALL ON PECORA TODAY

Chinese Merchants Will Help Him Try to Urge Rival Leaders to End Warfare.

When representatives of the warring Hip Sing Tong and the On Leong Tong leave Chinatown this afternoon for conferences with Acting District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora, in which the prosecutor will try to effect a peace treaty between the tongs, they will be escorted by groups of detectives under Captain Stilson, head of the Chinatown Detective District, and Acting Captain Archipoli, head of the Bomb Squad.

Representatives of the rival tongs agreed on Wednesday to call on the prosecutor, following attempts by the police to bring about a settlement of the feud and to end shooting reprisals which thus far have resulted in five Chinese being killed in this city, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Minneapolis and Baltimore, and the shooting of a Hip Sing leader in St. Louis and two Hip Sing men in Boston. The Boston shootings last Sunday night were the signal for the reopening of hostilities, the first since the signing of the peace compact in this city in March 26.

Merchants in this city connected with the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association and the Chinese Merchants Association, it was understood, also will send representatives to the Acting District Attorney's office to urge the tong representatives to come to a peace agreement. The merchants, it was said, would endeavor to induce two of the highest officers in the On Leong Tong to accompany them to the conference. These men are Su Ho Soon, National President of the On Leongs, and Lee Gee Ming, the On Leong's International Secretary. They had telegraphed to the Chinese Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday that they would arrive here from Detroit yesterday for a conference with representatives of the three business organizations, none of whose members is connected with either tong. They had not arrived in Chinatown up to a late hour last night, it was reported, but the merchants appeared confident that they would be in this city today.

TAFT LAYS EMPHASIS ON OUR RESPONSIBILITY

Prosperity Does Not Clear Us of Debt to the Rest of the World, He Says in Canada.

MURRAY BAY, Quebec, Aug. 27 (AP).—"We Americans should not feel too happy over our prosperity, or at least not feel that it rids us of responsibility toward the rest of the world," said Chief Justice William Howard Taft in an address today to a group of American insurance men who are holding a conference here.

"We should not forget," Justice Taft continued, "that our prosperity is not wholly due to our individual merits. We are apt to think too much of ourselves. We do not realize how fortunate we have been in the material goods we enjoy and the material conditions that aid us. We have recovered from the war better, perhaps, than any other country, but our interest ought to be manifested in a sympathetic feeling for less fortunate countries."

Justice Taft is spending a vacation at his Summer home here.

Mrs. Edward Hillman Takes Husband's Place While He Is Ill.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Mrs. Edward Hillman has taken over the management of Hillman's big department store at State and Washington Streets, following the temporary retirement of her husband, founder of the business, due to serious illness.

According to reports in financial circles Hillman's may be sold to other department store interests, but Mrs. Hillman refused to confirm these rumors today. At the desk in the President's office formerly occupied by her husband, Mrs. Hillman was directing the great business, which has a turnover of several millions of dollars a year, with as much self-confidence as if she had been holding the reins for years.

Mrs. Mollie Netcher Newbury, owner of the Boston Store, is Chicago's other outstanding woman manager of a department store. Mrs. Newbury is in Europe at present.

FRENCH OVERCOME FIERCE RESISTANCE

advancing continuously the Riffians have apparently also decided to change their strategy and resist from the outset of the attack.

While the present operations aim at reconquering the Branes, like their southern neighbors the Tshouls and reaching the line of outposts lost in July it is another preliminary step in the big offensive planned against the Riffians. Today's action gives a foretaste of how difficult the campaign is likely to be when it enters the territory Abd-el-Krim has been busily fortifying. Moreover, it shows the French in moving northward are coming in contact with more Riffian regulars, who obviously are made of different fighting mettle from the rebel tribesmen. The men who crept up to a French outpost last night and killed with knives two sentries stationed a few feet ahead of the firing line were not rebels but Riffian regulars and the French are still commenting admiringly on their "extraordinary daring."

The French moved at dawn this morning in three columns northward from Bab Moroudj and Msila against the eastern half of the Branes territory, a mountainous region varying from 3,000 to 4,000 feet in altitude and sown with rocky buttes and spurs and great jagged rocks projecting high from the slopes like dragons' teeth, against which artillery and aviation can do little. The country beyond the French lines tonight is even higher and worse.

The hardest fighting was encountered on the French right where hiding in a veritable fortress, from carefully concealed trenches, the Riffians' cross-fire raked the French infantry advancing in skirmish line, holding them up until tanks slowly climbed the mountainsides, forcing the Riffians out and allowing the commander of the column to establish headquarters on the peak at 9 o'clock and consolidate the position.

Four American aviators, Parker, Holden, Cousin and Feraud, have arrived at Fez to begin practice flights over the front.

French Pass First Objectives.

FEZ, French Morocco, Aug. 27 (AP).—The operations of the French troops in the Branes territory have been crowned with complete success; the objective aimed at, the Jebel-Amessef ridge, has been occupied and the French are making progress beyond that point.

The task of the French troops was a difficult one because of the nature of the ground and the sudden rise in the temperature, which has registered over 113 degrees in the shade. In this terrible heat, the soldiers, starting from Msila, which has an altitude of 2,000 feet, had to scale slopes rising at some points more than 5,000 feet.

Marshal Lyautey, Resident General, left for France today, accompanied by his military aids and a civil assistant, Count de Saint Quentin, Secretary-General of the protectorate, will leave later by air and join the Marshal in Paris.

REDS AID FROM LISBON.

Communist Bureau There Lends Support to Riff Rebellion.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—Information has reached White Russian circles in Paris that the Bolshevist agency organized for the purpose of assisting Abd-el-Krim has been transferred to Lisbon from Cadiz where Spanish police acitivities interfered with its work. One of the chiefs of this bureau was the notorius Hungarian revolutionist Bela Kun, who, however, having committed the error to participate actively in the recent revolutionary movement in Portugal, was arrested by the Portuguese and transferred to the Canary Isles. He has been replaced by a member of the executive committee of the Third International called Garcia.

Other members of the bureau are the Spanish Communist Roudani and the Russian Michailoff, the latter considered one of the greatest experts in Moscow on all matters pertaining to propaganda among Moslems. He was long active in Egypt and speaks perfect Arabic. A former pupil of the Capri school of propaganda, he took an active part in demoralizing the troops on the Western front during the revolution and edited a newspaper called Truth in the Trenches.

Known as the "North African Section," the Bolshevist office in Lisbon organizes the dispatch of contraband weapons, munitions and food supplies for Abd-el-Krim, shipped from various European ports. The principal aim, however, at present is to foment anti-French movements among the tribes of the southern atlas, the road the transmission agents have chosen being Via Mogador. Roudani is known to Arabs by the sobriquet of Sullman Agha.

URGES LEAGUE ARBITRATION.

Socialist Resolution Demands That Fighting in Morocco Cease.

MARSEILLES, France, Aug. 27 (AP).—That the League of Nations intervene as a referee in the Moroccan war was proposed by the International Socialist Congress in a long resolution adopted today in line with its slogan, "War upon war."

The Congress demands that the fighting in Morocco cease and that France and Spain publish the terms on which they are willing to make peace with Abd-el-Krim's rebellious Riffians. The League of Nations, it was proposed, might then arbitrate the difficulty, and after peace was signed the Riffian State should enter the League.

DEMOCRATS TO BACK WORLD COURT PLAN

Swanson Assures Support in Senate if Amendments of Irreconciliables Are Disapproved.

EARLY VOTE TO BE SOUGHT

Virginian Is Satisfied That Coolidge Can Force Passage of Protocol If He Stands Firm.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Assurance that Democratic members of the Senate will support the Administration proposal for American adherence to the International Court of Justice at The Hague if President Coolidge disapproves amendments that have been prepared by Republicans, which the minority charges are designed to emasculate the tribunal, was given today by Senator Claude N. Swanson of Virginia, the ranking Democratic member of the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Senator Swanson's announcement was regarded by Administration leaders as of great importance, as it appears to assure the adoption of the World Court protocol in its present form. If President Coolidge is able to hold in line Republicans who have pledged themselves to support the instrument without modification. While Senator Swanson has not recently taken a poll of the Senate on the World Court issue, he appeared confident today that the United States would join the tribunal without reservations, early in 1926. Under an order adopted at the last session, the Senate will proceed to the consideration of the World Court protocol on Dec. 17. Just how long the "irreconcilables" will be able to prolong the debate is not now definitely known, but advocates of American adherence are sanguine that an early vote will be taken and that it will be favorable to the international body.

Senator Swanson today expressed the hope that President Coolidge would adhere to his resolution to refuse concessions to Republicans who desire to "save their faces" by offering support contingent upon the acceptance of amendments which Mr. Swanson and other advocates of the World Court regard as objectionable. The Democrats, according to Senator Swanson, have made all the concessions that their consciences will permit and they will insist upon the adoption of the protocol as approved by Presidents Harding and Coolidge and former Secretary Hughes.

Senator Swanson is satisfied that if President Coolidge stands firm he can force the passage of the protocol early in the session of the Senate that will be called to order in December.

The attention of Senator Swanson was directed to statements made by Senator Borah of Idaho, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, suggesting that a comprehensive codification of international law should precede American association with the World Court. Mr. Swanson is not in accord with this view. He insisted that courts frequently preceded parliaments and that in the present instance the United States should join the international tribunal first and then look to a codification of the laws governing comity between nations.

While he did not say so in direct terms, the inference drawn from his attitude was that he regarded the position taken by Senator Borah as one that conformed to the plan of the "irreconcilables" to delay action on the World Court.

Soviet Promises Pre-War Potency to Meet Demand of Masses.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Soviet authorities at Moscow have issued a resolution to restore vodka to its pre-war potency, according to a report from Riga.

This is to satisfy the demand among the masses, particularly the peasantry, for vodka such as they drank in the "good old days" before the Czar's decree shortly after the outbreak of the World War reduced vodka to what its admirers deem almost complete innocuousness.

A great demand for the new strong vodka is expected as a result of the resolution and the Government, it is said, will suspend the manufacture of certain liqueurs in order to concentrate on the fortified vodka, the sale of which will begin early in September.

Buy for Cash and Insure Your Future

ONLY those who buy for cash and keep out of debt may truly say, with Henley: "I am the master of my fate; I am the captain of my soul." Imagine a salary of $6 a day struggling to span the insistent demands of instalment payments aggregating $150 a month or more! What if the family head loses his job? What if a loved one falls ill? The man who mortgages his future earnings by buying on the instalment plan, surrenders his independence; he places his head in a noose.

In an article in the American Mercury, recently, J. R. Sprague related the following, to illustrate the danger of the system of so-called "easy payments":

> "A young mechanic was receiving wages of $6 a day. He engaged himself to pay $30 a month in instalments on a second-hand automobile.
>
> "To one of the local furniture dealers he was obligated for $30 a month in payment of a set of parlor furniture of plush and fumed oak.
>
> "Besides these obligations, he had taken it on himself to buy from other instalment houses a piano, a gold watch, a baby carriage, a diamond ring for his wife and various other articles.
> "Had he met all of these instalments, which manifestly he could not, his monthly payments would have amounted to more than his wages. He defended himself with the surprising statement that he could not help himself. 'Everywhere I go,' he said, 'somebody gets after me to buy something. If I tell them I have no money, they say that makes no difference. I have to buy something to keep them from worrying me.'"

The man who forms the habit of buying at Macy's runs no risk of overspending. This store buys only for cash and sells only for cash. It is able, for this reason, to sell at lowest-in-the-city prices, which, to be more specific, means at least six per cent less than the lowest verified price anywhere else in New York.

BOY ALIEN MAY LOSE SCHOLARSHIPAWARD

Samuel Silverman, 16, on Honor List, Learns Citizenship Law May Bar Him.

ASKS FOR STATE RULING

Father Won't Get Second Papers Till December—Other Winners Are Announced.

A section of the law authorizing the issuing of university scholarships to high school students of New York State may bar Samuel Silverman of 68 Rivington Street, who led the Manhattan list made public on Wednesday, from receiving the scholarship. The section referred to requires that the recipient be a citizen, and Silverman said yesterday that because of his doubt about his legal citizenship he had written to the State education authorities at Albany to get a ruling from them on whether he can claim the scholarship.

The boy is 16 years old, and is a student in New York University, where he is taking a five years' combination course in law and science. He was born in Odessa, Russia, and, although his father has taken out his first citizen's papers, he will not receive the final papers until December. The boy said that he was afraid that this condition made him ineligible for the scholarship by which he would obtain $100 a year for four years.

He was graduated from De Witt Clinton High School last February with an average of 96.84 per cent. in his Regents' examinations, which put him at the head of the Manhattan list. He was valedictorian of his class and took several honors.

ALBANY, Aug. 27.—The letter sent by Samuel Silverman, who headed the New York County scholarship list, inquiring about his eligibility to claim the scholarship because of doubt about his citizenship had not been received by the State education authorities up to tonight. Dr. James Sullivan, Commissioner of Secondary Education, said that if it was definitely ascertained that Silverman was an alien, he would not be able to claim the scholarship despite his position on the list.

"We have these cases every year," said Dr. Sullivan, "and there is nothing for us to do but turn to the law, which is very plain. We have to refuse scholarships to high school pupils who have not lived in the State for a full year."

UNITED MINE WORKERS OF AMERICA.

Inglis Denounces Strike.

On learning of the issuance of the strike order, Major W. W. Inglis, Chairman of the Operators' Negotiating Committee, said, "The issuance of the suspension order is of course entirely unnecessary. It means that the employes will lose more than $1,000,000 a day in wages. Business of all kinds throughout the region will suffer. The market for anthracite will be further invaded by substitutes. All this happens because the miners' leaders, for reasons of their own, refuse to listen to pleas from all sides that no suspension take place pending the making of a new agreement. We urged these leaders two months ago to agree with us that there should be no suspension. We have repeated this, advertised it, and argued for it.

"There are stronger influences at work than a desire to protect the anthracite industry and the anthracite region from the calamity of a strike. The feeling is growing that union policy is dominated by its greater concern in soft coal affairs. This was admitted to be the case in the long strike of 1922, and it looks as though it was true today.

"Naturally, this does not lessen resentment in the anthracite region that this calamity should come upon it. The idea that miners cannot work unless they have a contract that satisfies them in all respects is a relic of the dark ages of unionism. It must yield to reason in the end. So must the strike habit. These recurring suspensions are a curse and a reproach. They must be ended by the acceptance of a sane and reasonable method of settling differences by some form of arbitration rather than by resort to force.

At the conciliation board meeting the miners' representatives asked the operators to permit the full crews of maintenance men to remain at their posts during the suspension. This is the first time in the history of anthracite negotiations that an agreement has been sought by the union covering full time employment of all maintenance men, and the reason assigned for the request is said to be because of alleged abuses in other strikes.

Miner's Voice Complains.

In the past, the miners said, one or two shifts of pump men might be laid off during a suspension and the remaining shift or shifts required to do the pumping work of all three shifts. The operators replied that they would retain only those men necessary to the maintenance of the mines in good condition. They declared that they objected to keeping a full shift of men, to run twenty boilers at a mine for instance, when only five boilers might be required during the strike.

The miners also asked today for a promise that maintenance men shall not be replaced in a few weeks by others. It is understood that there will be no difficulty in the way of this request. Adjustments that may be made at the end of the strike should be retroactive to Sept. 1, the mine workers suggested. This request will also be granted.

The maintenance men do all the work necessary to keep the mines from being flooded and protected in every way. They include pumpmen, engineers, firemen, fuel men, fan men, watchmen, electricians and stablemen.

The present agreement was negotiated two years ago through the offices of Governor Pinchot after miners and operators terminated wage parleys. The United States Coal Commission, of which John Hays Hammond was Chairman, brought the mine workers and operators together after a break, but no contract was made and a suspension occurred. It lasted nearly three weeks, and Governor Pinchot obtained a 10 per cent. wage increase for the men.

The mine workers last July 9 served notice of their demands for a wage increase of $1 a day for day men and 10 check-off. These demands were the backbone of their terms for a new agreement. The negotiations lasted until per cent. for contract miners and the Aug. 4 and terminated when the operators insisted they would not grant any demand that would increase the cost of production at the mines.

800 Men Quit in a Lehigh Mine.

LANSFORD, Pa., Aug. 27 (AP).—Differences over the paying of yardage in one class of work led to a strike of 800 mine workers today at the No. 14 Colliery of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company. There was little hope that the strike would be settled before the anticipated suspension next Monday. This was measuring day in the mines in the Panther Creek Valley, and little coal was produced as a consequence.

MINERS READY TO QUIT.

Pensylvania Collieries Work Feverishly to Fill Orders.

Special to The New York Times.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 27.—One hundred and fifty-eight thousand anthracite miners of this region settled down tonight to preparations for a suspension of operations for an indefinite period, following the strike call issued from Philadelphia headquarters by International President John L. Lewis.

With but three days of operations remaining before the suspension, the anthracite industry ground out hurried orders for local and foreign markets with desperate rapidity. Night forces were placed in almost every colliery of this region, so that the huge pockets which dot the Pennsylvania hill may be well stocked before operations automatically cease with the dawn of Sept. 1.

A fuel shortage is not feared by local coal companies, as the mines have been working full time all Summer and an adequate supply is at hand to last for at least three months.

Employes of local collieries, who are allowed a special low rate on retail coal orders, were notified today that a coal ration plan will go into effect tomorrow. Visions of wartime restriction on coal and shivery days about fuelless heaters came when the mine workers learned that each employe will be allowed to purchase only one ton of coal a month.

Many families in the anthracite region have neglected filling their coal bins. Notwithstanding the apparent negligence of the coal users here, the retail departments of the mining companies are deluged with orders and it is reported that they cannot be filled for several weeks.

Coal haulers worked late last night filling orders which cautious purchasers had placed as soon as it was learned that a tie-up of the coal mining industry was inevitable. The teamsters earned extra bonuses from the purchasers in many instances.

PEACE COMMITTEE KEEPS ON.

Rebuffed by Both Sides, Will Meet Again Today.

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 27 (AP).—A reiteration of the anthracite operators' position, as expressed in Wilkes-Barre yesterday, on the Business Men's "No-Strike" Committee proposition to resume negotiations with the United Mine Workers of America was received here tonight by John H. Uhl and other members of the committee, who were in session since 3:30 this afternoon.

The peace committee requested the operators, by telephone, to take action upon John L. Lewis's statement given to them early this morning in Philadelphia. The operators replied that their position was clearly stated at the Wilkes-Barre conference and that no further action was necessary. The committee will meet again tomorrow night either here or in Wilkes-Barre and continue its efforts to settle the controversy.

MINE CLOSES AT ONEIDA, PA.

Owners Anticipate Strike, Having Three Days' Coal to Break Up.

HAZLETON, Pa., Aug. 27 (AP).—The first mine in the Lehigh field to shut down until a new wage agreement is reached between the anthracite workers and operators was that at Oneida, near here, operated by the Lehigh Valley Coal Company. Officials said today the suspension was due to an accumulation of unprepared coal which is taken from Oneida to the Jeanesville breaker to be broken into marketable sizes, the amount on hand being such that three days would be required to get rid of it.

Operators of other mines said their collieries would be kept going at full speed until quitting time Monday afternoon, the final day of the old wage scale.

An average of 37,358 tons of anthracite is being sent to market daily from the thirty-seven collieries on the Hazleton and Mahanoy division of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, which is a high figure.

Anticipating a suspension, retail dealers near here have stored fuel, and it was predicted today that no immediate need would follow a shutdown. It was felt here that if a suspension comes it will not be long.

COOLIDGE IS NOTIFIED.

President Is Silent After Word of Coal Strike Reaches Him.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 27.—President Coolidge received word tonight through the Labor Department mediators of the issuance of the call for an anthracite coal strike.

No comment could be obtained at White Court from the President and there was no new indication of the policy that he will pursue.

Pinchot Silent on Strike Order.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., Aug. 27 (AP).—Governor Pinchot learned tonight of the suspension order i nthe anthracite coal field, but maintained the attitude of silence which has marked his course since the opening of negotiations between miners and operators. He retired early, declining to comment on the situation.

EARTHQUAKES WELCOMED

If the World Were to Become Rigid, It Is Said, It Would Mean a Deluge and the End.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—The 2,000 learned scientists of the British Association and many American guests, now meeting at Southampton, gave ample proof today of the extreme breadth of the field which is theirs by seriously discussing such widely-separated subjects as the eventual population of the two Poles, schoolboys' diet, sin, the fall of man, earthquakes and mosquitos.

Venerable members of the famous association, many of whom are past 80, awoke to the fact that science has been "taken up" by the younger element, and there appeared at today's sessions for the first time an entirely new factor, "the shingled scientist," in itself an interesting scientific study. As the 75-year-old President, Horace Lamb, solemnly proclaimed the earth's age at about 1,000,000,000 years and gave other vital information many of the young scientists, abbreviated of hair and skirt, sat intently drinking in the wisdom of their elders. These youthful adventurers in knowledge, male and female, are keen on their work, and the older members said it was an excellent thing for science that so much young blood had become absorbed in scientific life.

Today's proceedings centred around the brilliant address of Professor W. A. Parkes, Toronto, who asserted that within a measurable number of years it is not impossible that the sites of our present civilization will be buried under glaciers and that a new civilization will occupy the extreme regions around the North and South Poles. Professor Parkes was attempting scientifically to forecast what was going to happen to the old world. "We amazed the previous generation with the achievements of this," he said, "and when the progress of the last few years is contemplated we may ask where is the world leading itself." He continued: "Among the lower orders the struggle for existence means the survival of the fittest, but with man it is different. He will go on. It is well known that the power of erosion is great enough to have reduced our mass of land to sea level in the course of time. That result has never been achieved. Rejuvenation has kept pace with erosion through hundreds of millions of years."

Dealing with cultural aspects in geology, Professor Parkes declared if the globe became a perfectly rigid body it would be a tremendous calamity, for it would mean the deluge and the end of the present order of things. "Consequently, earthquakes are not to be regarded as an unmixed calamity," he added, "but a climatic change must be regarded as an ever-present factor which may well lead to the populating of the Poles already referred to."

Professor C. Spearman, London, told his scientific colleagues that among England's vast army of unemployed he is certain there are many "potential geniuses" for every man, woman and child is a genius at something, as well as an idiot at something.

After discussing what scientific phenomena might be hidden in the fact that the potato pie had risen from fifteenth to fourth place in the hearts of the British schoolboy, the distinguished scientists adjourned until tomorrow.

PATROLMAN IS INDICTED.

Accused of Felonious Assault for Alleged Attack on Five.

Patrolman Michael J. Byrnes of the Special Service Division was indicted yesterday by the Grand Jury on charges of first and second degree felonious assault in connection with an attack he is alleged to have made, on the evening of Aug. 14, on Mr. and Mrs. Shannon Cormack and three guests at the Cormack home, 102 West Forty-third Street. Byrnes, who was released on bail two weeks ago, following his arraignment on Mr. Cormack's charge in the Magistrates' Court, is expected to appear for pleading to the indictments this morning before Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions.

The policeman, according to statements made to Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings, who presented the evidence to the Grand Jury, forced his way into the Cormack home and committed the attack while Mr. and Mrs. Cormack were entertaining Walter Gilbert, an actor, and Mrs. Gilbert and Charles G. Kaufman.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 27.—Unable to get a diamond ring valued at $3,000 from James McCoy, aged 60, whom they had held up and beaten, bandits with a pair of pliers cut off the third finger of McCoy's left hand, took the jewel and escaped.

The robbery occurred at the Duquesne Steel Works, near Kennywood Park, where McCoy was employed. McCoy was left on the ground unconscious. He was reported to be in a critical condition tonight at the hospital. His skull was fractured.

McCoy is a former boxer and is well known in sporting circles. About thirty years ago he engaged in a bout here with John L. Sullivan.

Court Directs Father, F. H. Prince, to Create $15,000 a Year Trust When He Is 21.

SUPERVISES HIS SCHOOLING

Divorced Wife of Former Lafayette Escadrille Flier Will Have Part Custody.

Through an order signed yesterday by Justice Walsh in the Supreme Court, Frederick Henry Prince, society man and former member of the Lafayette Escadrille, must provide a trust fund with the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston, as trustee, that will assure an income of $2,500 a year for the education and care of Frederick Henry Prince 3d, his four-year-old son during minority, and he must provide a fund sufficient to give the boy an income of $15,000 a year after he becomes 21. The order was obtained by Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Harding Thayer, who divorced Prince in Paris in 1923, and who about a month after the decree became final, married Eugene Van Rensselaer Thayer, former President of the Chase National Bank. Mrs. Thayer is to share in the custody of the child.

The order provides that until the boy is of an age to attend the primary grade in school he shall remain in the custody of his father during June, July, August and September, and in the care of his mother the other eight months of each year.

When young Frederick Henry Prince 3d goes to day school his vacations will be spent with his father. When the boy is of suitable age the Court decreed he must be sent to a boarding school agreeable to both his father and mother and that half of each vacation shall be spent with his mother and half with his father. In the event of illness both parents must be notified.

Mr. Prince was ordered to file an agreement with the Old Colony Trust Company by which he is to deposit securities to assure the $2,500 income for the boy and the $15,000 annual income after the boy is 21.

The agreement will give the trust company power to withhold all or any part of the income and add it to the principal if it appears that young Frederick Henry is suffering from the effects of too much money and developing extravagant habits. The trust company, however, can only withhold the income until the boy is 25 years old, after which the entire net income must be paid to him.

Root, Clark, Howland & Ballantine of 31 Nassau Street represented Mrs. Thayer and Mr. Prince was represented by Martin W. Littleton. Mrs. Thayer was Mary Elizabeth Harding, daughter of W. P. G. Harding, former Governor of the Federal Reserve Board. Her marriage in Washington to Mr. Prince in 1917, after an acquaintance of less than a month, was the culmination of a war romance.

MONGOLS IN MOSCOW DISPUTE ANDREWS

Insist Expedition Did Not Confine Researches to Scientific Work.

NO FRICTION WITH SOVIET

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Aug. 27.—The Moscow representative of the Mongolian Republic today issued a denial of the statement credited to Roy Chapman Andrews that the expedition of the American Museum of Natural History of New York had left Mongolia owing to friction between the Mongol and Soviet Governments.

The representative declares the expedition was ordered to depart: first, because it entered a forbidden zone outside the area mentioned in the agreement; second, for abandoning scientific work for studies of a military and topographical character, and third, including in its membership a Lieutenant of the English army and a secretary of an English consulate as well as two unknown persons not on the list presented to the Mongolian authorities.

MOSCOW, Aug. 27 (AP).—The Mongolian Mission in Moscow issued a statement today reiterating that the third Asiatic expedition of the American Museum of Natural History, under the leadership of Roy Chapman Andrews, had been ordered expelled from Mongolian territory by the Urga Government on the ground that the expedition violated agreements made by its leader with the Mongolian authorities and denying the truth of the statement attributed to Mr. Andrews that friction between the Russian Soviet Government and the Urga Government had created conditions which made a continuation of the expedition's research impossible.

The mission repudiated what it called "Andrews's slanderous statement" that the Mongolian Government was in one way or another subordinate to the Moscow Soviet. Friendly relations between Mongolia and Russia were developing satisfactorily and no friction existed, said the statement.

The statement affirmed that the expedition entered Mongolia in May "fully armed in military fashion," and that it included Lieutenants of the British army, an English consular secretary and other persons whose names Mr. Andrews did not register with the authorities.

The statement continued that Mr. Andrews was cautioned several times to limit his investigations to scientific work, but that he disregarded all warnings and the Government thereupon ordered expulsion.

Another reason for expulsion, according to the statement, was that the expedition began non-scientific excavations in a region in which there were numerous tumuli, or mounds believed to be ancient graves. This had been forbidden. The statement also asserted that the expedition began a topographical survey in the same region and that its members threatened every one who attempted to interfere with them.

Saying that the expedition was last reported to be about 300 miles northwest of Kalgan or in Southeastern Outer Mongolia, the statement continued:

"The Andrews expedition, with seven motor cars and 150 camels, left Kalgan in May fully armed in military fashion. The Peking Government would not assume responsibility for its safety from possible attacks, as the remnants of the defeated army of Wu Pei-fu were scattered along the expedition's route as far as the Altai Mountains."

The Andrews expedition is known to have included Lieutenant Robinson, assistant topographer of the British Army, stationed at Peking. Other members were Lieutenant Butler, an assistant topographer, formerly on the staff of the commander of the American military forces in China; Major L. B. Roberts, topographer, who was a member of the American army in France during the war, and J. McKenzie Young, in charge of motor transportation, formerly of the United States Marine Corps.

LABOR HEADS STUDY INFLUX FROM MEXICO

American Federation Confers With Mexican Officials on Plan to Lessen Immigration.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Ways and Means to prevent illegal immigration from Mexico, which is said to be reaching proportions that seriously affect the labor market in the United States, were discussed here today at a conference in which representatives of the American Federation of Labor and spokesmen for union workers in Mexico took part.

Consideration also was given to a recommendation made by officers of the two organizations for the expansion of the trade-union movement in all the countries of Latin-America.

"In any emergency or crisis that may arise affecting the social or industrial interests of the workers of Mexico, they can depend upon the American Federation of Labor and its members to give them such aid and sympathy as will be helpful," declared President William Green of the American Federation in his opening address today.

"The friendly relationship developed under the inspiring and magnetic influence of Mr. Gompers," he said, "has been firmly established. It is traditional and representative of the labor people of both countries. We should use our best efforts to continue that friendly relationship in order that the bonds of friendship, confidence and good-will built up under the influence of President Gompers will be strengthened."

Following a discussion of the issues involved in the immigration question, a committee was appointed to draw up a declaration of principles for consideration by the entire conference. Those present at the conference were:

William Green, President; Frank Morrison, Secretary; Matthew Woll, Vice President, representing the American Federation of Labor; James O'Connell, President, Metal Trades Department, A. F. of L.; John J. Manning, Secretary, Union Label Trades Department, A. F. of L.; George W. Perkins, President, Cigar Makers' International Union; C. L. Blaine, Secretary, Boot and Shoe Workers' Union; Luis N. Morones, Minister of Industry, Commerce and Labor, Mexico; Eduardo Moneio, General Secretary, Mexican Federation of Labor; Roberto Haberman, delegate, Mexican Federation of Labor; Santiago Iglesias, Spanish-Language Secretary, Pan-American Federation of Labor; Canuto Vargas, labor attaché to the Mexican Embassy; Alberto Mendes, former Secretary General, Orizaba Federation of Labor, and Clement N. Idar, A. F. of L. organizer.

ZIONIST EXECUTIVE OFFERS RESIGNATION

Dr. Weizmann and Associates Announce Dissatisfaction With Part Vote of Confidence.

American Leader Declares Group Not Supporting Executive Gives Little to Zionist Cause.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Aug. 27.—The Zionist congress, which started with riots outside, seems to draw to its close with riots inside the meeting hall. Following the vote of confidence last midnight, with 137 votes cast for the Weizmann Administration and 17 against, and 90 deputies abstaining from voting, the whole Zionist executive body, early this afternoon, announced what amounts to their resignation, as their term of office is just up.

President Weizmann's step took the form of a declaration that, in view of the circumstances accompanying the vote, he and his colleagues will refuse to stand for re-election.

The vote of confidence took place after unusually stormy scenes, with a large crowd in the gallery participating in demonstrations for and against the executive body.

In last night's vote, the Congress Centre, including American delegates, voted a solid bloc for the executive, while the Extreme Right, composed of the orthodox Jewish group, and the Left Wing Socialists abstained from voting. The anti-Executive votes came from the Radicals, including a small "Activist" group led by Jabotinsky.

Explaining the situation which culminated in Weizmann's virtual resignation this afternoon, Louis Lipsky, head of the American delegation, said the opposition's conduct in refraining from voting signified an attempt to attain influence and power disproportionate to their numbers and importance. He considered the action a weapon to coerce the Weizmann administration into political bargaining. He said, "The group of ninety, which abstained from the vote is not bound together by any common principle or policy or even strategy.

"Its formation is to embarrass the executive. The orthodox Right, the so-called Mizrachi group, and the Left Wing Socialist-Labor group are unable to offer any constructive suggestions or alternative policy to that of Dr. Weizmann's Administration. Nor are they prepared to assume responsibility by forming an executive. Instead they stand aside, eager to barter away support for political and personal concessions. Their chief ambition is to get hold of the budget purse strings, although the groups they represent contribute an infinitesimal amount, if anything, to the Zionist revenues.

"They are willing to have us Americans put up money, if only they are allowed to decide how the money will be used," Lipsky said.

Exciting scenes occurred last night in the Congress Building, as over 100 prospective Palestine immigrants, mostly young men, invaded the premises clamoring for visas. They charged that they had been months in Vienna and unable to proceed, as the Palestine Bureau here delays granting visas. They had to be removed by the police. The incident increased the general excitement due to the proceedings of the session.

SPEYER WELCOMES SCHACHT'S VISIT HERE

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—Following a conversation with Dr. Schacht, President of the Reichsbank, this morning James Speyer of New York expressed profound satisfaction with Dr. Schacht's intention of visiting the United States.

"I told Dr. Schacht I was delighted to learn of his proposed trip, which, in my opinion, will contribute considerably to better understanding between German and American financial circles," Mr. Speyer said. "Dr. Schacht is admirably qualified to elucidate Germany's economic position to our people and, on the other hand, his visit will give him personal contacts with American men of affairs that should be most useful to Germany."

Mr. Speyer saw several other leading bankers during his twenty-four hour stay in Berlin, whence he left for Amsterdam tonight.

He summed up his impressions as follows to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent:

"As was generally expected President von Hindenburg is true to his words and making good. All careful observers seem to agree that the worst effects of the Stinnes collapse are over. On the other hand it is freely admitted that Germany needs more liquid working capital. This is not surprising after the exhausting war, especially when one considers that through establishment of a new gold currency the old marks become valueless and as a consequence the very safest of old State and city securities are now worthy only a mere fraction of their former value.

"On the other hand it is well known that the German people are hard-working and have begun to save. Their cities and industries generally are efficiently managed. The essential facts are that Germany now has an absolute gold standard and stable currency which appears amply safeguarded through provisions of the Dawes report accepted by every one. This is a great advantage and perhaps worth the enormous sacrifices which it entailed. Therefore, it seems reasonable to suppose German securities, carefully selected by a competent people, should offer the American investor an opportunity for safe, profitable investment. Germany used to be one of our best customers in many lines, and recovery of this country, like that of others, would be of advantage to us commercially."

It is understood Dr. Schacht will not go to the United States before October. His trip has no connection with the German Rentenbank's negotiations with the National City Bank for a loan of $10,000,000 to $50,000,000 for German agriculture.

TO PAY FILM TAX FOR SEVEN MONTHS

Distributers Will Provide Movies Under Existing Contracts in Connecticut.

TO SUPPLY SMALL HOUSES

Withdrawal of Exchanges Actually Caused by Losing Business, State Official Declares.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 27.—The situation in the dispute between the Motion Picture Producers and Distributers of America and the State Government over payment of the newly imposed tax on films is this tonight:

The distributers have agreed to pay the tax of $10 on every 10,000 feet of film on every picture for which a contract has been made, and to supply the film called for by the contract. Since most of the contracts have seven months to run, it is apparent that there is to be no movie famine in Connecticut for at least that period. Some of the smaller theatres which have short-term contracts will be forced to close, as their contracts expire unless they make arrangements with independent producers to supply them with pictures. The big distributers' organization made arrangements yesterday with Tax Commissioner Blodgett to pay all taxes due since July 7, when the new Tax act became operative, and to pay future amounts due under existing contracts.

Will Protect Small Houses.

This procedure, distributers affirm, is not a surrender in their fight against the tax. The distributing agencies of the organization today continued their preparations to close their offices by Saturday and refused to make any new contracts, thus carrying out the order issued from New York headquarters by Will H. Hays on Wednesday. Contracts arranged on Wednesday but not signed were declared void. The distributers denied that they were boycotting Connecticut. Shutting off, by deliberate and concerted action, the distribution of their product in the State after the expiration of existing contracts was not a boycott, they maintained.

A further weakening of the distributers is seen by some observers in a statement made by their representatives at a conference this afternoon at the Tax Commissioner's office that they are now deeply concerned with saving small theatre owners in the State from financial losses. For that reason, according to Charles C. Pettijohn, counsel for the distributers, even though small theatres have no contracts, films will be supplied them by parcel post or express, at least for the time being.

According to Tax Agent John J. Splain, the Hays organization is employing a "smoke screen" in its efforts to evade continued payment of the tax. The distributers alluded with ominous remarks to the impending closing of all exchange offices in the State when, as a matter of fact, such closing had been contemplated long before the Film Tax bill was introduced in the General Assembly, said Mr. Splain. The exchange offices in New Haven ever since they were opened five or six years ago had been operating under losses, he asserted, and the imposition of the State tax could not be the true reason for the removals.

The meeting at the Tax Commissioner's office this afternoon was held to check up the distributers' records against the State's records of films exhibited between July 8 and Aug. 25. The distributers also presented a list of the films exhibited between Aug. 25 and Aug. 29. Upon these records accounts will be made up for payment of the first half of film taxes.

Scores of exhibiters from Connecticut towns came to this city today and visited film exchanges in hopes of getting contracts for pictures before the exchanges actually closed. They found the managers and staffs at the offices of Famous Players, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, First National, Universal, Fox, Warner Brothers and United Artists all preparing to close.

A rehearing before the three Federal Judges who recently held the Tax act constitutional was asked this afternoon in a petition filed by distributers.

No Surrender, Says Hays's Office.

Courtland Smith, Secretary of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributers of America, Inc., of which Will H. Hays is President, denied yesterday that his organization is surrendering to the Connecticut Film Tax law.

"Under the law, the Tax Commissioner of the State, William H. Blodgett, is given the power to act as a political censor of all films shown in Connecticut," he said, "for the law provides that any motion picture injuring the religious or social sensibilities of any citizen of the State may be banned by the Tax Commissioner, the tax paid on it forfeited to the State and the license of the exhibitor revoked. The Commissioner has uncontrolled discretion, and no individual or body has the power to review his findings.

"In effect, the law makes the Tax Commissioner a censor of all motion pictures exhibited in the State of Connecticut, and the members of this organization would rather go out of business than be censored. We have agreed to pay the State the taxes due it under the law since July 7, when the bill was signed by the Governor, and we will continue to pay the taxes on the present contracts, because we consider ourselves bound morally and legally to deliver the films already contracted for, no matter what the cost may be. But we consider this tax confiscatory and we are being legislated out of business in Connecticut. We certainly do not intend to make further contracts for films which are subject to this tax. When the people of the State realize that this law means that motion picture exhibitors cannot do business in their State, we expect to have our innings."

Gabriel L. Hess, general attorney for the corporation, said that an appeal to the United States Supreme Court was now in preparation and would soon be presented.

Kemmerich took to the water early yesterday morning at Fermarn Island with a one-liter thermos bottle of beef tea, a compass and a watch and headed across the bay toward Warnemuende. He sighted nothing during the entire trip and was forced to battle high seas and crosswinds. Though fatigued, Kemmerich seems none the worse for his endurance test.

They denied the charge of engaging in the white slave trade, stating that the purchasing of girls is an old custom and they moreover were American citizens. They were detained.

Actor Drops Safely in Six Intentional Falls; Breaks Vertebra in Neck in Accidental Plunge

After he had fallen intentionally six times from a stage eight feet high in the studios of First National Pictures, Inc., at 807 East 175th Street, the Bronx, Charles Beyer, moving picture actor, who was being photographed in a screen fight with Milton Sills, fell a seventh time accidentally yesterday afternoon from the same spot and fractured a vertebra in his neck. He is in a serious condition in Fordham Hospital. If he recovers he will have to wear about his neck for months a plaster cast, according to physicians at the hospital.

Beyer, a young man who quit Cornell University two years ago to go into moving pictures, was working with Sills on a picture called "The Unguarded Hour," in which he had the most important rôle of his career as a screen actor. He and Sills were in a fight scene on the stage, in the course of which Beyer was supposed to fall to the ground. The "fight" had been rehearsed several times and the cameras had clicked on the scene several times more. Each time Byer fll safely, landing on a mattress which ha d been placed on the ground for him.

As he stood with Sills on the stage just before the fall that injured him, the cameras came nearer for a "close-up." In that scene Beyer was not supposed to fall, and the mattress had been taken away. In some manner not explained he lost his balance and toppled head first to the ground.

His head struck a concrete paving, it was said, and although he did not lose consciousness he was apparently in great agony and it was feared his neck was broken. Stage hands rushed to his aid and an ambulance was summoned from Fordham Hospital. Even after a preliminary examination there, physicians said his neck might be broken. Dr. Fred Albee, noted expert on spinal injuries, was called into consultation.

Preliminary examinations showed Beyer's right arm was paralyzed. After an X-ray examination it was said Beyer would be in a plaster acst at least three months.

"The Unguarded Hour," which was being made under the direction of Director Lambert Hillyer, was to have given Beyer has best chance, his associates said, and, according to Hillyer and others, the young actor was making good.

Beyer is a native of Newark, where he attended the public schools. He then went to Cornell University for two years. During that time he spent his vacations working in moving pictures in small parts. He showed such promise that he received an offer that caused him to give up college and devote all his time to his moving picture career after the end of his second year in Cornell.

He played recently in "The Pace That Thrills" with Ben Lyon and Mary Astor. At the hospital last night it was said his condition was "serious" and that he would not be able to leave that institution for some time.

SOVIET STARDOM FOR PUNCH AND JUDY

Autos and Telephones to Be Stock Properties in Russia's Modernized Puppet Plays.

MOSCOW, Aug. 27 (AP).—"Punch and Judy" shows are to be raised to a high standard of art in Soviet Russia and made a far more important amusement feature for the people than they previously have been. They are to be comparable to the puppet shows of Italy.

M. Obrastov, a prominent actor of the Moscow Art Theatre, is devoting much time to the improvement of the puppet. He is making the dolls far more flexible and realistic than those of the old days, and also is introducing the motor car, the telephone and modern musical instruments into puppet plays.

The old-fashioned show, with few properties aside from broomsticks and birch-rods, is to be replaced by performances in which most intricate mechanical contrivances will figure. M. Obrastov has studied the wonderful shows given by Chinese producers and will adopt many features of the Oriental performers.

CALLS MOVIES NEW FOE.

Head of Lord's Day Alliance Says They Have Taken Liquor's Place.

STONY BROOK, L. I., Aug. 27.—The Rev. Dr. Harry G. Bowlby, Secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, speaking at the General Bible Conference of the Presbyterian Assembly here today, assailed the theatre, the motion picture industry and professional sporting interests as "the greatest enemies to proper observance of the Sabbath." Motion pictures, he said, have taken the place of liquor as the Sabbath's worst foe.

"Fifteen years ago, the Sabbath in America provided an opportunity for unrestricted revelry which was a disgrace to Christianity," he declared. "Few clergymen or religious workers were brave enough to combat the condition, but those who did found themselves helpless before too great a majority. Then the Lord's Day Alliance, through David G. Wylie, now its President, John F. Carson and William H. Foulkes, blazed the trail toward cleaning up for the Lord's Day. They were greatly aided when a few years ago the liquor traffic was buried and sent to hell. But today we find as great a foe in the motion pictures.

"On behalf of the alliance, I have repeatedly warned the motion picture magnates to keep their hands off the Sabbath and to clean up their business throughout the other six days of the week. If they do not heed this warning they will find themselves in trouble."

Dr Bowlby said that Augustus Thomas and William Brady "are among the greatest enemies of the Sabbath."

Dr. Wylie appeared later in the afternoon. He refrained from any discussion of the Sabbath, however, and in a brief address attacked the Modernists in the Protestant Church, declaring that in a few years "God will have eliminated the radicals."

"We must admit that today the person of Jesus Christ is the centre of theological discussion," he said. "Not a few doubt the Virgin birth, and there is a tendency to reduce Jesus Christ to the level of the 'world's greatest teacher.' This is seen in the players of Modernist preachers, who substitute for the term 'Divine Redeemer' such terms as 'Master' and 'Great Exemplar.'"

The Rev. Dr. A. Gordon MacLennan, pastor of Bethany Temple, Philadelphia, one of those who led in the fight for fundamentalism at the last Presbyterian General Assembly at Columbus, Ohio, in May, said that prayer was Christianity's greatest need and that God judged men by the earnestness of their individual prayers.

BRITAIN TO REFORM HER POLICE RULES

Home Secretary Says Rights of Public Will Be Strengthened, as Result of Sheppard Case.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—As a result of the now famous case of Major Robert Osborne Sheppard, distinguished British Army officer who was wrongfully arrested and held incommunicado nearly all night, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, British Home Secretary, announced tonight that certain definite reforms would be introduced in the English police system.

Chief among these will be a revision of the present practices for admitting persons to bail and identification methods used by the police in cases of suspected persons brought to various police stations. The Home Secretary's decision is contained in a letter to the Right Honorable John F. P. Rawlinson, K. C., who recently severely censured the police following a Government inquiry he conducted into the arrest of Major Sheppard.

On the night of June 27 Major Sheppard was arrested on complaint of a woman named Deltah Dennistoun, who charged that ten days previously he had stolen her purse containing £18,105. Major Sheppard strongly protested his innocence, which later was completely established, but the police refused his repeated demands that friends be notified, although he mentioned some of the best-known men in London.

In a long letter the Home Secretary reviews existing police regulations, many of which were apparently forgotten, and also formally notifies the police that every existing law for the protection of arrested persons must henceforth rigidly be followed. The Home Secretary announced that he will ask Parliament to insert a clause in the Criminal Justice bill requiring the police to admit any one to bail before a charge is formally made if the police are satisfied as to identity and are reasonably sure the person will not abscond.

The police now hold all persons without bail until investigation of their guilt is completed. Rules giving arrested persons every facility for communicating with friends immediately after arrest are to be applied with the greatest care in the future and all arrested persons must be informed that they have a right to object to the taking of finger-prints—a right which the police here have not bothered about recently, according to the Sheppard inquiry.

Concluding, the Home Secretary says: "Clear notices will in future be exhibited in all police stations informing persons of facilities for communicating with friends and provisions regarding bail. The Sheppard case was quite an exceptional one and brought to light certain defects in the system which I hope I have remedied."

The case of the police officers involved in the Sheppard arrest is now in the hands of the Police Commissioner.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Dreams of Miss Blanche Satchell, the second British beauty, whom Florenz Ziegfeld selected this week for his Follies chorus, will probably be rudely interrupted when she reaches America on board the George Washington, for Beaumont Alexander, managing director of the New Princess cabaret in London, told a NEW YORK TIMES correspondent tonight that he had cabled the American immigration authorities not to permit Miss Satchell to land.

Mr. Alexander says that the 17-year-old beauty is under contract to appear in his revue at the restaurant. He had just returned from a vacation on the Continent and immediately wirelessed Mr. Ziegfeld, who is on board the Leviathan, that proceedings would be instituted unless Mr. Ziegfeld relinquished his agreement with Miss Satchell. Mr. Alexander also wrote to the National Vaudeville Artist' organization, asking them to prevent Miss Satchell's appearance in America in view of her previous contract with him.

JEANNE EAGELS WED TO EDWARD H. COY

Star of "Rain" and Former Yale Football Leader Married at Stamford, Conn.

BRIDE TO CONTINUE CAREER

Bridegroom, a New York Banker, Was Divorced by First Wife in Paris Last December.

Miss Jeanne Eagels, the actress who achieved an unusual success in "Rain," and Edward Harris Coy, better known as "Ted" Coy, former Yale football captain and star, were married on Wednesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Venable in Stamford, Conn. Mrs. Venable is known on the stage as Miss Fay Bainter. The ceremony, which was attended by relatives and a few intimate friends, was performed by the Rev. George Hamilton, pastor of the North Stambord Congregational Church. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Coy and the members of the wedding party motored to the bride's home in Ossining, N. Y., where a large reception was held.

The couple obtained their marriage license on Wednesday in Stamford. Mr. Coy, who has been staying for some weeks at May Apple Farm in High Ridge, a section of Stamford, gave his residence as Stamford, and for this reason it was not necessary to wait the five days required under the law when applicants for marriage licenses are non-residents. He stated in his license application that he was 37 years old, a native of Andover, Mass., and that this would be his second marriage. He was divorced by his former wife, Mrs. Sophie Meldrim Coy, in Paris last December.

Denied Betrothal Reports.

The bride gave her age as 27 and this is her first marriage. She is a native of Boston and a resident of Ossining, N. Y. She is the daughter of Edward Eagels of Ossining. Two years ago reports were current that Miss Eagels was engaged to Whitney Warren Jr. Reports that Mr. Coy and Miss Eagels were engaged were prevalent several months ago, as well as announcements that they had been married. These were denied by the actress, who at that time said she had no intention of marrying Mr. Coy.

Ted Coy, who was graduated from Yale in 1910, was one of the most prominent football players in this country. He was known as Yale's greatest backfield player and was noted for his skill as a punter and drop kicker. He was unanimously selected for the all-American team. As captain of the Yale team he was credited with defeating Harvard and Princeton almost single-handed in his last year at college. After his victorious game against Harvard he is said to have received more than fifty offers of marriage in letters from young women admirers.

Mr. Coy's first marriage took place in Asheville, N. C., in 1913, when he married Miss Sophie d'A. Meldrim, daughter of General Peter W. Meldrim of Savannah, Ga. The wedding took place suddenly, with no previous announcement of the engagement or plans for the wedding. For some time the couple made their home at 300 Park Avenue.

Will Continue Her Work.

When the first Mrs. Coy obtained a divorce from her husband in Paris last December on the ground of desertion she received the custody of their two children. Since her return from Paris she has been making her home in New York and is at present the guest of Mrs. Raymond T. Baker at Saratoga Springs. Mr. Coy inherited about $300,000 from his mother several years ago. Until November, 1924, he was a member of the brokerage firm of Davies, Thomas & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange.

At her home in Ossining last night the bride said that she had no intention of giving up her work and that her marriage would make no change in her plans for opening in "Rain" in Brooklyn the middle of next month. She has been on the stage continuously since she was 10 years old, making her first appearance in a stock company in Kansas City. As a child she appeared as a toe dancer. Her first important rôle was in "Outcast," after which she appeared with George Arliss in "The Professor's Love Story," his revival of "Disraeli" and also in his own play, "Hamilton." She appeared for a season under the management of David Belasco in "Daddies."

BEAUTY'S FATHER HELD FOR ICE TRUCK DEATH

On Same Day Miss Malcomson of Philadelphia Decides Not to Defend Title as 'Miss America.'

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 27 (AP).—William Malcomson, father of "Miss America," Miss Ruth Malcomson, who won the Atlantic City beauty contest last year, was held without bail today by Police Magistrate Carney following the death last night of John Tomlin.

Malcomson is accused of having run over Tomlin with his ice truck on July 4. The charges preferred against him today were manslaughter by automobile and refusing to render assistance.

Miss Malcomson announced today she would not defend her beauty title at Atlantic City next month. Her reason was, she said, she did not care to compete with professionals.

PLUS FOURS 'HAMLET' HERE

Erlanger Production to Observe Dry Law in Modernist Effort.

News from London of the presentation of "Hamlet" in modern clothes a few nights ago yesterday brought an announcement of a similar American production. A. L. Erlanger declared that he will immediately organize two companies, one of which will act the play in New York and one on tour. Mr. Erlanger's statement was to all intents and purposes bona fide.

"We cannot, of course," said Mr. Erlanger in his statement, "permit the players to drink wine and whisky on the stage, as they say they do in London, but we shall easily find some substitute for that. In fact, if we are going to present an absolutely up-to-date 'Hamlet,' then we must observe all the customs and manners of the day and the Volstead law must be taken into consideration along with everything else."

Mr. Erlanger declares that he has already started preparations for the two productions.

German Operetta Season Planned.

A season of modern German operettas is announced to begin at the Irving Place Theatre on Sept. 17. The first production will be "Die Tanzfraefin," in which Editha Fleischer will have the title rôle. Other members of the company will be Else Kenter, Grete Meyer, Siegfried Rumann, Ernst Naumann, Max Bratt, Carlos Zizold and Ernst Otto. The company will be under the direction of Andreas Fugmann.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 27.—Farm laborers at Mayorazgo, Michoacan, recently found an ancient Tarascan Indian cemetery. A large carved stone covered the skeletons. Vases and carved stones bearing inscriptions were found in the graves. It is believed the writings will throw light on the history of the Indians.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The opening of "Captain Jinks" at the Martin Beck Theatre is announced for Tuesday night, Sept. 8.

"The Fall Guy" has advanced its closing and will end its run at the Eltinge tomorrow night.

Winnie Lightner, it is announced by the Shuberts, will be starred next season in a comedy. She is at present appearing in "Gay Paree."

Announcement is made by the Ziegfeld office that Billie Burke will be seen in a new production shortly after her return from Europe. The nature of the production is not announced.

"All Dressed Up," by Arthur Richman, will open at the Eltinge Theatre during the week of Sept. 7.

Martha Hedman, the actress, has written a comedy called "The First Fiddle," in collaboration with H. A. House. It is announced for production by Richard Herndon.

Jeffreys Lewis is a member of the cast of Crane Wilbur's "Easy Terms," now in rehearsal.

KAPLAN GAINS DRAW; CROWD FOR HERMAN

Referee's Decision by Which Champion Keeps World's Title Stuns Onlookers.

THOUGHT CHALLENGER WON

RALLIES FURIOUSLY AT END

Tries for a Knockout in Vain—Throng of 20,000 at Waterbury, Record for the State.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERBURY, Conn., Aug. 27.—Louis (Kid) Kaplan, Meriden featherweight, stepped out of the ring at Brasco Park here tonight before an excited crowd of 20,000 the world's featherweight champion by grace of one of the weirdest decisions ever rendered in a fistic battle. For the greater part of fifteen rounds Babe Herman, California's challenger for the title, had outboxed, outfought and outmaneuvred the Meriden boxer, but when the final bell clanged on the contest Referee Jack Sheehan, especially imported from Boston for the occasion, raised the hands of each boxer aloft, signifying a draw.

Herman stood aghast and the crowd was stunned, so the referee left the ring without any disorderly demonstration. That the crowd thought that Herman was entitled to the decision, however, was demonstrated when the speedy little Californian was cheered to the echo as he left the ring.

Kaplan, home town favorite, State idol and prohibitive choice to win the battle, left the ring without arousing a ripple of applause. To account for such a difficult. Any fair-minded spectator at the bout must admit that Herman won with comparative ease. Perhaps it was a desperate two-round closing rally by Kaplan which influenced the award of Sheehan. Maybe it was sentiment. Perhaps it was because Sheehan, attempting to keep track of the progress of the points on the customary score sheet, overlooked the wide margin Herman accumulated as he outfought Kaplan over every inch of ground in nine of the fifteen rounds the battle went.

Whatever it was, there can be no denying that Kaplan benefited by an odd decision which took some of the glamour from one of the most spectacular and interesting featherweight battles of recent years, which attracted the greatest crowd at a fight in this State.

Herman Shows at Best.

Herman, fighting with all the strength, cunning and ring craft at his command playing the role of sharp-shooting boxer against the tearing, slashing Kaplan, won the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, tenth, eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth rounds.

Kaplan, fighting far below the form he displayed in the New York State Athletic Commission's final tournament, won only the second, third, ninth, fourteenth and fifteenth rounds. The first round was even. Such was Herman's margin on points.

The decision notwithstanding, Herman won the battle because he demonstrated that he is a better all-around boxer, a harder, cleaner and more damaging puncher, and a better ring general than Kaplan. The Californian fought a well planned and ordinarily effective battle from the outset.

He permitted Kaplan to carry the fighting, and as Kaplan ripped and tore into him in characteristic fashion, Herman coolly and cleverly met the majority of these rushes with well-directed blows to the jaw, face, head and body.

He staggered Kaplan and had the Meriden lad holding repeatedly, notably in the second, fifth, eighth and tenth rounds. He had Kaplan's right eye bleeding and puffed from the sixth round to the finish. He battered Kaplan steadily about the body with a fire of rights and lefts, at long range and at close quarters, which hurt the Connecticut boxer noticeably.

Kaplan carried the fighting for the greater part of the battle, but in an erratic manner. He drove into Herman repeatedly, lashing out blindly with both hands in an attack which was as wild as it was ineffective. As the battle progressed and the tide of battle apparently swung to Herman's favor, the chilled throng which jammed the park permitted its sentiments and its favor to swing from Kaplan to Herman.

Mighty cheers urged Herman onward in each round after half way mark of the bout and the Californian responded.

Herman made it plain at the start that he intended to weaken Kaplan with body blows and to harry the Meriden lad with occasional drives of the right to the jaw. He did just that. He held Kaplan even in the first round.

Evidently Kaplan was not himself at the weight he was forced to make for the battle, for, under the punches of Herman to the body, the Kid did not show the resistance and the ability to absorb these fist shocks which has been characteristic of his previous bouts.

Herman staggered Kaplan with a downward swing of the right to the jaw as the Meriden lad rushed in in the second round, and Kaplan blinked. But the force of Kaplan's attack and his steady two-fisted fire earned him this round as well as the third.

With the fourth round, however, the tide of battle swung to Herman's favor. He outboxed and outfought Kaplan at almost every turn.

In the ninth round Kaplan launched a vicious offensive. Its impetus more than the punches landed carried Herman before it. Then in the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth rounds Herman again appeared to advantage and seemed like a sure winner unless he was the victim of a knockout in the closing rounds.

Kaplan Strives for Knockout.

Manager Jimmy Kelly, for Herman, protested the length of the thirteenth round, saying that the bell had sounded, according to his watch, at 2 minutes 27 seconds. He rushed excitedly across the ring and protested to the timekeeper.

Kaplan tried with a frenzied offensive to score a knockout in the two closing chapters. Backing away, Herman sought to outbox his rival and to pick openings for clean rights and lefts, but Kaplan crowded his opponent in such a manner that Herman was unable to land cleanly or solidly. Kaplan won these two rounds. But by no stretch of the imagination could Kaplan's furious rally have justified the decision of a draw.

Frankie O'Brien, Hartford middleweight, won the decision of Referee Jigger McCarthy over Buck Kelly of Bridgeport in the six-round opening battle. In the second encounter, an eight-round contest, Eddie Lord, local pride, won the decision over Johnny O'Keefe of Hartford. Dan Buckley refereed this bout. They were just two ordinary fights and didn't provide much excitement.

Sheik Leonard and Tracey Ferguson, rival Connecticut welterweights, were the principals in the semi-final bout scheduled for ten rounds. It was an exciting slugging match from the tap of the first gong and had the crowd yelling wildly from the time the pair squared off.

This was declared a draw, although Leonard appeared the winner. He had Ferguson in sorry condition in the second round and again in the fifth from powerful, full-arm drives to the jaw and body. However, Ferguson survived these two trying sessions and weathered subsequent punching outbursts before the final bell. Jim Keefe was the referee.

WATERBURY, Aug. 27.—Herman was the first to enter the ring. He sat in his corner facing a battery of cameras while awaiting Kaplan's entrance. The crowd gave a mighty cheer when Kaplan claimed up the steps. Danny Kramer, Philadelphia challenger for the title, was introduced from the ring and challenged the winner. Honeyboy Finnegan, the Boston featherweight, and Jack Sharkey, New York veteran, and Sailor Freedman also were introduced.

It was announced that Jack Sheehan of Boston was the referee. Promoter Tex Rickard, who occupied a ringside seat, was introduced at the insistance of the crowd and was cheered to the echo.

Kaplan's weight was announced as 126 pounds. Herman's 125 pounds.

WEIGHING IN SCENE NEARLY HALTS FIGHT

Claim That Kaplan Is Over the 126-Pound Limit Causes Police to Interfere.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERBURY, Conn., Aug. 27.—Shelby in miniature form was re-enacted here this afternoon at the weighing-in For a few minutes it appeared there would be no fight at all. Where the battle of the Montana plains wavered between the payment of Dempsey's guarantee or the lack of it, tonight's scrap hovered precariously on the brink of a no fight precipice over the question of weight.

Jimmy Kelly, manager of Herman, insisted that Kaplan failed to make the stipulated 126 pounds and contended that the New York tournament winner was half a pound over the weight when he stepped on the scales. Scotty Monteith, representing Kaplan, insisted just as vehemently that Kaplan had made the weight to the last fraction of an ounce. They offered to back their separate versions of the weighing with perfectly legal tender, and the exchange of words became so heated that a passage at arms was narrowly averted.

At one stage a burley plain clothes man, attached to the local police force, threatened to call all bets off so far as Kelly and Monteith were concerned, and, at the same time, prevent either from entering tonight's battle by the simple expedient of placing each in the local jail.

Cool heads among the partisan and non-partisan onlookers warded off this drastic action, and the question of whether Kaplan did or did not weigh 126 pounds was settled officially and definitely, so far as the fight was concerned, by the decisive announcement of Boxing Commissioner Thomas Donahue that the Meriden lad weighed exactly 126 pounds. All the arguments could not prevail against the official decision of the State's one-man boxing commission, present at the gymnasium of Joe Shugrue to supervise the weighing.

The weighing took place at 2 o'clock, one hour ahead of the contract time, under an agreement reached between the representatives of the boxers after four hours of arguing and pleading with Manager Kelly. The weight question is the most important factor in connection with Kaplan's battles any time he undertakes to make 126 pounds, and Kelly, acting perfectly within his rights, held out for strict observance of the provisions of this contract, which stipulated that the weighing should take place at 3 o'clock, until arguments and pleas finally induced him to agree to the earlier weighing.

A delay was occasioned while the boxers and a considerable crowd awaited the arrival of special scales which never did appear. Finally William Dunleavy, State Sealer of Weights and Measures, appeared on the scene and approved the scales in Shugrue's Gymnasium. Stephen Conway, local boxing commission deputy, officially assigned to do the actual weighing, took his position back of the scales while four sturdy policemen in uniform held the crowd of curious in check. Herman, the first to weigh, didn't budge the bar at 126 pounds. He weighed 125. Then Kaplan stepped on the scales and the trouble started.

Newspaper men were not afforded a glimpse of the scales, but Kelly, peering at the indicator, threw the assembled gathering into a frenzy of excitement when he yelled as Kaplan stepped on the scale, "I claim the title; he's half a pound over the weight." Seldom has such a wild scene been enacted at any boxing weighing as ensued immediately thereafter.

Arguments waxed heated and long while Commissioner Donahue loudly demanded order and the exercise of discretion. He got neither. Monteith and Kelly argued on and on, and supporters of each side advanced their opinions. Commissioner Donahue offered to have another set of scales brought to the gymnasium and conduct another weighing, but recalled the offer.

KAPLAN FRACTURES FINGER.

Examination After Bout Reveals Injury—Herman Also Hurts Hand.

WATERBURY, Conn., Aug. 27 (AP).—Louis (Kid) Kaplan fractured his right hand in the eighth round of his fifteen round bout with Babe Herman of California, at Brassco Park tonight. An examination of the hand made in the dressing room shortly after the encounter revealed a broken bone just below the knuckle of his big finger. He said he was unable to use his right hand after the eighth round, except for guarding purposes.

Herman also injured his hand, but a brief examination after the fight failed to reveal a fracture.

Pequot Y. C. Crew Captures Midget Title, Beating Bay Shore in Championship Races

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Aug. 27.—By winning two straight races from the representatives of the Bay Shore Yacht Club the midget crew of the Pequot Yacht Club of Southport, Conn., won the midget yacht championship of Long Island Sound off this port today.

The Pequot boys won the first race by default, as the Bay Shore crew fouled them at the second mark and withdrew. The championship crew was bearing down on the mark on the starboard tack, while their opponents tried to make the mark on the port tack. In so doing they fouled the Pequot yacht.

Pequot also took the afternoon race and defeated Bay Shore by 57 seconds. The race was over a triangular course of two and one-half miles. A fresh breeze was blowing from the northeast and held true during the entire race. Captain A. S. Clark, W. Stetson and R. Williams, members of the winning crew, each will get silver cups.

The Pequot crew was the survivor of eight trios of boys and girls who were aspirants for the title this year. The winning crew made the best actual score during the race series, losing but one race yesterday, when the representatives of the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club beat them.

HARMON WINS BOUT WITH RAY MITCHELL

Gains Decision in Ten-Round Feature Before 4,000 at Dexter Park.

ANDERSON BEATS SANCHEZ

Earns Verdict in Fast Semi-Final Contest—Glick Loses to Palmer on Foul.

Willie Harmon, east side welterweight, won the judges' decision over Ray Mitchell of Philadelphia in the ten-round bout at Dexter Park Stadium last night before a crowd of 4,000 persons. Harmon's body attack earned him the decision of Referee Johnny McAvoy and Judges Al Comancho and Jean Simpson, after his persistent pounding gave him practically every one of the ten rounds.

Despite Harmon's hardest blows to his rival's side, which left it raw, Harmon at no time had Mitchell in distress and in only one round, the ninth, did he appear to have Mitchell in danger of a knock-out.

In this session the east side battler varied his attack for the first time and landed a smashing left-hander to Mitchell's face, which shook him up badly but did no more than force him into a clinch. It was Harmon's only solid left hand blow of the fight.

At the outset Mitchell's fast footwork kept him out of danger and prevented Harmon from getting in close. The Philadelphian landed enough long distance right and left handers in the first three sessions to make it look as if Harmon would have a hard time.

Eddie Anderson, Wyoming featherweight, received the judges' decision over San Sanchez of Mexico in a fast and furious six-round semi-final. Sanchez displayed unlimited gameness but his other fighting qualities were outstripped by those of his taller and rangier opponent.

Tony Palmer of Brighton Beach won on a foul from Joe Glick of Williamsburg in the seventh round of their ten-round bout.

A second-round knockout featured the second bout on the program when Danny Ross, 148-pounder of Coney Island dropped Sid Bert, 147-pounder of the east side with a right to the chin.

BLUE RIBBON GOES TO LITTLE CANADA

MISS STUART IS THROWN

But Remounts and Takes Second on Blue Fern—Princess Gloria Takes Saddle Division Honors.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 27.—New York horses scored heavily this afternoon at the first session of the twenty-ninth annual horse show at the Casino here. The show had ideal weather for the opening, and with the exhibit confined exclusively to hunters and jumpers shown in hand this year for the first time there is a greater entry list than for many seasons. More than 100 horses are entered and some of the classes were so crowded this afternoon, despite the fact that elimination trials were held in two of the big classes at noon, that the show was prolonged well after the scheduled time for closing. There was a large attendance, and though there were numerous spills no serious accident marred the day's exhibition.

First honors in the opening class of the day, that for novice horses shown over the jumps, went to a Worcester horse, Alladrift, owned by Mrs. Horace W. Cristy. It was a close competition against Louis K. Liggett's entry, Sir Pett.

Robert Law's Little Canada from New York captured the blue in the class for ladies' hunters after a great exhibition of clean jumping. The horse was ridden by Miss Ivy Maddison. The same horse was also first in the class for hunters carrying not less than 160 pounds. Miss Alice Stuart was thrown from her Blue Fern, but she pluckily returned to her mount and took second place.

Miss Maddison, with her own Vada Belle, was the winner of the triple bar jump. It was another of the large classes and furnished plenty of thrills. The Princess Gloria, owned by George Crouch of New York, was one of the prettiest horses in the ring and the Princess's victory in the class for large saddle horses was a popular one. An added feature in the show this year is the appearance of several horses from the Military Academy at West Point, ridden by cavalry officers. Queen's Own, ridden by Captain J. T. Cole, was especially popular, and placed in two classes.

JOHNSTON-GRIFFIN LOSE, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2

MISS HARVEY IS A VICTOR

She and Richards Are Carried to Three Sets by Miss Colyer and Brugnon at Brookline.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Special to The New York Times.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 27.—Gerald Patterson and John B. Hawkes of the Australian Davis Cup team reached the final round of the national doubles championship today on the courts of the Longwood Cricket Club. Playing in faultless form and stroking with crushing power, the Antipodeans defeated William Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin of San Francisco in three sets, 6—4, 6—3, 6—2.

Tomorrow afternoon Vincent Richards of New York and R. Norris Williams of Philadelphia will meet the Kinsey brothers of San Francisco, the defending title-holders, in the other semi-final. The Eastern combination is favored to win this match, and in the event they do the final round will take on a Davis Cup complexion. Richards and Williams are being considered as one of the teams to play the challenge round doubles match on the defending team, while Patterson and Hawkes are likely to be the combination selected by Captain James Anderson to play for the Australians in the event they face the United States for the cup, although it is possible that Anderson may team with Patterson.

Today Johnston and Griffin were on the defensive from the first game, when Patterson served only four balls to win the game at love, until the end, and for the greater part of the time they were simply overwhelmed by the devastating smashes of Patterson and his partner. Patterson never played more deadly tennis in this country than he put up in this match. There is no player in the world who can match the powerfully built Australian in effectiveness overhead when he is at his best and in the three sets this afternoon he missed hardly more than three shots in bringing down lobs.

Patterson Kills the Ball.

When the Californians found it impossible to find an opening down the side lines or through the centre of the court, they sought to keep their opponents away from the net by lobbing. They failed to get enough depth on their shots and Patterson brought them down with volcanic sweeps of his powerful right arm. There was a loud report and the ball thudded against the turf to bound high into the stands.

Hawkes was only slightly less effective than his partner. Occasionally he hit into the net on attempting to make a kill, but his volleying was superb. On occasions the left-handed Antipodean put up a stonewall defense at the net as Johnston and Griffin drove one ball after another at him, seeking in vain to find an opening. The whole performance of the Davis Cup pair was fine. Their teamwork, the way in which they retreated and then advanced with a rush to take the attacking position, according to the tide of the struggle, was irreproachable. They were far too keen and powerful for the Americans.

Johnston and Griffin played good tennis for the first set, managing to hold off the ruthless attack of their opponents until the final game when a break was made through Johnston, but after that they were outclassed. It was a cold day, with a chilling breeze blowing across the court and this may have had some effect on Johnston, who is at his best on a warm day. Not in a long time has he been seen to miss so many volleys as he did today.

Nor did the Californians had difficulty in handling the cannonball service of Patterson and the twist delivery of Hawkes, with its "kick" to the backhand, and the Australians won many of their points without doing more than to put the ball into play.

Americans Lose Three Straight.

In the second set Johnston and Griffin threw away the first two games entirely on errors and in the third game the Australians had to score only one placement to gain a lead of 3-0. Griffin's good volleying and overhead work gave the Americans the fourth game after deuce had been called three times, in spite of Hawkes's splendid driving. The fifth game was the most strenuously fought of the match, eighteen points being required for a decision in favor of the Australians. Games thus went on until the foreign combination had gained the necessary six.

In the final set Johnston and Griffin won the first game at love. Patterson took the second with three murderous overhead shots, and the Californians won the third when Patterson hit into a succession of errors. That was the last game they got. Letting loose a constant succession of smashing drives and crushing everything overhead, the Australians overwhelmed their opponents and took five games in a row for the set and match.

Three teams reached the semi-final round of the national mixed doubles championship. In the lower half the survivors are Miss E. H. Harvey of England and Vincent Richards and Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Jean Borotra of France. Miss Kathleen McKane of England and Hawkes gained their semi-final bracket in the upper section. Mrs. Molla Mallory and William Tilden will meet the winner of a second round match tomorrow to determine the other semi-finalists.

Miss Ryan and Borotra defeated Mrs. Lambert Chambers of England and Manuel Alonso in the third round at 8—6, 9—7, after one of the most exciting struggles witnessed in a mixed doubles tournament in this country. Miss Harvey and Richards played through three rounds and were carried to three sets in their third match with Miss Evelyn Coyler and Jacques Brugnon. After winning the first set by a decisive score they lost the second at 10—8 and then took the third after a struggle at 6—4.

The final round was reached in the national veterans' doubles championship. Samuel Hardy and Walter Pate, the defending champions from New York, will face A. Wallis Myers of England and Julian S. Myrick of New York for the title. The former pair eliminated John T. Bailey of Oklahoma and Claude Butlin of Mexico, 6—2, 7—5, while Myers and Myrick won from C. T. Rockwell and G. F. Wales, 1—6, 6—1, 9—7.

Hill and Son Win.

Two more teams reached the semi-finals of the national father and son doubles championship, completing the brackets in this round. Donald M. Hill and son put out A. W. and W. W. Weld at 6—4, 6—3, and Nat W. Niles, Sr., and Jr., defeated George Stadel, Sr., and Jr., 4—6, 6—3, 6—2.

SARATOGA FEATURE TO BREAKFAST BELL

20 TO 1 SHOT HOME FIRST

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 27.—The Idle Hour Farm Stable won its second stake in as many days when its four-year-old filly Breakfast Bell, by Black Toney—Batter Cake, carrying 106 pounds and with little Thompson in the saddle, showed the way to three others the heavily played favorite, backed to in the twenty-third running of the Amsterdam Claiming Stakes for three-year-olds and upward over the course of a mile here this afternoon. The filly was 2 to 5, and she earned $3,550 for Colonel E. R. Bradley.

Despite the low temperature and a chilling northeast wind, another large crowd turned out for the afternoon's sport and there is every indication that the attendance will keep up to the very end of the meeting. Only two favorites scored, while one equal first choice came down in front.

Breakfast Bell had no difficulty in bringing home the money in the Amsterdam Stakes. Thompson got the filly away in her stride from the barrier in the mile chute. She had drawn the post position on the inside rail and saved ground all the way. Jefferson Livingston's McAuliffe ran lapped on the filly down the back stretch, but she drew clear on the turn, McAuliffe chucking it.

When McAuliffe was through, Callahan brought up William Martin's Brice, which stood the drive gamely but was not good enough, and the filly was a length to the good past the winning post. P. Houseman's Lockerbie got up to beat McAuliffe for the short end of the stake.

Reparation Comes Back.

J. E. Davis's Reparation, disqualified on Tuesday when Johnny Maiben shut off Dare Say, came back this afternoon, making it three straight times that he has finished first. The race was the Burlington Handicap for three-year-olds and upward, at six furlongs, four going to the post. Reparation was the even money favorite and he came home an easy winner by a length and a half from the Idle Hour Farm Stable's Beteligusse. Reparation, well ridden by Edgar Barnes, carried 123 pounds and sprinted the distance in 1:13 flat.

The Greentree Stable's three-year-old Chantey burned up the public's money when he was beaten a head in the mile dash of the Fort Edward Purse for three-year-olds and upward. He was heavily played and backed from 7 to 10 to 1 to 2 at post time. The winner was Samuel Ross's three-year-old filly All Gone, a rank outsider, at 20 to 1.

Sarapion Earns Brackets.

Sarapion, with Catrone up in the silks of the Rancocas Stable, was first to the wire in the six-furlong dash for two-year-olds non-winners at the meeting, in a field of thirteen. Catrone, who is a Saratoga boy, brought home his first winner for the stable. It was unusual to see Sam Hildreth claiming an apprentice allowance, the colt carrying 102 pounds. It was his third start and he was held at 6 to 1.

Strawbridge Breaks His Arm; Out of Open Polo Title Play

Robert E. Strawbridge Jr., youthful internationalist, who won that rank last year when he was called upon to fill the breach in the Big Four caused by an injury to Malcolm Stevenson, is out of the open championship and possibly through with polo for the season, due to a broken arm. Strawbridge was cranking his automobile when the engine misfired, snapping back the crank, which struck his arm. The injury will seriously cripple the W. A. Harriman's Orange County four, on which Strawbridge was to have played back. Who will replace him has not been decided. The open championship play begins Sept. 17.

JOCKEY IS KILLED AT BEULAH TRACK

Berg Meets Fatal Accident When Mount Falls—Kessner Escapes Injury.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 27. (AP).—Jockey J. Berg died in a local hospital late today from injuries sustained this afternoon when he was thrown by his mount in the third race at Beulah Park.

Berg's mount, Fait Accompli, slipped in rounding the first turn, throwing his rider directly in front of the second horse, Bridget O'Grady, ridden by John Kessner. Kessner's horse, however, missed Berg, but stumbled over the fallen horse, throwing Kessner. Kessner was not seriously injured.

KNOWLES MEDALIST IN INVITATION GOLF

BANCKER'S 76 IS NEXT

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Those who came out to the Westchester Biltmore Country Club today expecting to catch glimpses of Bobby Jones and Francis Ouimet performing bits of golf magic were disappointed. The Atlanta and Boston stars were absent. So were Jess Guilford and Max Marston, two other giants of golf, who were scheduled to start in the annual invitation tournament of the Westchester Biltmore Club. In fact, the tournament was purely local in its aspects.

In the absence of Jones, who is now at Oakmont preparing for the defense of his national crown next week, Ellis Knowles of Apawamis agreed to substitute in the rôle. So well did he succeed with the difficult part that for the first nine holes of the qualifying round it would have been difficult to distinguish the one from the other, so far as actual playing was concerned. As a matter of fact, there was a close resemblance throughout the whole round, for Knowles's 74 won the medal, and medal winning is Jones's forte.

Knowles played the first nine holes of the somewhat baffling championship west course in 34 strokes, four less than par, and it was that burst that enabled him to top the field. His second half was not as good, a 40, but it didn't have to be, for his margin at the end of nine put him four strokes in the lead. The nearest to him at that point was E. E. Sturges of Scarsdale, former Westchester open champion, who had a 38 and who finished in a tie with Richard Walsh, former public links champion, and Charles H. Paul of the home club for third place in the qualifying round, their totals being 77.

W. W. Bancker of Wykagyl finished second to Knowles with a score of 76. Only those with totals of 82 or less succeeded in making their way into the first sixteen without going through the formality of a play-off. Two of those who narrowly avoided the extra-hole battle were Stanley Hall of Westchester Hills and J. G. McMahon of Sleepy Hollow.

Knowles, Yale "Nought Eight" and one-time intercollegiate champion, started his round with a par 4 at the first hole, but snagged a birdie 2 at the one-shot second, where he laid an iron up a yard from the flag. His par 5 at the third was colored with luck, for his drive crashed into an accommodating tree which sent the ball back onto the fairway, where it belonged. At the fourth hole, which is 495 yards, Knowles secured an eagle 3 by playing his mashie second on the green, and two feet from the hole, and sinking the putt. His second birdie came at the sixth hole where, after overplaying the green, he chipped back dead. Three pars followed to give him his 34.

LEAR TIES HELMS FOR LEAD AT CHESS

Draws With New York Star, Beats Ramme and Scores on Default at Buffalo.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 27.—By winning one game, drawing one and gaining one by default, thereby adding 2½ points to his total, Joseph D. Lear, champion of the Buffalo Chess Club tied for first place with H. Helms of New York in the annual championship tournament of the New York State Chess Association here today. The leaders met in the fourth round, Lear vigorously pressing the attack against a Dutch defense, but eventually drawing by perpetual check after 22 moves. Next he met Ramme of Rome and defeated him with the black pieces in a Queen's Gambit declined after 51 moves. Barron of New York, by his absence, forfeited to Lear.

Z. Stopinski, former city champion, put up a stout resistence against Helms in the fifth round, the latter winning in an exciting finish after 39 moves. The local player had the black side of a Queen's Gambit declined. Dr. H. M. Coss of Buffalo moved into third place by winning from D. F. Searle of Rome in a Sicilian defense lasting 40 moves. Dr. Cross also had a great fight with Stopinski, who, with a piece down, succeeded in making a draw by perpetual check.

Giants Bow to Reds, Robins Win, Yankees Beaten

Cincinnati's 3-2 Victory While Pirates Win, Puts New York 6½ Games Behind.

RALLY IN NINTH FUTILE

HOW THEY STAND.

Due to their defeat by the Reds yesterday while the Pirates were winning from the Braves, the Giants are now six and a half games behind, as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Pittsburgh	73	46	.613
New York	70	56	.556

If the Pirates win sixteen of their remaining thirty-five games the Giants will then have to win twenty of their twenty-eight games to finish in first place, as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
New York	90	64	.584
Pittsburgh	89	65	.578

If the Pirates are successful in twenty-one of their games the Giants will then have to win all but three of their remaining contests to win the pennant, as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.

By HARRY CROSS.

Cincinnati beat the Giants at the Polo Grounds yesterday, 3 to 2, making the New York club's position in the baseball world more uncomfortable than ever. The Reds broke even on the series and are only two and a half games behind the Giants in the controversy over second place. The Giants' downfall, together with the victory of the Pirates in Boston, shoots the Bucs six and a half games ahead of John McGraw's unhappy outfit.

It was another one of those pitching duels. Kent Greenfield and Jakey May went along on even terms for six innings, and then Greenfield wavered just enough to give the Reds the lead. The bats of Eddie Roush and Ping Pinelli did the damage to Greenfield in the sixth and eighth and gave the Reds enough runs to win.

May's left-handed shoots had the Giants fooled until the ninth, when they uncorked a rally which drove the North Carolina portsider from the mound. None other but Carl Mays, with his bowling alley delivery, stopped the late rush of the McGrawmen after they had jammed over one run. They got one more after Carl came in, but he halted them dead in their tracks.

Reds Display Ambition.

The difference between the Reds and the Giants is that the Reds are fired with the high purpose of landing in second place, while that berth in the league standing looks like nothing more than playing second fiddle to the Giants. The Giants have nestled so long in first place that second honors arouse no great ambition among them.

One of the greatest assets of the Giants in former days was their ability to hit in the pinches. They have not been able to do this with their old fervor, hard as they may try. One doesn't have to go beyond New York's hit famine to explain why they are in a struggle for second place today.

As early as the third inning the Giants had two runners aboard, with two out and Frisch at the bat. Frank rapped a sizzling drive down the first base line. Walter Holke made a miraculous one-handed stop and got Frank at first. The Redleg defense was very much on its toes.

The Reds got two hits off Greenfield, with only one out in the fourth, but Kent turned back Holke and Critz with the aid of good plays by Southworth and Terry.

Cincinnati broke the scoreless tie in the sixth. After Zitzmann flied to Jackson, Pinelli slammed a single to left and went to second on Meusel's fumble. Eddie Roush slammed a terrific drive over Kelly's head in right, the ball bouncing off the concrete to roll far out of every one's reach. Eddie got three cushions on the tap, Pinelli scoring.

The Reds Get a Pair.

May got a pass in the eighth and was forced by Zitzmann. Pinelli hammered the ball to deep left high over Meusel's cap for three bases, Zitzmann scoring. Roush again came through with a single to right, which sent Pinelli over.

With the score 3 to 0 against them the Giants seemed willing to call it a day, but they blazed up in the ninth and gave the small gathering something to talk about. Frisch opened on May with a single between second and first which Critz was fortunate even to knock down.

Irish Meusel pummeled a singled to left and sent Frisch to second. George Kelly whipped a two-bagger close to the left field foul line and Frisch scored, Meusel going to third. Announcer George Levy then proclaimed the news that Groh was going up to hit in place of Bill Terry. But about that time Manager Jack Hendricks decided to yank Jakey May out of the game and he called Carl Mays into the fray.

Bentley, a left-handed hitter, was then announced to bat in place of Groh, although Groh hadn't had a chance even to reach the plate. Bentley rolled to Critz, and while Hughey was tossing him out at first Meusel scored and George Kelly was planted at third with the tying run.

Lindstrom could have done much with even a sacrifice fly, but he was called out on strikes before he took his bat from his shoulder. Travis Jackson was the Giant's last hope, and Carl Mays whipped them at him from his subway stance and the best Jackson could do was a roll out, Pinelli to Holke.

PASSES TO PIRATES BEAT BRAVES, 1-0

Three Walks by Benton in Third Force In Winning Run, Ending Duel With Aldridge.

BOSTON, Aug. 27 (AP).—A brilliant pitching duel between Aldridge of the league leading Pirates and Benton of the Braves ended in a 1 to 0 victory for the former at Braves Field this afternoon. Each team made four hits, all singles.

The shutout was the second such victory for Pittsburgh in two days. Felix and Cuyler made sensational catches.

PIRATE FANS PREPARE.

5,000 Seek Freedom of Capital Streets for World's Series Parade.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Pittsburgh rooters are so confident the Pirates and Washington Senators will play the World Series this year that they already have applied for permission to parade from their hotels to the Griffith Stadium on the day of the first game.

A letter was received today by the District Board of Commissioners from S. A. Pickering, signing himself "for the Pittsburgh—'nuf sed'— rooters," saying:

"Anticipating that our Pirates will clash with your Senators, we expect to bring 5,000 royal fans to your city. Will it be consistent with your rules to give us freedom of the streets to parade from our hotel to the ball park?"

Who says they never repeat? The Robins duplicated their feat of the previous two days by beating the Cardinals, 10 to 9, and Hank DeBerry repeated his winning hit of Tuesday by request at Ebbets Field yesterday. With two on and the score tied in the ninth Hankus Pankus scored a single to left that sent Eddie Brown clattering over the plate and the Cardinals over the river. Through Hank's free and fancy hitting the Robins were able to sweep the three-game series as clean as the blackboard on the first day of school and get a toe-hold on the first division.

But it was Dicky Cox who put the Robins back in the running when all seemed lost. The Robins went into the ninth one run behind and the main hope was that Jack Fournier, who led off, would flip a homer over his favorite section of the right field fence. When he grounded out to Hornsby the faithful 5,000 started toward the exit. But where Jack failed, California Dick came through and his lusty clout cleared the wall with feet to spare.

That tied the score and brought the fans back to their seats. Eddie Brown followed with an infield single and Jimmy Johnston walked. Then came Hankus Pankus and his blow to left blew the ball game into the records.

Hornsby Tries Four Pitchers.

Manager Hornsby shuffled his Cards thoroughly but he couldn't find an ace in the pack. He had four pitchers on the mound in an effort to win but what he needed was a marked deck. Eddie Dyers lasted just one and one-third innings. Long Leo Dickerman came out of the next deal but he was pushed into the discard in the fourth. Duster Mails was the next lead but he only saw three batters before he gave way to Jess Haines, who finished the game.

While all these switch-yard tactics were going on, "the gang" marched by in single file. First there was Lefty Brown, then came Wilbur Hubbell, followed by Jess Petty and Joe Oeschger. However, Brownie was the only one to retire under fire. The others were relieved by pinch hitters who weren't very effective either.

The Robins had to win three times before it took. They made four runs behind Lefty Brown in the second and he needed every one of them before he was through. Cox, Brown, Johnston and DeBerry made four safe hits in a row off Dyers, who was serving his term, before anybody was out. Brown rolled to Hornsby, but when Ford singled, scoring DeBerry with the fourth run, Dyers went to the clearers and Dickerman came in to stop the slaughter. He did temporarily.

Then Brownie blew. He walked three, tossed in a couple of wild pitches and allowed three singles before he gave way to Hubbell with one out. By the time the mean Missourians were through with Wilbur they had collected six runs and the lead.

Robins Get a Run Over.

Just to prove he could do a little wild pitching too, Dickerman let the Robins creep a run nearer with a heave that let Cox score in the last of the fourth after he had singled and gone to third on Eddie Brown's bingle.

In the fourth the Robins apparently won the game for the second time. A pass to Ford, an infield out and Wheat's single tied the score and found Dickerman leaving the game flat on its back as far as he was concerned.

Fournier's single sent Wheat to second and when the Duster tried to catch Zach off the bag he heaved into centre field, both runners advancing. Then Brown's third hit of the day sent them both home and the Robins were winging away with a two-run lead. Brown's hit drove Mails all the way into the clubhouse and Haines was shoved before the machine gun fire, but he gave the command to cease firing until the ninth, only one hit being made off him in the intervening four innings before Cox's homer.

The Robins held the lead until the seventh, which constitutes a record for the day, but, after the Cards had picked up a run in the fifth on a couple of passes and a single by Hafey, Rogers Hornsby tied the count with his thirty-fourth home run of the season, which sailed over the right field fence in the seventh.

Bottomley followed his leader with a triple and Bell sent him home with a single. That put the Cards ahead by 9 to 7, but they didn't stay there. Cox and DeBerry refused to let them.

The Reds come to Ebbets Field today for a four-game series, and if the Robins do as well against them as they did against the Cards, the Flatbush flock will be just a game and a half away from third place.

Pickups and Putouts.

The troublesome moments for the Giants are not over yet. The Cardinals are at the Polo Grounds today and if it is possible for them to make life miserable for the Giants they'll do it.

There was an abundance of chatter from the Cincinnati bench directly at Umpire Quigley. Quig was aching to wield large chunks of authority, but he couldn't find out who was doing all the talking.

Caveney made a great stop of Meusel's bouncer in deep short in the fourth and chucked him out at first.

All the games in the Giants-Reds series were decided by a one-run margin. And it happens only one run is needed to win a ball game, especially when it is one more than the other fellow gets.

About 300 members of the C. M. T. C. from Fort Hancock saw the game from the upper tier and the soldiers muffed every foul that came their way.

The Reds left the Polo Grounds in a happy frame of mind. They promise to polish off the Giants when they visit Cincinnati next month.

The Reds tried to promulgate a double steal in the fifth. Hargrave and Jake May, two of the slowest runners in the world, being on the opposite ends of it. Paddock and Murchison might have done it, but not that pair of Redlegs. They were both out.

McNamara Officially Pitches No Part of Game, Yet Loses 2

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP).—Pitcher Tim McNamara, formerly of the Giants, this afternoon had the unique distinction of losing two games in one day without being credited officially with pitching any part of an inning in either game. McNamara went into the game for Reading against Rochester in the first game of a double-header as a relief hurler. The score was tied and a double and single off McNamara sent in the winning run for Rochester. In the first inning of the second game Rochester scored four runs off McNamara before he was taken from the box with none out. These runs gave Rochester its winning margin.

SENATORS BLANKED BY BUSH WITH 1 HIT

League Lead Reduced to One Point When Johnson Fails to Check Browns, 5-0.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 27 (AP).—Bullet Joe Bush allowed only one hit and the St. Louis Browns blanked the Washington Senators today, 5 to 0, in the final game of the series of three straight victories. Philadelphia had an open date today and climbed within one point of Washington. Bush received excellent support.

Walter Johnson, veteran Washington hurler, arrived here shortly before the game from his home at Coffeyville, Kan., in response to a hurry-up summons from Manager Harris to take the mound. He was visiting relatives there.

Johnson allowed nine safeties. Johnson made the only hit off Bush when he doubled in the sixth inning. Both starting pitchers finished the game.

The Browns' first run came in the fifth, when Robertson tripled and scored on H. Rice's double. They staged a batting rally in the eighth which resulted in four tallies. Sisler singled, advanced to second on Robertson's sacrifice and scored on McManus's double. McManus scored on Bennett's single. Hargrave tripled, scoring Bennett. Then Robertson singled, scoring Hargrave.

TIGERS TRIUMPH IN 10TH.

Beat Red Sox, 5-4, on Triple and Error After Losers Tie in 9th.

DETROIT, Aug. 27 (AP).—Tavener's triple into centre field in the tenth inning and Rothrock's wild throw to home in an attempt to nip Tavener at the plate gave the Tigers a 5-4 victory over Boston today. It also gave Detroit a clean sweep of the three-game series. The Red Sox tied the count in the ninth by means of passes to Prothro and Wambsganss, Haney's error of Bischoff's grounder and a single by Vache.

YANKEES FADE AWAY BEFORE CHICAGO, 6-5

VOID SHAWKEY'S EFFORTS

He Allows Only Eight Hits to Lyons's Eleven—Late Inning Rally Falls Short.

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—The Yankees did another fadeout today. They provided a happy ending for the White Sox by losing the final game of the series, 6 to 5. This put more sunshine into the drab lives of the White Sox, for the pallid-hosed outfit consolidated its hold on third place.

Pee Wee Wanninger, the New York shortstop, was the main distributer of happiness and glad tidings. He committed two fumbles, which cost the Yanks just four runs. Pee Wee was easily the most valuable player on the field for the White Sox. Of course, to err is human, but a man should show some judmgent in picking his spots.

The White Sox were a lot cannier at this sort of thing. They indulged in four manual mistakes, but it was no-ticeable that the total benefit to the Yanks was only one run. As long as it didn't cost anything the Sox were willing to entertain the crowd by tossing the ball hither and yon and by stopping grounders with their kneecaps.

Sandlot Tinge to Game.

Bob Shawkey was the victim and Ted Lyons the victor in a ragged game that had the tinge of the sandlot about it.

Shawkey held the Sox to eight hits while Lyons was yielding eleven, and it was no fault of Shawkey's that Brother Wanninger said hello and good-bye to two grounders which came rolling up to him in friendly fashion.

Two runs behind, the Yanks began making hostile overtures in the eighth and ninth. Miller Huggins rushed his Three Musketeers—Schang, Pipp and Shanks—to the plate as pinch hitters in the eighth and they helped produce a needed run.

That left the Hugmen still in arrears, but they started the ninth in booming fashion. Meusel slashed a single to Barrett, and the same player then booted Combs's grounder, sending Meusel to second. If Ruth had bunted the Yanks at least would have tied the score. But that's another story.

Ruth swung and aimed a liner toward right field. All was well until Sheely jumped and knocked it down. He threw to second and caught Combs and Davis's return throw arrived ahead of Ruth. Then Gehrig filed to old Harry Hooper and it was all over.

The Yanks were away first and swiftly. Johnson, who singled, scored on Meusel's double. Combs walked. Ruth sacrificed and Paschal scored two with a single.

All was lovely at this early stage. But in the same inning singles by Davis and Barrett and a pass to Sheely filled up the bases with one out. Falk popped to Gehrig. Wanniger set himself for Hooper's grounder, but the ball was on a non-stop flight. It ended up in centre field and two White stockings twinkled over.

In the second inning Mostil forced Lyons and died stealing. Davis walked and Wanniger let Barrett's roller proceed through him. Sheely cleaned up with a two-bagger to deep left.

In the fourth the Yanks evened scores. Johnson, after singling, st

THE AMERICAN DEBT POLICY.

If our Government had no clear and definite plan, repeatedly stated and thus far clung to, respecting the settlement of its foreign debts, it might be a little fluttered by the Anglo-French debt negotiations. There are those who think they detect a subtle British plot to put America in the wrong before the eyes of Europe as a more hard-hearted creditor than England herself. This would be in pursuance of the tactics of the original Balfour note on this subject, though it was afterward disavowed by the British Government. On the other hand, some see M. CAILLAUX playing a very adroit game. He was expected to go first to Washington. Instead he went to London and obtained terms which are remarkably lenient—but on condition. The condition is that the United States give him terms equally considerate. With this offer in his hands, it is said that he will be in a position to make a clever and effective appeal to our Government. Thus on both sides it is alleged that a shrewd game has been played against Washington.

Whatever truth there may be in these assertions and apprehensions, it is not of a sort to sway our Government from its fixed policy. All that it needs to do is to reaffirm its principles of action in this business and to live up to them. The British proposals amount to cancellation of a part of the French debt to England, but our Government has more than once solemnly declared that it cannot admit cancellation or anything else which would rob an international debt of its sanctity. In the negotiations at London some see another ingenious move to draw the United States into an agreement to settle all the war debts in a joint transaction. But the policy of the United States has been steadily against this. Our Government has again and again announced its determination to adjust separately the debts due to the United States, treating each one on its merits and carefully estimating the ability of each debtor to pay. There is a sense, of course, in which this country cannot escape taking cognizance of the other European debts. French capacity to pay us will depend partly upon the amount which France has to pay to England. But this does not interfere with the general principle laid down that we shall settle our own debts by ourselves.

There is the less reason to be troubled about what happened in London because the agreements reached there were only tentative. To call them a settlement would be a misnomer. They were only the beginnings of a negotiation which will have to be continued at Washington. There will be time enough for full study of the matter in its every aspect. British opinion and French opinion will have matured, and the sentiment of this country will have become plainly manifest. Moreover, the expert financiers and the bankers will have got their material well in hand. Meanwhile, the course to be followed by our Government is plainly indicated. It will stand by the general policy which it has announced, while ready to apply it with consideration and even generosity, taking fully into account the needs as well as the capabilities of each debtor in turn.

CATTLE VS. TREES.

"For the most part they were men well along in years," says the dispatch about the troubles of the live-stock growers printed in yesterday's TIMES—"men who have spent the best years of their lives on the range." Herein lies the clue to the differences between the cattle and sheep men on the one hand and the Forestry Service on the other, which has resulted in a Senatorial subcommittee visiting the Western States with the view to considering drastic changes in the nation's conservation policy. These elderly owners of herds of cattle or sheep represent one of the finest types of the old West, real pioneers, whose courage and determination and energy helped to open up the Western country to civilization. To see them go is as sad as to see the passing of the covered wagon. In particular is it a pity to see them stricken down in old age by what seems to them perversity rather than adversity. The Government, they claim, by restricting the last of the public lands, and in particular by making the most desirable regions into national forests and parks, has introduced arbitrary methods of controlling grazing privileges on the ranges, and by its policy of charging a head fee per animal is driving the cattle and sheep men into bankruptcy. If the cattle are kept off the ranges, the price of beef, so they say, will soar still higher.

Yet the fate of the cattle men was settled years ago. Although it is true that the Forestry Service charges grazing fees and when grass has been short has often curtailed the number of animals that can be run on a given range within the national forests, the real blame lies not with the Government but with changed conditions. The open range ceased to exist as an economic asset the latter part of the last century. Twenty years ago the Government saw the need of controlling the grazing privileges on the forest ranges. This was necessary not only to protect the forests but to prevent too many cattle or sheep being run in one season, with resulting bad effects on the herds and on the pasture lands. The immediate cause of the stock men's dissatisfaction is, of course, the obstacles to free grazing on the ranges. But in striking at this they are really fighting the march of civilization, which has overrun the prairies and the ranges and is now invading the forests.

For the stock men there will be much and deserved sympathy. But the attack which they are leading has every appearance of being engineered by interests having as their object to loosen the Federal Government's hold on the nation's public lands. Not only do they wish to have the grazing fees lowered, but they want to see lands now held by the nation turned over to the States, believing that the chance of making inroads into the nation's reserves will be easier when these are controlled by fellow-Westerners who have inherited the pioneer's liberal views toward nature's riches than when they are directed from Washington. Friends of the forests claim that such a change would not only seriously weaken the nation's conservation policy, but would even endanger the forests. In their opinion the trees are more important than the live stock. In other words, they feel strongly that the first duty of the forests is to serve as forests, and that if, without interfering with the timber, grazing rights can be sold, these should be offered on a paying basis, just as are the timber rights. They object to preferential treatment being given the stock men over the lumber men. The public's interest, however, is not in the details of this quarrel, but rather in seeing that all efforts to unlock the nation's natural resources now conserved meet with a complete check.

THE STATE SCHOLARSHIPS.

The small stipends carried by the State university scholarships, the award of which for this year was announced yesterday, make in their total the only direct contribution on the part of the State, except the Cornell scholarships, toward higher education in colleges and universities of liberal arts and science. There are annual appropriations from the State Treasury for schools of agriculture, forestry, veterinary surgery, ceramics, &c., and there are schools of collegiate or post-high-school grade for the training of teachers and an excellent high school for the training of librarians. For the rest, the higher educational opportunities in the State are provided from private sources or by religious organizations. The total amount granted by the State in maintenance of these scholarships, 3,000 in number, is $300,000, the stipend being $100 a year for each student for a period of four years. This is a small sum when compared with the expenditures of many of the Commonwealths, especially of the Middle West and Far West, for the support of their State universities, whose yearly budgets run into millions.

These scholarships are, at any rate, a recognition by the State of scholastic excellence in our public high schools and in the private and parochial academies which take the Regents' examinations. When this plan was adopted, somewhat more than ten years ago, the stipend was adequate to pay the tuition fee in some institutions and to pay a considerable part of it in others. It is now not so helpful materially, but it has lost nothing of the honor which it carries. The distinction of being a "University Scholar" is the highest that any high-school student can win at the hands of the State. The list published yesterday is a real "roll of honor." It is made up of those whose marks for the four years are the highest in the State in the subjects required for admission to college. Some of the 750 named may find it impossible to go on to college; some may choose to go to an institution outside of the State and so may not avail of the stipend; but presumably most of them will enter a college in New York and so will still be in a sense under the State's tuition.

The State through its Education Department should now be able to make some inferences of general interest and value from the college records of these most promising pupils in the State. The failures among all the appointees in the past have not exceeded a fraction of 1 per cent. But the record of this highest group, as related to the other groups, ought to give valuable suggestions as to the best preparatory training. If data concerning intellectual development of these 3,000 students were kept through a quarter of a century, they would be of far greater worth to the State than the stipend to the students. It would be interesting to know, for one thing, whether there were developed in this group an unusual degree of "State-mindedness."

Those who are celebrating the anniversary of the granting of woman suffrage will doubtless note with satisfaction that in New York County 66 per cent. of the winners of these scholarships were girls. Hunter College must be particularly gratified to find that just one-half of these girls had their training in its preparatory school. What is obvious from a glance through the list of the names is that most of the scholarships have been won by children of the later comers to our shores. There is hardly a name of the earliest stock and there are few names that belong to the middle period. If scholastic excellence indicates also qualities that make for the best citizenship, this is a hopeful sign. But it is disappointing, none the less, to see the older surnames vanishing from lists that should contain the most of promise for the future of America, to whose past those who held them in other days have given so much.

MIGRATIONS TO AND FROM JERSEY.

Thanks to the automobile, New Jersey is being discovered by more New Yorkers every day. It is now 401 years since GIOVANNI DA VERRAZANO locked upon what is now Atlantic Highlands in the Lower Bay and upon First Mountain in the Upper. New Jersey is still terra incognita to most of New York City's six millions. They have vague ideas about its inhabitants and know it entomologically only, being firmly convinced that all the mosquitos in the five boroughs have winged their way across the Hudson. It will surprise them to learn that New Jersey is much in demand by migrating people for breadwinning and for homes. No fewer than 606,741 persons born in other States are now living in New Jersey. Of native Jersey men and women 360,542 have gone elsewhere. New York has contributed 373,345 persons born in this State to New Jersey's population, and 203,146 Pennsylvanians have moved in. Native Jersey folk who have migrated to New York number 124,014. New York City contains almost as many Jersey-born as Paterson, the totals being 87,709 and 88,676, respectively, and more than dwell in Trenton or Camden. But the greater drift is from the Empire State to New Jersey. Of that State Philadelphia has attracted 46,010 natives, Chicago 6,984, Los Angeles 6,199, Washington 5,076, Detroit 4,893, Baltimore 3,654.

New Englanders have moved to New Jersey in greater number than its sons and daughters have sought homes in the colder North, where the violet, New Jersey's State flower, blooms later. Massachusetts has exchanged 23,085 of its people for 12,378, Connecticut 16,763 for 16,451. New Jersey has drawn 98,408 persons from the South and sent 21,122 there, but it should be noted that Florida has exchanged 4,236 for 3,609. Of some other Southern States Virginia has sent 33,653 to New Jersey, Maryland 21,440, North Carolina 11,757, Georgia 10,419 and South Carolina 6,058. Many of the Southerners in recent years have been of negro blood, attracted by high post-war wages. The Jersey-born sometimes travel far. Thus, 18,674 have taken their penates to California, while only 2,581 Californians have preferred New Jersey. Texas has exchanged 1,932 for 2,618, Colorado 1,083 for 3,071 and Washington 749 for 3,110. The Middle West has welcomed 50,319 New Jersey people and sent 45,892 to the Eastern State. The balance is against Ohio, which parted with 12,798 for 11,148. Illinois exchanged 10,297 for 11,906 and Michigan 5,139 for 9,617.

The causation of the movements of population between New Jersey and other States does not seem to have been worked out. Of the 606,741 outlanders who have moved in, a considerable number must have been homeseekers from New York City and Philadelphia who earned their bread in those cities. Then New Jersey is an urban State, the majority of its people engaged in manufacturing. Its thousands of plants, factories and shops are magnets for mechanics in all parts of the country. New Jersey is so little a farming State that in some counties the production of crops is light. Nor is timber among its resources. The coast fisheries are profitable, but they employ the native-born mainly. These statistics of State exchanges hold a suggestion for the adept in bringing people together for social purposes. Why not more associations of outlanders, New England, Western, Pacific Coast and Southern societies and State organizations? Members could find congenial themes in the old swimming hole, the customs of their birthplaces and the realization of how small the world is, for everybody would know somebody with whom another outlander was hail-fellow-well-met or had encountered at the husking bee or the sewing circle. Community workers, welfare specialists and even the politicians might avail themselves of this idea.

PROHIBITION IN BOSTON.

Long ago "the solid men of Boston" were urged to "banish long potations." No doubt they have followed the advice; but there seem to be many Bostonians left who aren't solid on their feet in public. For eight or ten weeks the number of intoxicated persons in the streets has been noticeable. The Boston Herald says that "in some sections annoyances are almost as great as in the "pre-Volstead era." Policemen have been and are trying to diminish them. In two weeks the number of arrests for drunkenness was "about 1,875." In the same time in 1918 it was "about 1,950." To compare the arrests in the two periods, as some prejudiced or mischievous people do, is, we are told, "to walk a blind alley that leads nowhere." It is true that arrest statistics are often misleading, because police activities in regard to public drunkenness are sporadic and uneven. Aside from orders, some policemen are indulgent, some severe; and if a man is able to "navigate" and doesn't make a nuisance of himself, he will be allowed by the tolerant to go home in peace.

"We must not conclude," says our Boston contemporary, that "because "the totals are about the same there "is as much drinking. Common ob"servation is that drinking, in mod"eration and without moderation, is "much less than seven years ago." Common observation seven years ago was that there was much less drinking than seven years before that. There was a voluntary temperance movement going on long before prohibition. That after five years of prohibition there is about as much trouble from public drunkenness in Boston as there was before prohibition speaks ill for prohibition enforcement there. Prices are high, except for the home-brewers, yet the long potations habit continues. It is useless to regret that volunteer temperance or total abstinence wasn't permitted to continue and grow. No doubt there is now much compulsory total abstinence on the part of those who distrust the quality or are unequal to the cost of the forbidden liquors of today.

It is also useless to regret, however much it may be deplored, that, if prohibition has cut off many—though not the fortunate "tillers of the soil"—from their old moderations or immoderations, it has raised a new crop of drinkers and failed to make itself respected or observed by considerable parts of the community, including many otherwise law-abiding persons. The sudden substitution of uncustomary law for old and wide custom was bound to meet with determined and long opposition. If we agree with Sir HENRY MAINE that legislation is an agency to harmonize law with society, the Volstead act, extending prohibition, in the opinion of many, beyond the terms or intention of the amendment, hasn't proved itself a remarkable harmonizer. More intelligent methods of enforcing it have begun. Let us see now they will succeed in the cities. The farmers can keep on undisturbed, "making their own." The inebriated Bostonians will perhaps justify their thirst in part by their sense of equality.

CAMPAIGN TRUTH AND POETRY.

Truth, said a cynical English Judge, "will come out even in an affidavit." It certainly will come out in a bitter primary contest, in which old friends are parted, party organizations demoralized, and when twitting each other in public becomes the order of the day. At such a time more inside information can be learned about political management than can ever be acquired in the piping days of peace. Where in the histories, the political narratives, the election handbooks, the biographies of politicians, can one get so much light upon the inner working of the machine as he can when the machinists take to quarreling and to cursing each other like a very drab? Not a day passes now but we get new views of the little wisdom, but the great picturesqueness of political human nature, with which the world of this city is governed.

It is a wonderful time for district leaders and the captains of fifty and captains of hundreds under them. Their loyalty is sometimes under suspicion; they frequently show themselves willing to be happy with either candidate were the other dear charmer away; but always there seems to be a sublime faith or the part of the managers that these men can deliver the blocks of voters over whom they keep so vigilant a watch. This is the reason why the detachment of one district leader is regarded of such tremendous importance. And this is the reason why such efforts are made to hold in line any district leader who is thought to be wavering in his allegiance. As we learned yesterday, one method of stiffening him in his resistance to blandishments by the other side is to call him up on the telephone and inform him: "I have a nice receivership for you." Such incidents do not get into the books. Yet they obviously have more significance than twenty lectures on good government delivered before the women's clubs.

Other instructive side-lights flash on the observer every day as he follows the charges and rejoinders exchanged between the Mayor and the leader of Tammany Hall. It would seem that each has just found out what an unscrupulous villain the other is. Only a short time ago, Mr. HYLAN was doing everything in his power to ingratiate himself with Judge OLVANY: making appointments to office especially to please him; praising him to the reporters; appealing to him for renomination. But now he shudders and grows pale at the very mention of OLVANY'S name. It is a transformation scene which could be witnessed only in politics. The ancient philosopher who declared that no man suddenly becomes a scoundrel had not the advantage of studying the rapid shifts of character and of reputation during a campaign in New York City.

Poetry as well as truth comes out in the struggle. One contestant after another shows that he possesses the poetical temperament in a remarkable degree. This is sometimes displayed in a creative way. If it does not equal the Miltonic creation of a soul under the ribs of death, it does evolve a world of fancy in which distorted and impossible beings move. Never were so many depraved citizens held up to the public gaze by writers and speakers taking poetic liberties. And their poetic susceptibility is also shown in their immense credulity. They are ready to believe anything. Some one told the Mayor of a $1,000 bill offered to a politician, and instantly his eye, in a fine frenzy rolling, saw "money now flowing like running water." He must still believe that imagination rules the world.

REVOLUTION IN DETROIT.

HENRY FORD, who has expressed his disdain for history, is now engaged in making it. This week he appears before the American people as the author of one of the most revolutionary innovations of recent years. At a bound he has landed in the front rank of the apostles of change. Science and the eager human spirit are steadily reducing the small number of what are known as Constants of Nature. The earth's rotation on its axis is discovered to show slight variations. The path of light among the stars, as EINSTEIN has shown, betrays a tendency to wiggle. Plant life reveals new manifestations under the stimulus of artificial light. Human races alter under the influence of climate and food. Of social customs, morals, religious outlook, there is no need to speak. Above this sea of flux one invariable, one constant, one fundamental towered most prominent; and now that, too, is to go. The new Ford models embody "important changes in bodies and chassis." We must fall back, for a firm foothold, on Dr. JOHN ROACH STRATON, Senator REED of Missouri and the Flexible Tariff that never bends.

There is no use in mincing words about Mr. FORD'S announcement. It is a surrender to Beauty. To be sure, there are improvements in transmission, in brakeage and in ventilating shields. A people habituated to the utility of the Ford will presumably be grateful for an access of it. But the public cannot be deceived into believing that the Ford can really be much improved except in the direction of esthetics. The new models have more attractive fenders, "affording greater protection." But when did a Ford stand in need of protection? The new attraction is precisely in the attractiveness. Lowered are to be both body and chassis; lowered from their Puritan verticality toward the rakish, slinking, flapper styles on which civilization as a whole is being rapidly remolded. The new radiator shell is nickeled; and the closed cars are to have color. But when you introduce color it is the first great surrender to the lust of the eye. At first Mr. FORD may content himself with a sober green, with a subdued maroon. But he has painted the devil on the wall of his cars, and there is no telling how far he will go. We may yet see nile-blue Fords with wheels picked out in yellow.

Only dim intimations of the new Beauty that has thus broken on the American people have been vouchsafed us. Some seasons ago that brass radiator cap, which was as much America as anything one can think of, changed into a nickeled cap with scalloped edges, and the rigid Jonathan Edwards engine hood unbent a bit in the direction of the pagan streamline. But that was not enough to prepare us for this latest revolutionary step from New Englandism to Hellenism. Yet this much should be said: Like the highest forms of Beauty everywhere, Mr. FORD'S innovations seem definitely bound up with utility. That passion for change which, in the case of most other motor cars, has made American humanity in 1925 discontented with its 1924 model and thoroughly unhappy in its 1922 model, hitherto has not operated in the Ford. You bought your flivver and as the years passed you grew fonder of it, like an old coat, an old pipe, an old dog; and it repaid affection by service. But when Ford chassis and body and radiator color scheme begin to change, the serpent of desire has crept into Eden. The heart of America will be troubled with Beauty. It will proceed to exchange its old Fords for new ones.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Wives and Their "Obedience."

When Bishops differ, laymen will be prudently silent. It is not for us to say anything about the question of the omission of the word "obey" from the Episcopal marriage service. That will be discussed and decided at the Triennial General Convention in October; and the humble sociologist will not venture to choose between what may be called the Fundamentalist opinion, expressed by Bishop JOHNSON of Colorado, and the Modernist view, propounded by Bishop SLATTERY of Massachusetts.

The modern inquirer, however, may be permitted to inquire whether, apart from ceremonial form or promise, wives do "obey" their husbands. Isn't it more often a fact, isn't it the general fact, that husbands "obey" their wives and let them lead them by the nose?

The diplomatic, subtle creatures take all possible pains to conceal their art. They try to make us think that we are wise and determined; that they follow our ripe judgment. They defer to us. We sit attentive to our own applause. We are coaxed delicately. We are wheedled shamelessly. Out of our own majestic mind comes the course which it has been decided we shall take and which we venerate as peculiarly our own. The women see to it that our "face is saved." Our prestige in our own eyes is increased. We are "the masters in our own house," even if we don't dare repeat, save to ourselves, that common delusion of the henpecked. If we could get a composite verbal photograph of the female married mind, wouldn't it be something like this: "What infants, what stupids, men are! Why, you can wind 'em round your finger, like that."

And they do. They are not the obeyers. They are the obeyed. And all the finesse of their methods can't hide from many watchers and victims the gently compulsive leading-strings. The wise and obedient man admires, with whatever ironical confession, artistic processes which are too much for him. If MILL were alive, he would write on "The Subjection of Men."

Students and Cigarettes in Palaces.

American art students in France have always found plenty of Frenchmen to criticize their "free and easy ways." This may be at the bottom of the hostility shown by some Paris papers to the American schools of music and art at Fontainebleau. This year, as last, they have protested against the danger of permitting Americans, whose carelessness and fondness for cigarettes are proverbial, to live in the wing of the Fontainebleau Palace which the French Government put at the disposal of the schools. These Americans, they said, would surely burn the palace down if they had the chance. When, therefore, a fire occurred in one of the wings of the palace this Summer, the French papers at once cried, "We told you so!" and dispatches were cabled to this country placing the blame on the American students.

But a parent of two of the pupils has written to the papers to point out that the fire which broke out at the Fontainebleau Palace was in a wing distant from that occupied by the Americans, and that had it not been for the students' energy in fighting it, it might well have spread. Furthermore, the correspondent states that the Americans are housed in a wing in which no fine works of art are hung and that the charges that they have injured the property are altogether unfounded. This information coincides with that received from others conversant with the affairs of the Fontainebleau school. Apparently France also has her Ku Kluxers, in fact if not in name.

Hamlet and Bond Street.

London's leading dramatic critics were neither bewildered nor shocked by Sir BARRY JACKSON'S production of "Hamlet" in modern dress. Dinner jackets, bobbed hair, cigarettes, a frock coat on the sturdy form of Polonius and a pistol in the hand of Laertes offered no bar to the emotional surge of the play or the sweep of lofty thought. The performance "turned out to be a perfectly serious and artistic attempt instead of an irreverent slap at SHAKESPEARE."

Just why irreverence should have been expected, especially by students of the theatre, is hard to say. Hamlet in a dinner jacket has the very respectable precedent of DAVID GARRICK, who played the Prince of Denmark in the black coat and ruffles of a gentleman of the eighteenth century. Extant pictures of GARRICK as Macbeth show him in military coat and laced vest, startlingly like the young GEORGE WASHINGTON of General BRADDOCK'S expedition.

In one respect, however, the case for GARRICK is stronger than for Sir BARRY JACKSON of today. GARRICK resorted to contemporary costume as a protest against the nondescript, if standardized, costume that prevailed in historical plays. The tragic hero before his time bedecked himself in a synthesis of all the ages and all the climes. Coriolanus looked startlingly like GENGHIS Khan, and both looked startling enough, forsooth. The prime requirement was a notable display of feathers, tunics, mantles and heroically bare calves. Over in France, at the same time, Jason strutted about in similar rig, while Medea uttered her agonies and her rages in court farthingale and diamonds.

In sharp reaction against the costume that never was on land or sea, GARRICK went straight to the dress of GEORGE II. For us there is no such excuse. The theatrical costumer is historical to a fault. Down to the minutest accessories of the stage, the effort has been for a minute fidelity to the specific period. The motive in the London experiment must have been rather to emphasize the potency and universality of SHAKESPEARE by showing how he can transcend the purposed incongruity of setting. In the field of painting there is ample precedent. The pliety of a Flemish burgomaster saw nothing out of the way in a Holy Family arrayed in seventeenth century garb.

The test must be severer when we pass from emotions to manners. The dispatches do not state how the Ghost was dressed. In itself, a ghost is much more credible among people costumed like the twelfth century than the twentieth. In the twelfth century nearly everybody believed in ghosts, while at present comparatively few do. So it is with the art of poisoning undesirable husbands or troublesome heirs apparent. Murder in the twentieth century is practiced more subtly than by pouring poison into the ear of a sleeping monarch or tipping a sword-point with deadly venom. The newer method is to administer the dose in the breakfast cereal.

LIBRARIANS UNDERPAID.

League of Women Voters Calls for an Adequate Salary.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a number of recent editorials you have very effectively pointed out the need of the New York Public Library for new books and equipment. While this need does exist, and should be brought to the attention of people generally, an even greater need of our public library system seems not to have been emphasized at all.

Some months ago the New York League of Women Voters, First Region, began to investigate the salaries which were paid to the librarians at the New York Public Library and were greatly perturbed to find that in some instances the pay for what is highly specialized work, requiring long and arduous training, does not even represent a living wage, and that increases in salaries already too low often do not occur for periods of five years and more.

As a result there is an immense amount of change in the personnel of the library, and those who stay are overworked and underpaid, but remain because of their great love for the work which they are able to do for the children and adults with whom they come in contact. It need scarcely be emphasized what effective social work for citizenship and general culture the librarians have been quietly doing for years. Almost no service requiring the same training and intellectual equipment is so poorly paid by the city, and yet there are librarians now employed at a salary of $992 per year.

The librarians are requesting an increase in the budgetary appropriation for salary and wages in the circulation department of only $315,616, representing a $400 increase in all salaries.

We have also ascertained that the salaries paid in the New York Public Library are lower than those paid in the two other libraries of Greater New York, an inequality which certainly should not be permitted to continue. As a result of our investigation the legislative committee recently passed the following resolution:

"Whereas the New York League of Women Voters, First Region, has already approved of a minimum entrance salary of $1,200 for trained librarians, with adequate appropriations for raising the standard of salaries of trained library workers throughout the system, be it

"Resolved, That the Legislative Committee of the New York League of Women Voters, First Region, endorse the $400 flat increase of all salaries of all librarians requested by the Board of Trustees of the New York Public Library."

We propose to present this resolution to the members of the Board of Estimate, because, as a disinterested, non-partisan body of women voters, as well as taxpayers, we feel that immediate steps should be taken to compensate a group of workers who have for years been quietly, patiently, but most effectively, doing hard work for which they have been receiving entirely inadequate compensation.

It is time that this work received recognition, and the most effective expression of this would be an increase in salary.

Early Champion of Opera.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As an old New Yorker I have been much interested in the news that the old Academy of Music, at Irving Place and Fourteenth Street, for so many years the home of grand opera in New York and the gathering place of the city's most exclusive society, as well as the shrine of music lovers in general, is presently to be torn down to give place to a commercial building.

I have been amazed to find in connection therewith no mention at all of the man who, more than any other, was identified with it; who, under almost impossible conditions of high rent and free seats and boxes to the stockholders, for many years gave New York grand opera second to none in the world at that time, and who produced more new operas and introduced more famous artists than any other man has ever done.

Surely, if the various writers had informed themselves, even superficially, as to the history of the Academy of Music, they could not well have omitted the name of Max Maretzek.

Amend Their Figures on Transit.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In this association's "Analysis of Transit Policy," published in July last, on page 19 appeared the following, relative to the effect of increased operating costs upon the financial condition of the subways:

"The aggregate increase above the level of 1913 in the operating expenses of the two companies was $34,430,312. The increase in revenue over 1913 was $34,825,648. It thus appears that the new revenues were almost wholly consumed by the increase in operating cost. The present deficit is solely due to that cause."

It was the purpose of the foregoing statement to compare the revenues and expenses of 1913 with those of the fiscal year ended June 30, 1924. Inadvertently, the revenue figures for the preceding year, 1923—$34,825,648—were used instead of those for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924—$39,769,355.

THE TIME MAKER.

The watchmaker sits
And files and fits,
Well the metals his hand obey.
While about him each clock
Saith tock, tick tock,
Tick tock thro' the livelong day.

The watchmaker's hand
Is still; the sand
In his glass hath run its way.
But about him each clock
Saith tock, tick tock,
Tick tock thro' the livelong day.

They speak of the man
And the course he ran,
Its good or its ill array;
Naught saith each clock,
Save tock, tick tock,
Tick tock thro' each coming day.

SCAMMON LOCKWOOD.

SIMS SAYS PLANES DOOM BATTLESHIPS

Admiral Declares Superiority in Air Means Inevitable Victory in Sea Fights.

FULLAM AGREES WITH HIM

Aero Digest Will Contain Letters—Also Story That Hawaii Planes "Destroyed" Blue Fleet.

Rear Admiral W. S. Sims, retired, in a letter appearing in the September issue of The Aero Digest and made public yesterday, says aircraft have sounded the doom of the battleship. In the same issue W. R. Chellgard declares that the aircraft of the "Black," or land, forces in the recent army and navy manoeuvres in Hawaii won a complete victory and surprised and destroyed the "Blue" scouting fleet.

Admiral Sims's letter is addressed to Rear Admiral W. F. Fullam, retired, who characterized it as "an invulnerable argument, unassailable in its logic and hitting the target squarely in the middle of the bull's-eye." Admiral Sims wrote:

"Even the most hard-boiled of the battleship men have to acknowledge that the precious battleships cannot escape disablement in the presence of an air force that completely commands the air over them. They may be able to 'drive pine plugs into the leaks' and limp into port, as the General Board claims, but as far as the battle is concerned they might as well be sunk.

"If, therefore, the great battleships cannot remain in the fighting line if attacked by an efficient air force that is practically unopposed, it follows that of two otherwise equal fleets the one having enough planes to command the air over its enemy will win just as surely as an airplane carrier of thirty knots meeting a twenty-two-knot battleship alone at sea will put the other out of action with explosive bombs alone. If two carriers meet two battleships the result will be the same. And the same will hold true of any number.

Tells Carriers' Advantages.

"As the carriers have the greater speed they will remain out of range of the battleships' guns, and therefore suffer no damage whatever while the battle goes on between the bombs on the one side and the anti-aircraft guns on the other. The great battleships could not long survive as units under such conditions. Experiments with anti-aircraft gunfire have shown that their ability to hit the planes is practically negligible, even in broad daylight.

"As the carriers' speed would enable them to choose their own time for attack, they would naturally defer action until after sundown, when they could drop bombs with great accuracy from low altitudes while remaining practically invisible. So great would be the superiority of the carriers that a certain number of them could destroy a much greater number of battleships.

"It is, therefore, for the above reasons that the 'hot-air' advocates insist upon a naval policy of a command of the air. That cannot be achieved by spending the bulk of the naval appropriation maintaining a fleet of battleships."

In his article about the manoeuvres in Hawaii Mr. Chellgard writes that Admirals of the Blue Fleet made many complimentary remarks, "not for publication, of course," such as "our chief enemies were the bombing and torpedo planes," and again, "the necessity for air supremacy has been demonstrated." Declaring the "obvious facts of the case seem to have been camouflaged," Mr. Chellgard continues:

"What did the air service actually accomplish? They maintained patrols around the Hawaiian Islands and 150 miles from shore from the opening hour of the manoeuvres until the fleet was actually in sight, flying on this job alone over 10,000 miles, much of it out of sight of land. They established early contact with the fleet and maintained it, so the Black forces were informed at all times of the location of the main bodies of the enemy, or that no enemy was within striking distance.

Bombed the Langley.

"They established an advance base on the Island of Lanai and later, when an attempt was made by a naval vessel to capture it, seven light bombardment planes attacked and without question destroyed the landing party (constructively). They bombed an air base which the enemy had established on Molokai. They located the Blue aircraft carrier Langley and bombed her unprotected wooden deck with bombs sufficiently large to put her out of commission—this before a single plane, her only defense, could take off. They shot down with ease the few Blue planes which wandered in to look over the airdromes of the defenders.

"Sunday, April 27, the enemy scouting fleet having advanced to within easy reach, the 'Air' attacked with 72 actual Black planes and the scouting fleet was destroyed (theoretically). No defense could be made against them, and the fact that some of the decks were covered with awning against rain, while on other vessels anti-aircraft guns were horizontal, proves not only the surprise feature of the attack, but also its complete success.

"The real lesson taught by the manoeuvres is that a fleet properly equipped with aircraft against a force with improper air protection could anchor at ease off one of the outlying Hawaiian Islands and send forward their pursuit aviation to wipe the skies clear of enemy aircraft. This done they would follow with their bombers, quite able to subdue at will coast and field artillery defenses. After that the fleet could steam up and land all the troops it wished, protected by its own guns and air forces."

GEMS ON 'UNKNOWN'S' TOMB

Tributes From Women Are Kept Intact at Westminster Abbey.

LONDON, Aug. 27 (AP).—The crypt under the tomb of the "Unknown Warrior" in Westminster Abbey is rapidly becoming a veritable store of gold and silver in tributes laid on the tomb.

One of the vergers in Westminster some time ago noticed a gold brooch lying on the tomb of the "Unknown." He thought it had been dropped inadvertently, but on following days he found rings and silver ornaments. A close watch revealed the fact that women, possibly having lost relatives in the war, were leaving personal jewelry on the tomb.

So numerous have these offerings become that the tomb daily is cleared of the various articles, which are taken down to the crypt. It has not been decided what shall be done with the tributes.

NO WRECK OF SHENANDOAH.

Rotogravure Pictures Portray Small Model, Not Ship Itself.

Owing to a misleading caption, "Tragedy at Lakehurst," appearing yesterday in an advertisement of the Rotogravure Section of THE NEW YORK TIMES for next Sunday, the impression was conveyed that there had been a wreck of the airship Shenandoah in the woods near its hangar at Lakehurst, N. J.

The advertisement was based on pictures of a miniature model of the Shenandoah, made by one of the members of the crew. One of the pictures shows the model of the airship lying on its side on the ground; the other, in its maker's lap.

200 PATRONESSES TO AID 'CHEER-EE-O'

DRESS REHEARSAL IS HELD

Main Street Ablaze With Posters for Hospital Benefit Show to Be Given Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 27.—More than 200 are on the list of patronesses for "Cheer-ee-o," the amateur revue to be given Saturday for the benefit of the Southampton Hospital. Half of these are from Southampton.

The dress rehearsal was held this evening in the new Parish Hall on Hill Street. Miss Lila H. Stewart, who is directing the rehearsals, was much pleased with the work of the cast.

Southampton is cooperating splendidly with those in charge to collect a substantial sum for the hospital's $53,000 drive. Main Street is plastered with posters, and society women in charge of the production have canceled almost all their week-end social engagements to aid the production.

Among the local patronesses for the revue are Mrs. Thomas H. Barber, Mrs. Charles T. Barney, Mrs. Albert B. Boardman, Mrs. Nicholas M. Butler, Mrs. Joseph Clark, Mrs. Henry E. Coe, Mrs. Thomas L. Chadbourne, Mrs. John E. Cowdin, Mrs. George C. Dewitt, Mrs. Marshall Dodge, Mrs. George H. Drew, Mrs. Henry F. Dupont, Mrs. F. Peter Dunne, Mrs. Joseph R. Dilworth, Mrs. George A. Dixon, Mrs. G. SAYS 'HICKS' DEMAND HAPPY SCREEN ENDING

'The Boy Has Gotta Get the Girl and the Dough,' Repeats Briton in Attacking Our Films.

By T. R. YBARRA.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—"The Hicks Decide" is the title of the second article in his series of articles on American movies by Robert Nichols, who investigated them at Hollywood, in The London Times.

According to Nichols, the entire world, especially Great Britain, which depends for most of its films on the American output, is condemned to receive only what the "hicks"—American rural and small-town audiences—sanction, because the producers depend for their profits on these "hicks," with the big American cities and all of Europe and the rest of the world as mere subsidiary territory.

Hence most American films, according to Nichols, paint heroines entirely white and villains entirely black, admitting no subtlety of any sort. Hence, also, he adds, "hicks" ideas formed many years ago regarding the world outside of the "hick" regions are sedulously fostered by the film producers.

Therefore, in American films "all women are either moral or immoral, the term moral being used solely in reference to sexual matters. All great cities are sinks of depravity. All moneyed men spend their leisure in cabarets. Most foreigners are corrupt. All French women save those who are marquises are harlots, and all Englishmen save those who are monocled nilords are bullying drunkards."

This British writer declares that in Hollywood the "happy ending" is absolutely the only ending allowed on the screen. He tells of a scenario editor who thus laid down in Hollywood the happy ending theory:

"You gotta leave 'em happy." The boy has gotta get the girl and the dough." "Leave 'em all dolled up and driving off in a big car."

Which leads the Britisher to remark: "Until scenario writers and producers have the courage to reveal to the fans philosophic happiness as opposed to happiness in terms of dough, girl and car, the fans will continue so to envisage it."

BANCROFT FUNERAL HELD IN CHICAGO

Dignitaries of American and Japanese Governments Are Present at Obsequies.

MATSUDAIRA PAYS TRIBUTE

Tokio Envoy Describes His Death as a Great Blow to Japan and America.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Funeral services for Edgar A. Bancroft, late United States Ambassador to Japan, were held at the Fourth Presbyterian Church this afternoon, with dignitaries of the American and Japanese Governments and a large gathering of friends in attendance. Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese Ambassador to Washington; Vice President Charles G. Dawes, J. Butler Wright, representing the State Department, and Mayor Dever were among the twoscore honorary pallbearers. Organizations with which Mr. Bancroft was identified during his long residence in Chicago, including the Union League Club, Hamilton Club, Commercial Club, the Association of Commerce and the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, were represented at the services by large delegations.

Before the services began a soldier stood at attention beside the casket, the only suggestion of military honors conferred by both Japan and the United States during the funeral party's long journey to the former home of the Ambassador.

Seated in front at one side were members of the family, Mrs. Wilson Pierce and Frederic Bancroft, sister and brother of the late Ambassador; Eldridge Pierce and Miss Catherine Pierce, nephew and niece, and Miss Sarah Bancroft of Galesburg, Ill., a cousin.

Across the aisle were the Japanese Ambassador with his military and naval aids, Consul Samaura and U. Shigematsu, Vice Consul at Chicago; Vice President Dawes and Mr. Wright.

Except for the presence of distinguished men among the mourners, the services were simple in the extreme. There was no sermon. Dr. G. K. McClure, President of the McCormick Theological Seminary, for years a friend of Mr. Bancroft, conducted the rites. The church quartet sang and Leo Sowerby played the organ.

Burial will be toworrow at Galesburg, Ill., with a service as simple as that held in the church here today. Until the casket is taken to the train it will lie in the church, half surrounded by a fragrant setting of evergreens, with large urns containing white lilies, red roses and blue snapdragons.

A tribute to Ambassador Bancroft's services to the two countries in the brief time he represented his nation at Tokio was spoken by Ambassador Matsudaira to the reception committee that met him on his arrival from Washington today.

"Every one who knew the Ambassador admired him as a man of fine character," he said. "He endeared himself to all of us with whom he came in contact. His death was a great blow to Japan as well as to America and in no small sense a personal loss.

"You lost a worthy representative and we lost a good man and a good friend. So I am here in respect to his memory and to pay a last tribute. For many years we shall feel his loss. He arrived in Japan at a rather difficult time, though he was there only a short time, the Japanese people will mourn his death for many years to come.

"The situation was delicate when Mr. Bancroft came to Japan. There was considerable resentment over the United States immigration laws and the usual misunderstanding of the principles and motives involved. Mr. Bancroft played no small part in the restoration of confidence and good-will."

Ambassador Matsudaira said he became acquainted with Mr. Bancroft while serving as Minister of Foreign Affairs.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP).—President Coolidge's appreciation of Japanese courtesies extended upon the occasion of Ambassador Bancroft's death was acknowledged today by the Emperor of Japan.

"I beg to tender to you," the Emperor said in his message, "my sincere thanks for your very courteous message. Having learned that the remains of the late Ambassador Bancroft now have arrived in his motherland, I desire to pay my renewed tribute of condolence to his memory and to assure that his endeavors in promoting the friendship between our two nations will never be effaced from my remembrance."

A NEW DELMONICO'S IS PLANNED FOR 1926

Charles Crist Delmonico Announces That He and His Brothers Will Run It.

Charles Crist Delmonico, whose uncle and namesake sold the famous Fifth Avenue restaurant out of the Delmonico family in 1905, announced yesterday that he and his two brothers, Gardner and Lorenzo, would open a new Delmonico establishment late in 1926.

"The burial services accorded the Delmonicos following the demolition of the old place have led us to make known our plans, although they are still indefinite," he said. "Everybody got the impression that we were dead. Our announcement is premature, but we want to correct that impression."

The new establishment, as outlined by Mr. Delmonico, will differ widely from that which in the latter part of the last century gained an almost world-wide repute. Instead of being merely a restaurant it will be an apartment hotel, smaller but similar to the present Park Lane, and, Mr. Delmonico said, "extremely exclusive."

"We have under consideration three different sites," he declared. "We will locate on the east side between Fortieth and Fifty-ninth Streets. Besides the restaurant and private dining rooms in the apartment hotel there will be subsidiary restaurants elsewhere in New York, also operating under Delmonico name and management. We plan two to start with. We shall erect similar establishments in Chicago and San Francisco as soon as the New York one is completed."

Outside backing, Mr. Delmonico said, was furnishing capital to the extent of $10,000,000. He said he could not name the interested financiers until the project was further along.

Gardner Delmonico outlined "Delmonico ideas" as they will apply to the new undertaking. He said: "From the time the old place went out of the family it began to go to the dogs. There were several successful Delmonico restaurants in the old days, dating back to 1825, and at the head of each was a member of the Delmonico family, who attended to it and impressed his personality upon it. It was the lack of personality that ruined the old place, and it is the presence of it which will make the new one succeed.

The new Delmonico menus would be simpler than in the old days, because, he said, the public taste had changed. Whereas in former times Delmonico's menu offered every dish known to the palate of the epicure, the new Delmonico's will concentrate on a restricted menu comprising the best-liked dishes.

The old Delmonico Restaurant in Fifth Avenue at Forty-fourth Street is now being torn down to make room for a thirty-one-story office building. The three Delmonico brothers attended a "farewell dinner" there a few days ago in its last undemolished room.

TWO SOVIET AGENTS HERE DROWN IN LAKE

One, Arriving From Europe Only Three Days Ago, Was Visiting at Long Lake With Other.

Isaiah Hoorgin and George Slansky of this city, representatives of the Soviet Government, were drowned yesterday in Long Lake, N. Y., it was learned last night by friends here, an Associated Press dispatch said. No details of the drowning were received.

Mr. Hoorgin was connected with the Russian Government's purchasing department in New York. Mr. Slansky, who was connected with the woolen department of the Soviet, arrived in New York from Europe only three days ago and had gone with Mr. Hoorgin to Long Lake for a rest.

Mr. Hoorgin was President of the Amtorg Trading Company, which though not acting here as agent for the Soviet Government itself, represented the State Commercial Import and Export Bureau and numerous trade organizations in Russia, the Caucasus and the Ukraine. In England, however, the Amtorg Company acted as the buying and selling agent for the Soviet Government.

The Amtorg Trading Company here resulted from a consolidation of the Arcos-America, Inc., and the Products Exchange Corporation. It was incorporated here in May, 1924, with an authorized capital of $1,000,000. The company placed orders that year in this country for $10,000,000 worth of machinery for delivery in Russia.

'PAT' POWERS LOSES BRAVE FIGHT TO LIVE

WAS EASTERN LEAGUE HEAD

Left Baseball for a Time to Run Six-Day Bicycle Races—Was a Prominent Elk.

Patrick Thomas Powers of 2,617 Hudson Boulevard, Jersey City, who was President of the old Eastern Baseball League for eighteen years, from 1892 to 1910, and was nationally known as a promoter of sporting events, especially the six-day bicycle races in Madison Square Garden, died yesterday morning at his Summer home in Inlet Terrace, Belmar, N. J., at the age of 63. His death was due to the combined effects of diabetes and a gangrenous condition that developed at the back of his neck from a neglected carbuncle, which his physician, Dr. George W. Potts of Asbury Park, thought was caused by a collar button. Dr. Potts said that the strain on the patient's strength proved too great. "He made a brave fight to live," said the doctor, "but the trouble had gone too far when we started to treat it."

There will be a funeral service in the Jersey City residence at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, followed by a requiem mass in St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, Jersey City, at 10 o'clock.

The near relatives surviving are the widow, five sisters and three daughters, Mrs. James Sanford and Miss Elizabeth Powers of Jersey City and Mrs. W. S. Billington of Piedmont, N. Y.

"Pat" Powers was born in Trenton, N. J., and his first official job in baseball was that of manager of the Trenton team. He preceded John M. Ward for a brief period as manager of the New York Giants, and then became President of the Eastern League. His connection with that organization ended in December, 1910, after an exciting meeting of the club owners at the Victoria Hotel. The reason for the opposition to continuing him in office was said to have been his alleged unduly extensive interests outside the Eastern League. He was succeeded as President by Edward G. Barrow, now secretary of the Yankees.

For several years thereafter Mr. Powers was out of baseball, devoting himself to six-day bicycle races and various prizefighting promotions, including the affairs of the short-lived Madison Square Athletic Club, which tried to put on shows in the Garden under the new boxing law of 1911. Harry Pollok was his partner in most of these enterprises. With the formation of the "outlaw" Federal League, Mr. Powers, in association with Harry F. Sinclair, oil operator and owner of the Rancocas racing stable, assumed charge of the Newark Club. Following the dissolution of the league he continued as a business associate of Mr. Sinclair.

Mr. Powers was Past Grand Trustee of the Grand Lodge of Elks, a Past State President in New Jersey, and a Past Exalted Ruler of the Jersey City Lodge.

THOMAS L. HISGEN DIES.

Fought Standard Oil—Ran for Governor of Massachusetts.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 27 (AP).—Thomas L. Hisgen, who in 1907 polled 75,000 votes for Governor of Massachusetts on the Independence League ticket and followed that by campaigning the country as candidate for the Presidency on the same ticket, died here today, aged 67 years.

Mr. Hisgen came into prominence in this part of the country about twenty years ago, when, as head of the Four Brothers Independent Oil Company, he fought the Standard Oil Company, and in the course of the conflict introduced in the Legislature an anti-discrimination bill, which, however, did not pass. He retired from the oil business in 1917.

Mr. Hisgen entered the oil industry in the course of a fight between the firm of Hisgen Brothers, makers of axle grease, and the Standard Oil Company, started by the refusal of the brothers to sell their business to the Standard. He was born at Petersburg, Ind., and went to Albany as a youth, when he joined his father and brothers in 1889 in their axle grease venture. They built a factory at Albany in 1898.

DELIVERED IN CALIFORNIA CAMP IN 51 HOURS

Aug. 26, 1925.

The New York Times:

My Monday morning copy of The New York Times arrived Wednesday noon.

Its regular and prompt delivery was a matter of interest not only to members of the club, but, I also learned, to the officials of the San Francisco Postoffice.

H. HOBART PORTER,
Pres., Water-Works and Electric Securities Corp.,
50 Broad St., New York.

Mr. Porter spent the latter part of July at the Summer encampment of the Bohemian Club of San Francisco. He ordered The New York Times sent him by airplane. The Times left the Thirty-third Street Postoffice in New York City at 9 o'clock in the morning and was placed aboard the airplane at New Brunswick, N. J., about 9:30. It arrived in San Francisco late on the following day and was sent from there to the camp.

VIVAUDOU ALLEGES STOCK DEAL FRAUD

Perfumer Sues Jules S. Bache & Co., Jervis Harbeck and David A. Schulte.

ASKS $450,000 DAMAGES

Asserts He Was Induced to Sell Stock at $7 a Share on False Representations.

Suit has been filed in the Supreme Court of New York County by Victor Vivaudou, formerly President of V. Vivaudou, Inc., perfume manufacturers, against Jules S. Bache & Co., David A. Schulte and Jervis Harbeck for $450,000 damages, on an allegation of conspiracy and fraudulent misrepresentation. The defendants have made a general denial of the charges.

Vivaudou's complaint alleges that last September he was induced by the defendants to sell to Harbeck 50,000 shares of V. Vivaudou, Inc., at $7 a share when the stock was actually worth more than twice that. He is suing for the difference between $350,000, which he received for the stock, and $800,000, which he asserts was its actual value at that time. The stock sold for $14 a share on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday.

He charges that the defendants told him that the Bach interests had investigated the perfumery business and had decided to sell their holdings in V. Vivaudou, Inc., and that they induced him to sell his stock to Harbeck by informing him that they had agreed to sell their holdings to Harbeck at the same figure and that the latter would buy only if he could obtain both Vivadou's and the Bache company's stock. He later learned, he says, that Bache & Co. never sold their holdings and that they, Harbeck and David Schulte divided the stock which he sold.

He also alleges that the defendants by means of pools and combinations forced the price of the stock down to $7 a share on the New York Stock Exchange, although it was worth more than that. After they had forced him out they boosted the stock to $20 a share, he says.

Boskey, Schiller, Marvin & Serling represent Mr. Vivaudou in the action and Kent & Kent appear for Jules S. Bache & Co. Jerome Eisner represents Mr. Schulte.

LA GUARDIA IN $50,000 SUIT.

National Investment Holders Head Charges Neglect of Prosecution.

Charles B. Frasca, Chairman of a committee of stockholders of the National Investment Company, Inc., brought suit yesterday in the Supreme Court against Fiorello H. LaGuardia and his law partner, Abraham S. Cutler, alleging that they had damaged his reputation and credit to the extent of $50,000. In his complaint Frasca said that on Aug. 30, 1923, he had engaged Representative La Guardia to prosecute claims of stockholders against the corporation. The agreement, he said, was oral, and under its terms Representative La Guardia wasto receive one-half of the total sum paid to the committee by the stockholders at the rate of $5 on each share of stock, and in addition a contingent fee of 15 per cent. of all sums recovered.

The complaint charges that the law firm did not prosecute the claims with skill and became so neglectful that Frasca was finally forced to take 125 of the claims out of the hands of the law firm. Frasca also alleges that the defendants attempted to poison the minds of the stockholders against him and have "thereby induced many to form the opinion that there has been dishonesty on the part of the plaintiff."

SEEK TO SPEED BOARDWALK

Rockaway Citizens Will Ask City for Funds Today.

A delegation of about five hundred citizens of the Rockaways were preparing last night to storm the Board of Estimate meeting today and back up the demand of Borough President Maurice E. Connolly for an appropriation to permit actual construction of the boardwalk to get under way immediately. It also will urge the necessity of funds to fill in the beach between Beach Twenty-fifth Street and Beach Fifty-eighth Street, and from Beach 109th Street to Beach 142d Street in Rockaway Park.

At meetings of several civic organizations in the Rockaways, last night, including the Rockaway Beach and the Arverne Boards of Trade, it was decided to charter buses to bring the citizens to Manhattan today.

QUEENSBORO LINK WANTED BY JANUARY

5th Av. Association Asks That Contracts for Rails and Ties Be Awarded Immediately.

WORK WELL UNDER WAY

Early Relief of Subway Congestion in the Grand Central District Is Sought.

The Fifth Avenue Association sent a letter yesterday to John H. Delaney, Chairman of the Board of Transportation, asking that contracts for rails and ties for the new Forty-second Street-Queensboro subway be awarded without delay so that the link, at least as far as Fifth Avenue, might be placed in operation by January, 1926. The association addressed its communication after representatives had inspected the progress of the new tube.

"Our request," said a statement from the association, "is made after two years of continuous effort to secure the partial completion of this line and its operation as far as Fifth Avenue, in advance of the date set for opening the entire extension, which runs west to Eighth Avenue and Forty-first Street. We have made this effort in the interest of our members and their employes in the Fifth Avenue section, and of the thousands of passengers that are discharged daily on the crowded platform of Grand Central Station and forced to make their way either in the congested shuttle trains or through the heavy street traffic to their destinations west of Lexington Avenue.

"Our present request is based upon an actual inspection of the work made last Tuesday, Aug. 25, in company with the engineers of the Powers-Kennedy Contracting Company, who are building the tunnel, and with representatives of the Forty-second Street Property Owners and Merchants' Association, who, with our organization and the Queensboro Chamber of Commerce, have been striving for this necessary transit relief. We found that the south tunnel, which will carry eastbound trains, is entirely completed between Sixth Avenue and the Grand Central.

"The north tunnel is also entirely completed except for a short stretch under the Fifth Avenue roadway, where rock excavation and installation of the concrete walls are proceeding rapidly. It is our belief that both tubes will be entirely finished before the end of October, and that, if a contract is let now for the laying of tracks and ties, this work can also be finished before the end of December. There will then remain but thirty days' work by the Inteerborough Rapid Transit Company in installing power lines, third rail, signal and switch equipment, station turnstiles, &c. The Fifth Avenue station itself is completed, and a separate contract for station tinish, including tile work, &c., is now well under way, and the work will be completed by the first of the yeai.

"The Board of Transportation has given every measure of support to the organizations interested in securing this service. We understand that, in anticipation of the early completion of the tunnel work, they have ordered the ties and rails, and we feel certain that they will grant our request for prompt action on the contract.

"It was estimated at the end of 1923 that more than 100,000 persons used the Queensboro subway coming into Grand Central Terminal every day. Of this number it was estimated that 25,000 transferred to the shuttle trains, contributing greatly to the congestion on that service and forming approximately 25 per cent. of those who jam into these shuttle trains. Since that time the growth of Queens has increased those figures considerably and they are becoming greater every day.

"The opening of the extension as far as the Fifth Avenue Station will tremendously relieve the serious conditions that now exist. If passengers employed in or wishing to reach the midtown zone can be carried to the Fifth Avenue Station, which is under Bryant Park, with entrances at Fifth and Sixth Avenues, it will materially reduce the congestion and confusion which result from trying to 'follow the green line' in the subway mazes at both Grand Central and Times Square Stations. The elimination of these passengers from the crowds at Grand Central and Times Square Stations will benefit proportionately those who reside in Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx who must of necessity change at both these points.

"It will reduce the congestion of pedestrians on the Forty-second Street sidewalks and save thousands of passengers from a five to a ten-minute walk daily through the overburdened streets of the midtown zone. As the level of the tracks and station platforms of the Fifth Avenue Station will be at least 40 feet nearer the street surface than the tracks and platforms of the Queensboro Station at Grand Central, which are 80 feet below the street level, it will reduce inconvenience and cut down the frightful jamming of passengers in the elevators which at present run between the upper and lower Grand Central Station levels. It will greatly simplify the confusing subway problem that now exists at both Forty-second Street stations by keeping a large portion of the Queensboro traffic separate from the flow of traffic north and south on the trunk lines and east and west on shuttle trains."

SAY PUBLIC LANDS ARE MISMANAGED

Livestock Men Tell Senators Eastern Officials Know Nothing of Domain Problems.

FOREST SERVICE ASSAILED

SHOOTINGS ARE DEFENDED

Cattle Raisers Denounce 'Invasions' by Wool Ranchers—More Complaints of Bankruptcy.

Special to The New York Times.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 27.—This was a lively day so far as the Senate Public Lands Committee is concerned. In two long sessions, one in the morning and the other this afternoon, the committee heard men prominent in the live stock industry of Utah denounce as a "curse" the existing 640-acres homesteading law; they heard the forestry service subjected to bitter criticism, and even listened to a witness, a high official of the Utah Cattlemen's Association, seek to justify the shooting of herders and the driving of sheep over precipices by cattle men whose grazing lands in the public domain had been invaded by the sheep growers.

"It was for the most part a group of witnesses who will not soon be forgotten by the Senators who heard them tell their tales of woe. For instance, there was W. A. Crane, a sheep man of Herrmann, Utah, who solemnly informed the committee that because he happens to be unduly fat does not mean that he is proportionately prosperous. He declared that in his home town the cattle men and sheep men are raising such a racket that he has about arrived at the conclusion that the only way to restore peace is for the Government to seize the town and make of it a new national forest.

Another witness, John A. MacFarlane, President of the Utah Cattle and Horse Growers' Association, expressed the opinion that about the only man who can weather the storm, under existing conditions, is one "with the wisdom of Solomon, the patience of all the saints, and the hide of a rhinoceros."

It was one human interest story after another at the afternoon session. At the morning session the witnesses were not so frank in their expressions of approval or disapproval of the way the Bureau of Washington are handling the vast public lands problem. As was the case yesterday when the officials of the National Cattle and Sheep Associations held the floor the witnesses today did not direct any bitter criticisms of a personal nature against the executive officers of the forestry service. Some of the lesser officials, however, did come in for a raking several witnesses complaining that Easterners and others who know nothing whatever about the cattle or sheep business are sent into the forest to tell grizzled old cowmen and sheep herders how to handle their herds and flocks.

Admits Problem Is Difficult.

"The Forestry Service," said Mr. Crane as, with fire in his eyes, he faced the committee, "has been getting a lot of kicks, and no matter what they are charged with they are guilty—at least that's how it looks. But this is a ticklish business, this question of the public domain and the forests. It is a complicated affair, as important as it is complicated, and the fellow who settles it is going to get from me, if I get his name, a brand-new three-gallon hat."

Mr. Crane was the first witness to complain of the coming into the West of the Easterner who knows nothing about the problems of the sheep men and the cattle growers. He said that in his opinion the Forestry Service discriminates against the sheep men and in favor of those who raise cattle.

It was L. C. Montgomery who wanted to know if the members of the Committee would not resort to violence as do some cattlemen when their grazing lands on the public lands are invaded by sheep herders and their flocks.

"When these alien or transient herds come into these ranges such as I refer to," continued Mr. Montgomery, "what is there for the cattle men to do? They can't sue for damages, because they have no standing in court. They can only resort to violence. They will shoot the sheep herder or perhaps drive the sheep over a precipice. You will say this is terrible, Senators, but I dare say you would do the same thing under like conditions."

As between State and Federal control of the public domain, Mr. Montgomery favored the retention of control in Washington. Whenever the States have been given a chance to administer these lands, the result had been, he said, a miserable failure.

Forestry Regulations Assailed.

John M. MacFarlane, President of the Utah Cattlemen's Association, declared the cattle and sheep problem one of major importance which concerns the welfare of every person in the United States. Something must be done, he argued, to protect the rights of the nation's wool and meat growers and one of the first things necessary is to guarantee their just rights on the public domain and in the national forests.

He criticized some of the forestry regulations as ridiculous, as, for instance, one under which a man with a permit to graze several thousand sheep was penalized because he had three in excess of the number named in the permit. Also he said the live stock men should be permitted to use the range weeks in advance of the time now set in the regulations.

As for the great public domain, and its millions of unappropriated acres, it is, Mr. MacFarlane testified, being reduced in value to a frightful degree. At the present rate of depletion, with no regulations in force to control the situation, this great territory in eleven States will be, he prophesied, just about one-fourth as valuable ten years from now as it was a decade ago. Already he estimated the depletion in value at 50 per cent.

In the opinion of the witness it might be a wise move by the Government to allot what is necessary of the public domain to the use of the live stock industry, setting aside a part for the sheep and another part for the cattlemen.

Protests Authority of "Outsiders."

John B. MacKay, a sheep man of Salt Lake City, and long prominent in the industry, said that in his opinion the Federal officials are not able to realize that sheep and cattle raising is a business. Fully 75 per cent. of the live stock men in the part of the State where he grazes his flocks are bankrupt, he declared.

He also complained of what he said was the practice of sending outsiders who are ignorant of the cattle and sheep business, into the West to exercise authority over the national grazing lands.

As for the public domain he expressed the opinion that "while it is all right to help the little man it is wrong to hold out to him 640 acres which in the end will prove a curse."

Other witnesses today were Dr. William Peterson and M. S. Winder of the Utah branch of the Farm Bureau Federation, Preston E. Nutter, a famous old-time cattle man of the "Arizona strip"; John Black of the Utah Cattlemen's Association and many others.

Messrs. Peterson and Winder urged the cause of the farmer, and said he should also have the privilege and the guarantee that should go with it to use the national forest for his milk cows and horses. Sheep, they urged, should be prohibited from grazing in the immediate vicinity of farm settlements. Mr. Nutter paid his respects to the sheep men. He thinks as does the cowman of fifty years ago, so far as the man who raises sheep is concerned.

The committee leaves tonight for Yellowstone Park, and will hold its first hearing there tomorrow morning.

DOLLAR LINER HERE, UNHURT BY SHOALS

President Dollar, Who Owns the Ship, on Board—Censures the Soviet.

The President Garfield of the Dollar Line, which grounded on Wednesday on Half Moon Shoal, ten miles north of Nantucket Lightship, and floated off again, docked yesterday at the foot of Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn.

Among the fifty-one passengers was Robert Dollar, President of the line, who is 83 years old. He said that the grounding of the steamship was due to her having had a heavy cargo in her holds, which made the draft so deep that a slight miscalculation on the part of the master in going through the channel caused the accident. No damage was done to the ship or cargo, he added.

The veteran shipowner was accompanied by Mrs. Dollar and said that it was their fifth voyage around the world. He blamed the Soviet for the ills that were troubling the world, and said the uprising in China was due chiefly to the intrigue of the Russian Legation in Shanghai.

When asked why he carried Chinese crews on his steamships, Mr. Dollar replied that it was not for the sake of economy but because the Chinese crews behaved better than white crews on voyages to the Far East.

"The worst menace to our shipping," he continues, "is the clause in the La Follette bill which makes it mandatory that every member of the crew must be paid half his wages at every port of call. This causes so many desertions that many ships are using Chinese exclusively."

Another passenger was Miss Paola Pellicone, an Italian girl, who came from Alexandria, Egypt, to marry Roland D'Andre of 476 West 141st Street. They were children together in Italy and met three years ago in Cairo, where they became engaged. They will be married today at the Church of the Intercession, 155th Street and Broadway.

STONE MOUNTAIN BOARD VOTES LUKEMAN'S PLAN

Design Features Jefferson Davis, Lee and Stonewall Jackson.

ATLANTA, Aug. 27 (AP).—Official approval of Augustus Lukeman's design for the central group of the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial was given today by the Board of Directors. Mr. Lukeman said work is expected to start in a few weeks.

The design was submitted in the form of a sketch model in plaster, which will be enlarged to the dimensions of a master model.

The design contains seven principal figures representing the high command of the Confederate Army, with two subsidiary figures representing flag-bearers.

General Lee's statue will measure 150 feet from the crown of his hat to the heels of Traveler.

DAWES HAS ANNIVERSARY.

Vice President Celebrates Sixtieth Birthday in Quiet Manner.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—The sixtieth birthday of a Vice President was nothing to get particularly excited about, said Charles G. Dawes today. Nevertheless the desk of the nation's Vice President at the Central Trust Company was loaded with flowers before he could escape to spend his anniversary in the quietude of his Evanston home.

The Vice President had luncheon today with Tsuneo Matsudaira, the Japanese Ambassador, and accompanied the Mikado's envoy to the funeral of Edgar A. Bancroft, former American Ambassador at Tokio.

He starts at 2 A. M. tomorrow for Mauston, Wis., the old farm home of his father, General Rufus R. Dawes, and his grandfather, Henry M. Dawes. It was from there in 1862 that the Vice President's father started at the head of the Sixth Wisconsin Regiment, the famous "Iron Brigade," to fight for the Union.

A local celebration in commemoration of that event will be held at Mauston tomorrow. In a pageant portraying the war days of the '60's, General Rufus R. Dawes will be impersonated by a local character, with his illustrious son among the spectators.

Mr. Dawes expects to start next Tuesday for the Pacific Coast to resume his fight for modification of the Senate rules. He will speak at Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles, returning to Chicago, Sept. 17.

Workman Is Killed by Train As He Prevents Derailment

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP).—John Vito, a section foreman employed by the Lackawanna Railroad, lost his life yesterday in saving a passenger train from possible derailment, it became known today. Vito was struck and killed just after he had removed a heavy plank from the rails. The plank was the last of several that the workmen were removing when the train was seen approaching.

VANDERBILT STARTS AIR FREIGHT LINE

TO BEGIN WITH TEN PLANES

Young Publisher Also Plans Similar Line From Salt Lake to Los Angeles by Sept. 1.

ATLANTA, Aug. 27 (AP).—Plans to establish a large commercial air base in Atlanta from which lines will radiate to the West and South and extend to Cuba were announced today by Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.

Eleven thousand acres of land near the city have been purchased or are under option, and planes probably will be placed in operation by Christmas. The development program for this section of the country will require about five years and involve the expenditure of several million dollars.

Mr. Vanderbilt arrived here yesterday from Detroit, where he held a conference with his associates, whose names he did not reveal, and will remain until next week. Then he will go to California to superintend the operating of an air line between Los Angeles and Salt Lake City. Ten planes will be operating on this line by Sept. 1, he said.

Many local men have been working with him for six months, but he said their names will not be made public until after the conference within the next ninety days, when construction will begin on the fields. The group of men associated with him, he continued, represent the leading engineering and financial interests of the country.

Predicts 20 Air Lines in Five Years.

They plan to make Atlanta the third largest commercial air base in the United States.

"It would be impossible to give anything like an accurate estimate of the amount which will be expended in this development, but regardless of what it may cost, there is sufficient capital interested to insure its success," Mr. Vanderbilt said.

"There are now four well financed and managed commercial air companies operating in this country, and one other is in process of formation. There probably will be twenty within the next five years.

"We have had engineers in Atlanta four months making surveys and drawing plans. We hope that we will be in a position to begin flying out of Atlanta to New Orleans and points in Florida by Christmas of this year.

"Our planes will carry freight, express and mail, but no passengers.

"We are building two airships a month, and should be in a position to have ten planes in Atlanta before the first of 1926."

The plans, as outlined by Mr. Vanderbilt, include facilities for the operation of dirigibles as well as airplanes.

"The land we have secured is all within a twenty-mile radius of Atlanta, with the main operating base within four miles of the city limits, but I do not want to announce the exact location until after another conference with the Eastern members of the group," he continued.

"We expect to put in shape three separate fields, each a mile square, and to encourage real estate developments around them. We will eventually develop what we want to be an 'air city' somewhere in the metropolitan area of Atlanta."

After stating that the advantage which developed Atlanta into one of the railroad centres of the South had influenced the selection of the city as the site of the air base, Vanderbilt said that another favorable point was the 1,000-foot altitude here, which, he remarked, made it an ideal location for a base for dirigibles.

Mr. Vanderbilt plans to return at an early date and will spend the Winter here directing operations of the company.

FLIES HERE TO VIEW BODY.

Tom Luther Thinks Girl Was His Former Stenographer.

T. C. (Tom) Luther, manager of the White Sulphur Springs Hotel at Saratoga Lake, N. Y., where Jack Dempsey, Luis Firpo and Gene Tunney trained for several of their boxing bouts, flew here in an airplane yesterday in an effort to identify the body of a girl, who had committed suicide, before it was buried in Potter's Field. The girl had killed herself by taking gas in a rooming house at 139 West Sixty-First Street on July 30. She was known as Dorothy Davis. No one claimed the body.

r. Luther told Captain John Ayres, of the lasing Persons Bureau, that he saw a picture of the girl in a newspaper and remarked on the likeness of the face to that of a young woman who was his stenographer at one time. He said that he understood the girl's home was in alone, N. Y., and that after she had left her position with him she had gone to work in Plattsburg.

Due to a misunderstanding, the police told him that he would be unable to look at the body as it had been already buried. He said that he felt sure that the suicied was his former stenographer.

Special to The New York Times.

MALONE, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Dorothy Davis, formerly of this city, has an aunt, Mrs. John Davis, living in Brushton, N. Y. The girl was a stenographer and had worked as a waitress. Friends here said tonight that when they last heard from her she was in New York. The local police are cooperating with the New York police in an effort to make a positive identification of the body.

CITY HAS A CRISP, COOL DAY.

Minimum Temperature Yesterday 56, Lowest for Aug. 27 Since 1885.

The city experienced weather yesterday that was almost Autumnal in its crisp coolness. The mercury dropped nearly twenty degrees from midnight to seven o'clock in the morning and remained fairly low throughout the day. Even cooler weather is expected today, according to the Weather Bureau.

The low mark of the day was 56 and eight-tenths degrees, the lowest for Aug. 27 since 1885, when the record of 51 degrees was established. The downward course started about midnight, when the mercury stood at 76 degrees, and after reaching the low mark at 7 o'clock in the morning went up slowly until it reached the peak for the day, 70 degrees at 4:30 P. M. The average temperature for the day was 65 degrees, 7 degrees lower than the average.

BRYAN BIOGRAPHY SOON.

Commoner's Widow Expects to Have His Memoirs Ready in November.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 27.—The John J. Winston Company of Philadelphia announced today that Mrs. William Jennings Bryan has arranged to publish the memoirs of her husband sooner than she had at first though possible.

The publishers have placed at her disposal a large corps of editorial assistants, who will classify and arrange the material for the biographer. With their help, it was announced, Mrs. Bryan expects to have the book ready for publication in November.

Sentences Mail Thief, Then Shakes His Hand, And Draws Tears With Plea to Go Straight

Federal Judge William H. Atwell of Texas, now sitting here, moved a young defendant to tears yesterday when he advised him to "Tell them all to go to hell and say, 'I'm going to be straight'," when he got out of jail. The advice was given to Samuel Alpert, 21 years old, of 1,660 Bathgate Avenue, the Bronx, accused of stealing packages from the top of a mail box in front of the Fifth Avenue Building, while he was on parole for a similar offense. He was convicted in one minute by a jury.

"It would be unfair for me not to punish you," said Judge Atwell. "You must now make your own chance. I am glad you did not take the stand in your own defense and lie. Never look back after you have served your sentence, because you can easily bring happiness to your old mother or else keep her in hell. The light that never fails is in a mother's love and you possess it. It keeps a man straight.

"Go down and think right while you are there. You can always be right if you want to be. When you come out of Atlanta prison and meet bad comrades, with whom you have been associated, tell them all to go to hell and say, 'I'm going to be straight.' Give me your hand, my boy. Promise me you'll try what I have told you."

Young Alpert shook hands with the Judge, tears running down his cheeks, and promised to do as he was asked. Then he turned away between two marshals to begin his journey to Atlanta, where he must serve thirteen months.

SAYS THUGS, BALKED IN WEST, HEAD HERE

Surety Company Chairman Thinks It May Be Necessary to Form Vigilantes in East.

FINDS SITUATION ALARMING

Guns of Western Citizens Have Helped Rid Communities of Robbers, Says William B. Joyce.

Not only are crime conditions throughout the nation worse than they have been in three decades, but Eastern cities are threatened with a still greater increase in crimes of violence by bands of Western criminals who are headed eastward, having been foiled in the West by vigilance committees, according to a statement issued yesterday by William B. Joyce, Chairman of the National Surety Company.

Mr. Joyce, who has studied crime conditions throughout his thirty-five years' connection with the surety company, said that never in the history of that company had its losses been greater in ratio and number, or crimes, particularly those of a violent character, more numerous than they are now. He issued his statement, he said, as a warning to the police to prepare for the influx of Western criminals, and, while he did not think it necessary to form vigilance committees here just yet, he expressed the opinion that it "may come to that."

"Something must be done and done quickly," said Mr. Joyce. "The National Crime Commission could, of course, be of great help, but it is hardly organized and in working order as yet, and we need quick protection. In all my experience with crime I have never seen anything even approaching crime conditions as they are in the United States today."

Mr. Joyce intimated it might soon become necessary to get together in this city a corps of expert marksmen to combat the horde of Western criminals he believes are on their way here. Asked why he felt sure the criminals were eastward bound, Mr. Joyce said:

"Criminals will not go to work and when certain localities are made too hot for them they simply pack up and move on elsewhere where the picking is easier. Of course, we in the Eastern States have well organized bodies of police, but most of these bank crimes are committed by experienced men of a most desperate character who must be dealt with on the spot. In many instances before the police can be notified such robbers have done their work and made their escape.

"Under the system now being so successfully operated in the Middle West there is a well drilled, well armed corps of expert riflemen in each rural town to deal with the robbers as they did in the days of 1849. Their watchword is that a dead criminal needs no prosecution.

"By cutting telephone wires, bank robbers prevent the summoning of the State police, but in recent bank robberies in Iowa, Indiana and Illinois the criminals have been met by posses of townsmen with modern rifles, sawed-off shotguns and revolvers. A surprisingly large number of the robbers have been killed. I have been informed through sources which I know to be reliable that numbers of thugs of this type have about given up in the West and are heading this way."

No one connected with the National Crime Commission commented on Mr. Joyce's tentative suggestion of a vigilance committee to protect this city against bank robbers and other kinds of criminals.

At meetings of the new organization, however, it has been admitted that crime conditions are such that some kind of drastic steps must be taken.

ANDERSON OUT OF STATE.

Paroled Ex-Dry Head Says He Had Permission to Go to Washington.

The presence in Washington on Wednesday of William H. Anderson, former State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, who is on parole from Sing Sing prison, and the issuance there of a statement regarding the establishing of offices of his new American Prohibition Protestant Patriotic Protective Alliance, prompted inquiries yesterday whether Anderson had violated his parole by leaving the State.

Superintendent of Prisons James L. Long, who is head of the parole board, said last night that authority for Anderson to leave the State was vested in Captain J. Stanley Sheppard of the Salvation Army, in whose custody Anderson was paroled.

Anderson returned to the city yesterday and said he had issued a statement at Washington but that he had not seen it in print and did not know whether he had been correctly quoted.

When asked whether he had received permission to visit Washington he at first replied:

"That is a fool question," but later he supplemented this by saying "Why, certainly I did."

Seek Missing Air Mail.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27 (AP).—Postoffice inspectors in every important city between Chicago and San Francisco tonight started questioning hundreds of employes of the United States Air Mail Service in an attempt to locate a consignment of registered air mail which disappeared somewhere in transit between the two cities.

The mail left Chicago Aug. 25, but failed to reach San Francisco.

WHOLESALE TRADE WAS BETTER IN JULY

Federal Reserve Board Finds 6 Per Cent. Improvement Over the Month in 1924.

MEAT AND DRY GOODS LEAD

Stock on Hand at Close of July Was 9 Per Cent. Higher In Value Than a Year Ago, Report Shows.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—A summary of business conditions issued today by the Federal Reserve Board shows that wholesale trade in July of this year increased about six per cent. as compared with conditions in the corresponding month of 1924.

Sales in all leading lines were larger than in July, 1924, but those of meats, drygoods and shoes showed the largest increases. Groceries, shoes and hardware were sold in larger volume in nearly all Federal Reserve districts, the greatest increases being eleven pr cent. for groceries in Richmond, twenty-five per cent. for shoes in Minneapolis and fourteen per cent. for hardware in Kansas City.

Total sales of wholesale firms, as measured by the board's general index, were in about the same volume in July as in June. Sales of groceries, drygoods and drugs were larger than in June, while sales of meats, shoes and hardware were smaller. Grocery sales were heavier than in June in all Federal Reserve districts except Boston, Cleveland and San Francisco, and sales of drugs were larger in all districts, except New York, Philadelphia and Chicago.

Total domestic sales of all farm machinery, as reported by the Department of Commerce, approximated $83,414,000 in 1924 as compared with $312,044,000 in 1923. About 70 per cent. of total yearly sales are reported to the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago and on the basis of this data sales in July were 35 per cent. greater than last year, and for the seven months ending with July they were 33 per cent. larger than for the same period last year.

Value of total merchandise stocks at wholesale firms at the end of July was about the same as at the end of June, but it was 9 per cent. higher than at the end of July, 1924. Stocks of groceries, dry goods, shoes and drugs were larger than in June, but those of meats and hardware were smaller. As compared with last year, stocks of groceries, meats and drugs were considerably larger, but those of dry goods, shoes and hardware were smaller. Accounts receivable at the end of July were smaller than a year earlier for groceries and dry goods, but were somewhat larger for drugs and shoes.

JOHN DURKIN, SLAYER, EXECUTED AT SING SING

Dies in Electric Chair for Killing Detective Connell in July, 1924 —Calm in Last Hours.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Aug. 27.—After receiving final visits from his wife, his mother-in-law and his father-in-law, John Durkin, who killed Detective Timothy Connell of the Bronx during the robbery of a former licensed saloon there on July 12, 1924, was put to death late tonight in the electric chair at Sing Sing.

"I'm resigned to go," said Durkin, in a talk with Warden Lewis E. Lawes a few hours before he was to be led to death.

At another time Durkin said: "It's rather hard on me, because one fellow who was with me got twenty years to life and the other one was never caught."

Nicholas Marcantonio was the accomplice who escaped with a twenty-year sentence.

Three young men, of whom Durkin was one, entered the place and were holding up the occupants. Detective Connell entered, drew his pistol and two of the robbers opened fire.

Durkin bore up well during the last day. When asked to select his last two menus, he chose steak, fried potatoes, bread and butter and coffee for dinner. He said he cared for no supper.

The Rev. Father John J. McCaffrey, the Catholic chaplain, prayed with Durkin in his last hours. When everything was ready, Durkin, accompanied by Father McCaffrey, walked to the chair. When the doctor gave the signal, Executioner John Hulbert threw on the current.

The executioner administered only a single shock, which prison attachés said was without precedent in the history of the electric chair. Durkin was pronounced dead at 11:12.

It was the first execution at the prison in nearly five months. Durkin, who was 25 years old, had been in the cells for the condemned ten and one-half months.

RUM ROW DESERTED, FLEET CHIEF FINDS

Blockade, However, Not to Be Relaxed This Winter, Captain Carmine Says.

LIQUOR DEATHS GROWING

Dr. Gettler Declares That Menace From Wood Alcohol Is Getting More Serious.

"Rum Row is dry," Captain George C. Carmine, new commander of the New York Coast Guard Division, announced yesterday. For the first time in recent years, he said, not a single steamer, trawler, schooner or fishing smack was anchored off the "row," where for so long the rum-runners did a thriving business.

Despite this, or perhaps as a result of it, according to Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, toxicologist at Bellevue Hospital, wood alcohol is causing more deaths today than at any previous time. Dr. Gettler made that statement after he had reported that wood alcohol caused the deaths of Louise Morgensen, 40 years old, who was found dead Aug. 18 after a drinking party on a barge moored to Pier 11, East River, and Daniel Sheehan, 57 years old, a cleaner employed by St. John's Hospital, Long Island City, who died in that institution. "Wood alcohol," Dr. Gettler continued, "is now being found in all cheap liquor. The poisonous nature of the alcoholic drinks used at the present time is no doubt responsible for a great many crimes. Death statistics in the Chief Medical Examiner's office show that habit-forming drugs have claimed more victims during the last few years than at any previous time, because many persons, unable to obtain good liquor, have turned to drugs rather than risk certain alcoholic poisons."

Blockade Still Firm, He Says.

But none of the poisonous alcohol is getting in here from Rum Row, Captain Carmine declared, because Rum Row has gone out of business and all liquor-laden vessels have deserted the waters off New York Harbor, which are patrolled by the Coast Guard under his jurisdiction. He denied that the blockade off Rum Row was disintegrating.

"That is all bosh and hot air," Captain Carmine said. "We are maintaining as strict vigilance as ever and shall continue to do so in Winter as well as in Summer and just as long as foreign distillers continue to manufacture liquor and the rum ships continue their attempts to smuggle contraband liquor into this port.

"Whoever wrote that the patrol boats combating the rum fleet were being withdrawn did not know what he was writing about. We will continue our activities just as in the past in order to prevent an influx of rum. However, it is necessary, and has been for years, to withdraw a few boats for repairs, but they will be put back in service. Our methods for combating the rum fleet naturally change from time to time in order to cope with changing conditions."

Coast Guard officials attributed the desertion of Rum Row largely to cooperation of British and Canadian Government officials with officials of the United States Government. Captain Carmine refused to say how many patrol boats were being operated in these waters under his jurisdiction, nor would he give the territory covered by them.

Japanese Held to Grand Jury.

Koshi Motto, proprietor of the Mikado, a Japanese cabaret restaurant at Harmon-on-Hudson, and Naka Kashi, one of his waiters, were held by United States Commissioner Garrett W. Cotter yesterday for the Grand Jury. They are charged with violation of the Volstead act. A similar charge against Mrs. Motto, the proprietor's wife, was dismissed.

Prohibition agents led by Michael F. Sassi raided the Mikado last Wednesday night.

Tony Marino, owner of a cafeteria at 865 Fourth Avenue, College Point, was released in $500 bail yesterday after he had been arrested on a charge of violating the prohibition law.

NEGRO OFFICIAL HELD IN ALLEGED RUM PLOT

Cohen, Federal Appointee in New Orleans, Is One of 34 Who Are Indicted.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 27.—Walter L. Cohen, a negro, one of the leaders in the Republican Party in Louisiana, and Controller of the New Orleans customs district, together with Dr. L. A. Meraux, Sheriff of St. Bernard parish, which adjoins New Orleans, and thirty-two others including Alonzo Patterson and Arthur Battistella, heads of an alleged gigantic rum ring, were indicted by the Federal Grand Jury yesterday for conspiring to violate the Prohibition act.

The indictment alleges a single conspiracy in which the thrty-fou accused are said to have participated in transporting 4,250 cases of liquors from Havana to New Orleans between June 1 and Aug. 10.

Six overt acts, one of which specifies that Cohen was consulted as to the whereabouts and movements of the customs launch Rita, are set forth.

Others include the alleged payment of $10,000 "graft" to Prohibition Agent Patrick Needham on the supposition that it was for Director O. D. Jackson, and reference to the unloading of a cargo of liquor from the motorboat Champion, said to be owned by Patterson.

Captain Joseph Johnson, Corporal Joseph Conrad and Patrolman Paul Gilmore, policemen charged with guarding the shipment referred to, were among those indicted.

Federal Judge H. D. Clayton said:

"The wisdom of the law is no longer a question. It is the law. If the law is wrong and if the people do not want it as the law it is the function of the people to see that it is repealed. The United States has never been defeated in any enterprise she has undertaken, and under the providence of God, in the face of the devil and the rum-runners, she is not going to be defeated in this fight."

CUTS THROAT IN SUBWAY.

Brooklyn Man Then Falls to Tracks, but Is Rescued From Train.

Philip Nelson, 38 years old, of 114 Van Siclen Avenue, Brooklyn, cut his throat with a razor and then fell from the platform to the tracks in the open section of the B. M. T. Brighton Line subway at the Cortelyou Road Station in Brooklyn yesterday. The motorman of an approaching train saw the man's unconscious form lying on the tracks, stopped the train and helped station employes lift the man to the platform.

At the Kings County Hospital it was said Nelson's condition was critical, but that he might recover. There was $82 in his pockets.

Nelson is married and has two small children. Friends said he had complained of financial difficulties and that his health was poor.

Mayor Hylan Shows New Aid, Lieut. Hanlon, About City Hall

Lieutenant Peter E. Hanlon, formerly of the Tenth District of the Traffic Division, has been assigned as police aid to Mayor Hylan. Lieutenant Hanlon reported for duty yesterday at the City Hall and the Mayor took him around the building and introduced him.

Lieutenant Hanlon, whose home is in Hollis, Queens, succeeded Lieutenant Edward J. Quinn, who was promoted recently to a Captaincy and assigned to command the East Fifty-first Street Station.

HOLD UP AN AUTO, GET $9,734 PAYROLL

Thugs Level Pistols at Two in Car and Seize Bag Containing Brewery Cash.

ESCAPE IN STOLEN MOTOR

Chauffeur for Peter Doelger Company and a Bank Messenger the Victims.

Two men in an automobile held up a car carrying a payroll of the Peter Doelger Brewing Company, First Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, yesterday and made off with $9,734. No shots were fired.

Albert F. Janitz, cashier, had notified the Central Union Trust Company, Sixtieth Street and Fifth Avenue, to have the money ready. He sent Charles Gehring, a chauffeur, around for it in a Ford coupe. At 2 o'clock Gehring and William T. Gilson, a bank messenger, both unarmed, were driving down Avenue A with the bag of money between them.

On the west side of the street was parked a green car. A young man in flashy clothes lounged at the wheel smoking a cigarette and talking to a little girl who was playing on the corner. Bystanders had seen four men pile out of the car a few minutes before, but had not thought it significant when they posted themselves on both sides of Fifty-fifth Street.

When Gehring turned his car into Fifty-fifth Street the thugs leaped to the running board. The windows were open and they brandished their guns in their victims' faces.

"Stop her! Stick 'em up!" the leader commanded. Gehring stopped, but he left the engine running, hoping, he said, to "make a break for it." Muzzles of pistols jabbed his ribs. He and his companion were jerked and tumbled out of the open doors. One robber took the keys to the car to prevent pursuit, another seized the money bag. Inside of thirty seconds, Gehring said, the thieves were in their car and off.

Gehring ran up the street to the Doelger offices and from there Janitz notified the police. The police learned the number of the robbers' car from an employe of the Consumers Brewing Company, opposite Doelger's, which was robbed of $700 a week ago, and later announced that the car had been stolen July 7 from Carl Hermansen, Long Beach. Gehring and Gilson were unable to identify pictures of any of their assailants in the Rogues Gallery at Headquarters.

HOSIERY MILLS LOOTED; ROBBERS USE TRUCK

Watchman in Newark Overpowered by Thugs, Who Cart Off a Ton of Stockings.

Five robbers broke into the Smartsilk Hosiery Mills, Inc., at 585 North Third Street, Newark, early yesterday, bound and gagged the watchman, and after spending five hours in the plant escaped with a ton of silk stockings and several thousand dollars in money orders. In all, it is estimated, their loot totaled $10,000.

Stephen Lee, the watchman, was making his rounds when the five men pounced on him on the first floor. All the thugs were armed and masked. They bound and gagged Lee with silk stockings and tied him to a chair.

The robbers first knocked the combination off the safe and stole the money orders. Then they went to the second and third floors and emptied several hundred boxes of finished stockings. While the robbers were busy one made the regular duty calls in the factory for the watchman. Finally the robbers loaded the loot on a truck and left. It is believed they used a stolen milk truck. A half hour after the men had left Lee wriggled free and notified the police.

The Smartsilk hold-up was the third in Newark within twenty-four hours. Earlier a truckload of merchandise had been stolen after robbers had kidnapped the driver on the Lincoln Highway. The other hold-up was in the Public Service Terminal, where five men held up and robbed a special officer and a cashier of $40.50.

SHOES HELP TRAP SUSPECT.

Abandoned by Robber, They Fit Prisoner, According to the Police.

Lawrence Horten, 21 years old, of 179 Stuyvesant Avenue, Brooklyn, waived examination when arraigned yesterday in the Gates Avenue Police Court before Magistrate Stephen J. McGarrigle, on a charge of robbery, and was held in $5,000 bail for the Grand Jury. The complainant was Samuel Suton of 418A Monroe Street, who charged that the prisoner entered his house and took money and jewelry valued at $250.

Detectives Charles Byrne and Edward Pailies, who arrested Horten, said they had traced some of the stolen jewelry to a pawnshop. Evidence against Horten was a pair of shoes left on the stoop of a house on Madison Street near Throop Avenue by a man who tried to force an entrance but who was frightened away. The detectives tried the shoes on Horten and found they fitted his feet perfectly.

The detectives said that the prisoner admitted that he had entered more than a score of houses in the Bedford section during the past several months. They said also that a search of the room occupied by Horten revealed several thousands of dollars' worth of stolen property. This was brought to the police station and is awaiting identification by its owners.

CORRECTION.

The word "model" was inadvertently omitted from an announcement in The New York Times yesterday. It should have read as follows: "TRAGEDY AT LAKEHURST. Wreck of model of the Shenandoah in woods near the great airship's hangar. The New York Times Rotogravure-Picture Section next Sunday."—Advt.

MACMILLAN SHIP GROUNDS ON REEF

Peary Saves Bowdoin From Disaster in Pounding Seas Off Murchison Sound.

RETURN VOYAGE STORMY

Blizzard With 50-Mile Gale Lashing Arctic Waters Encountered by Expedition.

Byrd Reports Only One Forced Landing in Arctic—Uncharted Lake and Mountains Found.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—A delayed radio message to the National Geographic Society this afternoon stated that on Sunday afternoon the Bowdoin, flagship of the MacMillan Arctic expedition, ran aground in Murchison Sound.

Thirty-four steel barrels of gasoline had to be thrown overboard to save the ship from pounding in the heavy sea and all but six of these were later recovered. Finally with the aid of a towline from the Peary, the Bowdoin was pulled off the reef undamaged.

Both ships of the expedition have now passed Booth Sound and are entering upon the most difficult stage of their jaunt home—the ice-filled Melville Bay. With the wintry North slamming its doors behind, the expedition is scurrying to its Greenland and Labrador work and encountering even more adverse weather than it met on its way northward.

A complete résumé of the flying operations of the navy airplanes with the expedition today was forwarded by Commander Richard E. Byrd, in response to a request from the National Geographic Society.

The dispatch shows that the three planes flew an aggregate of 6,066 miles; that they had a total of 75 hours 50 minutes flying time and that approximately 30,000 square miles, an area nearly as large as the State of Maine, was seen from the planes on these flights. The fliers found mountains and a lake not shown on any chart.

Threw 34 Barrels of Fuel Overboard.

The message from Commander MacMillan telling of the Bowdoin's accident, forwarded by the radio amateur of Station 8QJ, Pittsburgh, said, in part:

"At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon (Aug. 23) the Bowdoin went aground on a rock ledge more than a mile offshore in Murchison Sound, northwest of Kahna, a small Eskimo village, to which we were taking E-Took-A-Shoo, our main Eskimo guide. The tide had just begun to ebb and in a short time we were listed to starboard at an angle of 35 degrees.

"To save her from pounding in a choppy sea we threw overboard thirty-four steel barrels of gasoline, all but six of which were secured and anchored by Robinson and Salmon. Koelz, Bromfied and Rawson worked in tossing small boats in water below freezing, helping in this work.

"At 12:30, with our kedge anchor line as taut as a fiddle string and a two-inch hawser from the Peary, which had edged up toward our stern, ready to tighten, we were washed off by the swell caused by a bursting iceberg.

"We are now anchored at Kahna, a stone's throw from the tupiks of the Eskimos and near a dry gravel river bed, long enough for my exhausted crew to sleep a little. Ice is coming out of Murchison Sound past our bows, with occasional bergs trying to straddle our anchor chain.

KLAN RETURNS TO SECRECY.

National Council Decides to Keep Membership Under Cover.

BUCKEYE LAKE, Ohio, Aug. 27 (AP).—The national council of grand dragons and titans of the Ku Klux Klan ended today after having been in session since Tuesday. A great many of the officials of the order scattered to their homes, but others remained for the Ohio State Klonklave, which will be held Saturday and Sunday. The council decided that strict secrecy should be maintained in Klan affairs and that the personnel of the membership be kept unknown to the public.

The result of this action was that information concerning the deliberations of the council, which had been trickling out to newspapermen, was suddenly stopped.

Discussion centring around the subject of the right of peaceable assembly constituted the most important issue today before State and regional heads of the Klan. Other topics included "separation of Church and State," and "deportation of criminal aliens."

The news of the meeting is being dispensed by H. K. Ramsey, Kansas City. Under a resolution any other member who tells anything that has happened at the meeting is threatened with banishment from the Klan.

Through cooperation with talking machine companies, the voices of Theodore Roosevelt, Adelina Patti, the singer; Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, the actor, and other prominent personages, long since dead, will be transmitted through the ether to be heard by the present generation, many countless thousands of whom never heard the original voices.

SWEEPS ASIDE BAN IMPOSED ON PICKETS

DENOUNCES THEIR ARREST

Had Right to Demonstrate Against Former Employer, He Holds—23 Seized During the Day.

In refusing to hold in contempt of court five pickets from the Amalgamated Garment Workers of America, Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy yesterday, in effect, swept aside an injunction issued last week by Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Churchill, and declared it a "high-handed proceeding" to ask that men engaged as were the arrested pickets, be sent to jail.

In a strike of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers against the International Tailoring Company, at Twelfth Street and Fourth Avenue, Justice Churchill on Aug. 17 issued an injunction restraining strikers from picketing within ten blocks of the building. As the entire men's and children's clothing industry is in that territory, the carrying out of that injunction would have been a severe blow to the union workers.

Since then a strike was ordered against the J. L. Taylor Company, which occupies a part of the building in which the International Company has its place of business. Recently the union placed pickets in front of the building. The pickets were promptly arrested and yesterday were taken before Justice Levy, who refused to punish them after Max D. Steuer, representing the Garment Workers, had explained they were not picketing the International Tailoring Company's shop.

Justice Levy said he did not see that the pickets had done anything other than maintain their right to demonstrate against a former employer, and held that, because the two firms occupied the same building, it did not follow that the arrested men had been picketing the complaining concern.

Twenty-three alleged pickets were arrested yesterday at four of the dress and cloak shops in which strikes have been called as a result of the order issued last week by the Joint Committee of Action of Locals 2, 9 and 22 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

C. S. Zimmerman, Secretary of the Joint Committee of Action, charged that the pickets were arrested for "peacefully picketing" and that in some instances arrests were made before picketing had begun. Of those arrested eight were fined $10 each, three were released on bail and eleven were dismissed.

WILBUR DISAPPROVES ACQUITTAL OF NURSES

Secretary of the Navy Admonishes the Prosecuting Officer in Recent Court-Martial.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP).—Secretary Wilbur has again expressed his disapproval of the recent court-martial proceedings in which two navy nurses were acquitted of charges of illegal importation of liquor on a transport, by admonishing Lieutenant Andrew L. W. Gordon of the Marine Corps for his conduct as prosecuting officer in the trial.

Secretary Wilbur had previously disapproved the acquittal verdict, but this had no puntive effect, as the verdict is final.

Citing Lieutenant Gordon's explanation in his report that the statement by Miss Anderson—in which she admitted receiving "as a gift a package which I knew was intoxicant liquor"—and that by Miss Glancy were not presented to the court because he was informed by their counsel that they would object on the ground that the statements were not freely and voluntarily made, Mr. Wilbur's letter took exception to such procedure.

The Secretary found "even more lack of diligence and zeal" in the prosecutor's failure to cross-examine Miss Anderson.

YIELD TO RADIO 'STRIKERS.'

Two Chicago Suburban Stations to Be Silent on Monday Nights.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27 (AP).—Two suburban radio stations in the Chicago area have yielded to the movement to observe Monday night as silent, as is done by the stations in Chicago. Stations WWAE of Joliet and WCBD of Zion will be off the air on Monday nights, it was announced today by the Broadcast Listeners' Association, whose members recently advocated a "strike" to enforce silent nights.

The action of WCBD and WWAE is the first definite step taken by the suburban broadcasters in meeting the listeners' "strike."

Officials of the Broadcast Listeners' Association reported that interest in the "strike" was growing, fans refusing to listen to stations which they termed "unfair."

WGY HIGH POWER TESTS.

No Great Interference Using 50,000 Watts, Says Hoover.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP).—Recent broadcasting tests by the General Electric Company, using 50,000 watts, from its Schenectady, N. Y., station WGY, have shown generally, Secretary Hoover said today, that employment of such power did not result in any great interference with smaller stations and had brought a noticeable increase in range and intensity of the signals.

The Secretary, in discussing the results of the tests, made it clear, however, that several weeks would be required to make a final determination of the results, his conclusions thus far having been drawn from the first letters from listeners-in to reach the department.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Alternate Backward and Forward Swing on Stock Exchange—Call Money Firm.

Yesterday's movement of prices on the Stock Exchange indicated chiefly uncertainty of mind among the speculators, and the end of the day's business brought few noteworthy net changes. In a few of the speculative shares there were violent declines followed by equally violent recoveries, and in one or two of them prices were bid up rapidly from the start. These demonstrations evidently resulted from sudden changes of position by professional operators and did not greatly affect the general market, which moved irregularly and closed as a rule a fraction lower.

There was no change in the money market, but the rate for demand loans continued firm and the Stock Exchange indulged again in futile prediction of a higher discount rate. The Reserve system's statement showed some $20,000,000 increase in rediscounts, which is usual at this particular time of year and for which the New York Reserve Bank's operations would alone have accounted. But in general, the week's changes were unimportant. Gold held by the twelve Reserve banks again decreased; it is now $377,000,000 below the high point of their history, reached two years ago.

Railway shares made slight response to the statements of gross and net earnings for July, as published yesterday and on preceding days this week; but the statements are notable witness both to the magnitude of the country's trade and to the reviving prosperity of the carriers. A considerable proportion of the companies earned last month a larger gross revenue than in any corresponding period since the war, while the savings introduced into working expenses have made possible even more striking results in the net receipts. The Baltimore & Ohio's showing of an increase of $2,430,000 over 1924 in revenue from freight, while transportation expenditure increased only $248,000, is one of the striking instances of the control which railways are gaining over working costs.

With this month's weekly reports of freight-loadings showing so great an increase, as compared both with preceding months in 1925 and with former years, the expansion of earnings has evidently not yet terminated. To what extent it will be affected in the Autumn, by the decrease from 1924 in amount of grain available for shipment, remains to be tested. Yet the weekly figures for traffic loaded have for several weeks been showing smaller grain transportation than last year's, and the total traffic has none the less surpassed all midsummer records.

For different reasons, the reports of the Bank of England and the Bank of France are just now of special interest—the London statements, because they show just how far the gold-resumption program is working smoothly; the Paris statements, because they provide the only clue to the efforts at strengthening French public finance through the refunding loan. Yesterday's statement by the Bank of France was interesting; in that it showed no less a repayment by the Treasury to the bank than 250,000,000 francs, making 450,000,000 thus repaid since those advances reached their high point of Aug. 5. This may mean that the Government is getting control of the short-term maturities; but an increase during the week in the French bank's discounts, almost as large as the Treasury's repayments, unfortunately suggests that the debt may have been only shifted. The Bank of England has again lost gold; its present holdings are £1,300,000 less than at the season's maximum of Aug. 5. But they are £7,400,000 greater than in the week when gold payments were resumed at the end of April and the ratio of reserve to deposits, which was 22⅛ in that week, stands now at 30⅝.

MONEY.

THURSDAY, AUG. 27, 1925.

A firm tone continued in the money market, though rates were unchanged. Call money renewals were made at 4½ per cent., and that figure prevailed all day. Reports continue of Western withdrawals of funds for crop marketing purposes, but no marked contraction has appeared in the local situation. The time money market was unchanged. Somewhat more activity was reported in the commercial paper market, at unchanged levels.

M'GARRAH URGES US TO AID EUROPE

Praises Courage of Business Leaders and Statesmen Abroad in Attacking Problems.

Gates W. McGarrah, Chairman of the Board of the Mechanics and Metals' National Bank, and American Director of the General Council of the German Reichsbank, who has just returned after a five months' trip to Europe, declared yesterday that American help should be extended in the struggle for economic recovery abroad. He said that progress was being made and praised the courage and confidence with which business and parliamentary leaders were attacking the problem. Slow but substantial improvement, he declared, was being made in the German situation.

"Difficult problems, financial, tariff or labor, or all three, seem to be awaiting solution in every important country in Europe," said Mr. McGarrah.

"One is impressed, however, by the courage and confidence displayed by business and parliamentary leaders in facing them. For example, England's return to the gold standard, the most constructive contribution to world financial recovery, since the war. In this connection it might be well to emphasize that, if suggested, we should not fail to participate in further plans, having in view the complete restoration of foreign trade, on a sound financial basis. Financial centres are not created or maintained by restrictive policies. By assisting other countries we help our trade and commerce to greater freedom of operation, speaking solely from the standpoint of sound and stable currencies.

"Much good in this direction will come from the informal visits and conversations now taking place between heads of the leading central banks; to attempt to attach greater significance to these meetings is unwarranted.

"Numerous visits to Germany since early in April convince me substantial and permanent progress is being made. It is very slow, due principally to the need of additional working capital, in the form of long-term loans or credits. Until these go there in greater volume, present capital can only be augmented by saving from profits and wages, a slow process. There is comparatively little unemployment, and as the crops are good the agriculturists are encouraged. Nearly all important industries show gains in the past two months, the principal depression being in coal and iron, but this is not confined to Germany. So far this year the cost of living has not been materially decreased.

"The election of Mr. Hindenburg and his attitude has already helped the republic internally and it was a mistake to class him with Ludendorf and Tirpitz.

"The Stinnes affairs are being ably dealt with and nothing of like magnitude is apt to be disturbing in the future. The business ability and judgment applied there originally appears to have been too highly appraised.

"Many things bearing on Germany's condition and problems are clearly and ably set forth in the recent report of Mr. Gilbert, Agent General. It will repay the most careful study.

"In my opinion it would be a distinct contribution to European efforts in resuming normal condions, if the talk one frequently hears suggesting another war in ten or twenty years would stop. War requires money as well as the spirit to fight, and they are both missing. The great desire is to work and recover, at least something of what has been lost."

YELLOW CAB CO. ENDS DEAL.

Declares Monthly Dividend of 21 Cents on Class B Stock.

Directors of the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company yesterday authorized the issuance of 800,000 shares of common stock in exchange for 160,000 shares of General Motors Truck Corporation stock. This action represents final ratification of the plan by which General Motors took over the Yellow Cab business. The offer for the stock was made on July 3 and was approved a few days ago by stockholders of the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company.

The board of the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company declared the regular monthly dividend of 21 cents a share on the Class B stock, payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept. 19.

For the half year ended June 30, 1925, the company reports net profit of $1,206,716, after all deductions for depreciation and taxes. This profit, after providing for preferred dividend requirements, was equal to $1.97 a share earned on the 600,000 shares of $10 par value Class B stock outstanding. This compares with $2.96 a share earned on the stock outstanding in the first half of 1924.

For the June quarter, net profits were $589,657, which after preferred dividends, was equal to 97 cents a share earned on the Class B stock, against $1.32 a share earned on this stock in the June quarter last year.

The advances outstanding on Aug. 5, amounting to 28,250,000,000 francs, were the largest ever reached; smallest during the last three years, 21,200,000,000 in March, 1922.

The French bank's official discount remains unchanged at 6 per cent. to which it was reduced on July 7.

REFRIGERATOR CO. MERGER.

Serv-el Buys Hercules Control From Sears, Roebuck & Co.

As the first step in its program to acquire all of the facilities necessary to manufacture electric refrigerators, the Serv-el Corporation has acquired all of the voting stock of the Hercules Corporation, which owns plants at Evansville, Ind.; Cartaret, N. J., and Newburgh, N. Y. The purchase was made from Sears, Roebuck & Co. and associates, who have owned the Hercules Corporation for several years, and as a result of the transaction Sears, Roebuck & Co. and associates have acquired a substantial interest in the Serv-el Corporation.

Previous to 1921 the major portion of the business of the Hercules Corporation was the manufacture of Hercules farm engines, vehicles and equipment. Lately, this business has been in metal and wood working. The plant at Evansville covers about twenty-eight acres. Gross sales over a ten-year period have been about $6,000,000 and net profits approximately $400,000.

In the last three years, the Hercules Corporation has been manufacturing Serv-el electric refrigeration units, and the present capacity is about 50,000 per year. Additional machinery is being installed to double this capacity.

H. G. Scott, formerly Vice President of the Columbia Gas and Electric Company, recently resigned that position to become Chairman of the board of the Serv-el Corporation and with his associates purchased a 50 per cent. interest in it.

Railroad inquiries for steel products show an improvement, according to reports in local trade circles. The United States Steel Corporation is said to have received orders for 13,000 tons of tie plates from various roads. It is estimated that the Florida extension of the Seaboard Air Line will require from 20,000 to 25,000 tons of steel rails.

Demand for structural steel also continues active. The Bethlehem Steel Corporation has received a 17,000 ton contract for subways in Philadelphia, and small contracts ranging from a few hundred to 5,000 tons have been received by Bethlehem from the McClintic-Marshall Company.

POTTER PLAN FIGHT STIRS RAILROADERS

HUGHES GOING WEST SOON

Counsel for St. Paul to Be Opposed by Able Lawyers for Roads Who Oppose Earnings Pool.

Charles Evans Hughes, who has been retained by the receivers of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway to represent them in presenting the Potter plan at the Western rate hearing of the Interstate Commerce Commission, will attend the annual meeting of the American Bar Association in Detroit next week, and go directly from there to the Chicago hearing.

Mr. Hughes, who is President of the Bar Association, will be the chief advocate at the rate hearing of a plan conceived by Mark W. Potter, one of the St. Paul receivers, for pooling an increase in rates in Western territory and dividing it among the weaker lines in proportion to the amount they fall short of earning the fair return of 5¾ per cent. set by the Transportation act of 1920. This means that the prosperous roads, while receiving a portion of the revenues accruing to an increase in rates, would be required to turn over the majority of the earnings thus obtained to lines in the Northwest suffering from conditions peculiar to the territory which prevent them from earning a fair return on property value.

If this principle is adopted by the Commerce Commission it would so augment the present revenues of the bankrupt St. Paul that it would be possible to lift the receivership and pay not only the fixed charges on the road's obligations, but stock dividends. Common stock selling around 8 and preferred stock selling around 15 would rapidly approach par. It is consequently of the utmost importance to the security holders of the railroad, who at present market values have lost more than a half billion dollars through the failure of the road to meet its obligations. The receivers therefore feel that they are representing the best interest of the stock and bond holders in employing Mr. Hughes to present the case.

On the other hand, the principle of pooling revenues in the manner suggested by Mr. Potter has met almost unanimous opposition from Wall Street financiers, who contend that it is a Soviet theory which would undermine the financial structure of the Western railroads, and the railroads of the whole country of applied nationally. They contend that both from the standpoint of theory and practical application, the idea is unsound. The Western railroads are also unanimous in opposing it, and have engaged some of the best legal talent in the West to match the argument of the former Secretary of State.

Mr. Hughes has declined to comment on the merits of the plan, presumably on the theory that it is unwise for an attorney to "try his cases out of court." In reply to attacks, however, that the plan was illegal, in violating the provisions of the Transportation act, the St. Paul Railroad issued a statement that Mr. Hughes vouched for its legality.

It is understood that if the plan is adopted and proves successful in remedying the Western situation, it would be applied to all of the country's carriers. This would make receiverships a thing of the past, as each railroad would be insured sufficient to pay its fixed charges regardless of the traffic received. It would result in a readjustment of the values of railroad securities involving billions of dollars.

For this reason, interest in the financial district in the future of the plan is running high, and many Eastern financiers and railroad men are making plans to attend the hearing, which will open in Chicago on Sept. 8 at the Edgewater Beach Hotel.

OPPOSES ST. PAUL PLAN.

Committee Representing Massachusetts Savings Banks Protests.

A committee, comprising Robert D. Brewer of the Provident Institution for Savings and Charles A. Collins of the Lynn Institution for Savings, acting for a large number of Massachusetts savings banks in the matter of the St. Paul reorganization, issued a statement yesterday in opposition to the plan. In a letter to New England holders of St. Paul stocks and bonds Mr. Collins said:

"Roosevelt & Son have asked me to get in touch with certain New England holders of Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul securities. Robert D. Brewer and I have been authorized by something more than 100 of the Massachusetts savings banks to act for them concerning their holdings.

"We are unalterably opposed to the present reorganization plan. We believe chances are most favorable for a readjustment of the rate structure in the Northwest as a result of the hearings of the Interstate Commerce Commission next month, and if so we are quite sure that different and better plans of reorganization will be submitted."

Reports also showed 17,770 surplus stock cars, a decrease of 227 from the number reported on Aug. 7, while surplus refrigerator cars totaled 12,635, a decrease of 834 cars.

OIL PRICES ARE CUT BY MORE COMPANIES

SINCLAIR AND GULF FOLLOW

Standard of Louisiana Lowers Rate and Humble Puts Gasoline Down 2 Cents.

The Prairie Oil and Gas Company, the largest purchaser of crude oil in the mid-continent territory, announced a general reduction of twenty-five cents a barrel on all grades of crude oil produced in Oklahoma, Kansas and North Texas yesterday. The reduction was immediately met by the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company and the Gulf Oil Corporation. This reduction by Prairie and Sinclair has been expected in the trade for some time, in view of the general reductions in gasoline and crude oil prices in other sections of the country. Surprise had been expressed that the cut had not been announced sooner.

The Humble Oil & Refining Co., a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey, the Magnolia Petroleum Company, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New York, and the Texas Company previously announced reductions in mid-continent crude oil prices, but the latter organizations are not as large a factor in the Middle West as the Prairie and Sinclair organizations. Under the new schedule of prices, Prairie's quotations on low grades are lower than the prices quoted by other countries, but its price on higher grade crudes is higher than competitive companies.

Prairie Oil and Gas' new schedule as a result of the general reduction of twenty-five cents a barrel follows:

29-29.9 gravity	$1.23	38-38.9 gravity	$1.95
30-30.9 gravity	$1.31	39-39.9 gravity	$2.03
31-31.9 gravity	$1.39	40-40.9 gravity	$2.11
32-32.9 gravity	$1.47	41-41.9 gravity	$2.19
33-33.9 gravity	$1.55	42-42.9 gravity	$2.27
34-34.9 gravity	$1.63	43-43.9 gravity	$2.35
35-35.9 gravity	$1.71	44 gravity and above	$2.43
36-36.9 gravity	$1.79

The Standard Oil Company of Louisiana announced yesterday a reduction of 25 cents a barrel in all grades of Arkansas and Louisiana crude oils, except Smackover, Bellevue and Cotton Valley crudes.

The Humble Oil and Refining Company announced yesterday a reduction of 2 cents a gallon in the price of gasoline at the sixty points in Texas where the company operates. It was said that this reduction was not due to any price war, but was merely to bring the price of gasoline in line with quotations reported in other sections of the country. The Gulf Oil Company, which also operates in the same territory, met the reduction.

NEW TOBACCO CROP BETTER FOR CIGARS

Philadelphia Manufacturer Says Quality of Cheaper Grades Will Improve.

Harry S. Rothschild, Chairman of the board of Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., Inc., will sail tomorrow for South America for a trip of investigation of the tobacco fields there and of trade possibilities in South America. Mr. Rothschild expressed the opinion yesterday that the cigar industry, as well as the tobacco industry in general, had recorded a considerable rebound in the last two or three months and that from present indications the industry had entirely turned the corner.

"The new crop now being harvested is the best for cigar leaf tobacco in many years," he declared. "Probably it will be one of the best ever harvested. In comparison with recent former years the price is low. The cigars to be made in the immediate future will be better in quality than they have been and a very considerable improvement in quality may be anticipated, especially in the five and ten cent grades. The cigar industry has had a very difficult experience since 1920, which was the peak year. First it was the terrific competition of cigarettes, coupled with the depressed conditions which prevailed in many lines of industry, as well as the high revenues demanded by the Government on cigars.

"These conditions are gradually but surely righting themselves. In the first place, machines are eliminating the old-time cigarmakers. The business as a whole is now more legitimate and more properly commercialized than it has ever been. The trend is toward lower-priced cigars and the popular demand is for better quality in this class of goods. Cigar manufacturers as well as tobacco growers bid fair to have the best year in 1925 of any recent one."

SIMON OPTIMISTIC ON TRADE

But Says Style, Not Cheap Prices, Should Influence Garment Men.

Franklin Simon, of Franklin Simon & Co., and President of the National Garment Retailers' Association, who will sail today for Europe on the Olympic, declared yesterday that the outlook for business during the Fall and Winter was exceedingly bright. Mr. Simon will visit England, France, Austria and Switzerland, returning home about the middle of November.

"In the interest of both branches of the trade I cannot urge too strongly that both manufacturer and retailer pay more attention this Fall to style than during the last few seasons," he said. "Price has been the compelling influence recently, especially during the past season until now the industry has got to a stage where it is most difficult to get anything new or stylish. Price influences nearly every transaction. Low price dresses dominate the announcements of the manufacturers, and many retailers have been so affected by these price appeals that they have become unmindful of the requirements of their customers in the mad scramble to get something cheap. As a result those women who want to be stylishly attired, in many cases are returning in large numbers to the private tailor and dressmaker with a corresponding increase in the sale of yard goods.

"Eventually, if the price scramble continues, the manufacturing interests will be centred in the hands of a few men with capital enough to operate on a large scale and through tremendous volume, cutting prices so that those with small capital cannot exist. The only thing that will prevent such consolidations or creations of large and powerful institutions such as we see in other industries—the automobile industry, to cite one case—is the style influence."

Trading in Maytag Begins on Curb.

Trading was inaugurated in the capital stock of the Maytag Company on the New York Curb Market yesterday on a "when, as and if issued" basis.

Florida & Western Northern, 204 Miles Long, Built and Put in Operation in Nine Months.

Record time in the building of a railroad marked the completion of the Florida & Western Northern, which is operated by the Seaboard Air Line. This new line, which is approximately 204 miles long, was built and put in operation in approximately nine months. It opens new territory for development in Florida and provides a short line across the State from Tampa on the West Coast to West Palm Beach on the East Coast.

In order to complete the line in the short time that was desired it was necessary to utilize mechanical equipment wherever it was possible and practicable. Much of this equipment was worked twenty-four hours a day, this being particularly true of the rail laying, where averages of two miles of track laid each twenty-four hours were regularly accomplished.

The grading was handled in a variety of ways. In some sections the work was contracted out to negro labor on a basis peculiar to the South. Provided with rations, a shovel, a wheelbarrow and a board to run it on, and assigned to one or more "stations," the Southern negro would build a hut and live, eat and sleep on the job, working in the cool hours of the day and on moonlight nights until the contract was completed. Much of the grading was done in this way.

On the prairie, where the land was fairly firm and level and filling not in excess of three feet, a grader with a twelve-foot blade was employed.

Track laying was started from five different points, and in four of these operations track-laying machines were used. The actual laying of the track created a great deal of rivalry between the different gangs. Along toward the end of the work the enthusiasm and interest of the men resulted in some record work, one gang laying 8,317 feet of track in one work day, followed closely by another gang with 8,300 feet.

LAND BANK MEN TO MEET.

Will Discuss Plan to Further Cut Interest on Loans to Farmers.

Delegates from fifty-six Joint Stock Land Banks will attend the seventh annual convention of the Joint Stock Land Bank Association in Colorado Springs, Col., Sept. 1 to 3. The most important subject to be discussed will be the consideration of ways and means to reduce the interest rate on loans to farmers. This rate has been reduced to 6 per cent. in recent years, and the association now aims to bring about a further reduction to 5½ per cent. and eventually to 5 per cent.

On Aug. 1, the latest date for which official figures are available, the Joint Stock Land Banks had outstanding net loans of $508,000,000 secured by farm properties. This represented an increase of $62,000,000 since Dec. 31. It is expected that about $75,000,000 of Joint Stock Land Bank bonds will be sold in the remaining four months of 1925. It is also possible that the Joint Stock Land Banks will float an additional $30,000,000 of bonds for refunding purposes.

RUBBER PRICES GO UP.

Firmer Tone In the Market With Demand Increasing.

A firmer tone prevailed in the local crude rubber market yesterday. Due to increased demand, prices of the leading grades advanced from one to four cents a pound for spot delivery, while futures also were firmer. There was an absence of heavy buying for both spot and future delivery, but rubber brokers reported a steady demand sufficient to bring about higher quotations. Spot rubber advanced two cents a pound to 88 cents.

Following are the spot and future prices for the more important products:

MEXICO TO PAY DEBT TO INVESTORS HERE

Will Start on Sept. 1 to Liquidate $500,000,000 National Burden, Envoy Says.

OWES MOST TO AMERICANS

New Fiscal Policy Made Possible by Creation of New Bank, Consul General Announces.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Aug. 27 (AP).—Mexico will begin paying her $500,000,000 national debt, owed chiefly to the United States, about Sept. 1, A. M. Elias, Consul General for Mexico at New York and financial agent for that Government, said here today.

Señor Elias, who is a brother of President Calles, also said that Mexico had discharged her domestic debts on Aug. 13, when 20,000,000 pesos were paid to private institutions of that country.

Señor Elias, who was on his way from New York to San Francisco on a special mission for his Government, announced a change of plans, saying he had been ordered to proceed to Mexico City to aid in arranging the debt payments.

"The payment of our foreign debt of $500,000,000, which is owed chiefly to the United States, will be made possible through the establishment of the New Bank of Mexico, which will function soon with a capital of $60,000,000," he explained.

"Economies and additional taxation have enabled us to make this handsome showing, which should have the reaction in the United States of demonstrating a new stabilization of currency and conditions in my country. The value of exports from the United States to Mexico has jumped nearly $10,000,000 in the past year, having reached a total of approximately $25,000,000."

Alberto Mascarones probably will head the new bank, Señor Elias said.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP).—None of the money owed by the Mexican Government in this country was borrowed from the United States Treasury. All of it is owed to private investors, and the loans were floated for the most part through the Morgan syndicate in New York.

New York bankers familiar with Mexican debt negotiations said yesterday that no official word had been received here regarding plans for the resumption of payments, but Señor Ellas's statement is in line with recent predictions that an arrangement would be made when the new bank of issue opens. This bank will begin functioning on Sept. 1.

Thomas W. Lamont, Chairman of the International Committee of Bankers on Mexico, which negotiated the Lamont-de la Huerta agreement on the Mexican debt, is now on a vacation on his Maine farm. Ever since Mexico suspended payments under the agreement bankers have expressed confidence that a settlement ultimately would be reached. Discussions have been going on in Mexico City regarding the debt, and Mexican officials announced recently that the Government desired some changes in the terms, segregating certain parts of the debt.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Recent Sharp Decline in Grain Products Halted—Metals Again Reactionary—Rubber Rallies.

The sharp reaction in wheat, corn, rye and oats recorded during the early days of the week was checked yesterday, as all grain products, with the exception of oats which advanced ½ cent a bushel, closed unchanged. The non-ferrous metals market, however, was again easy, both copper and tin being quoted lower. Crude rubber advanced three cents a pound.

Yesterday's closing wholesale cash prices for commodities, in the New York market unless otherwise noted, were:

Vote to End Belgian Metal Strike.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 27 (AP).—Metal workers, 30,000 of whom have been on strike for a month, today voted to resume work Monday under a compromise involving a smaller reduction in wages than the employers had proposed. It is estimated that the workers already have lost 50,000,000 francs in wages through their idleness. The strike of 50,000 men in the allied metal trades was also ended by the same compromise. Thirteen thousand employes of twenty-four blast furnaces at Charleroi remain out.

TRADE BUYING HALTS DECLINE IN COTTON

Prices Close Unchanged to Two Points Higher After Early Recession.

SOUTHERN SALES INCREASE

Foreign Markets Lower as Larger Marketing Offsets Poor Crop Prospects.

Though new low records were made in cotton again yesterday when all months sold below the 23c level, the steadily increasing volume of contracts taken by the trade finally arrested the decline and left final prices unchanged to a two-point advance. At one time, quotations showed a loss of 15 points, or a decline of about a cent, from best figures of Monday immediately following the Government report.

During the morning, hedging operations proved a depressing factor but later the trade bought more than the South sold and covering near the close furnished highest quotations of the day. Spot sales at Southern markets jumped to 38,000 bales at unchanged quotations for the most part though both Memphis and Dallas cut prices quarter of a cent.

In Texas, eighteen stations reported moisture ranging from light showers to an inch and a half at two points in the Western part of the State. Seven stations in the belt reported 100 degrees or over, three of them being in Mississippi. Outside of Texas, virtually no precipitation occurred in any region of the South and power companies in North Carolina report the water supply now the lowest in thirty-five years.

Though the regular Wednesday account of progress of the growing crop had been the least satisfactory in some weeks, more rapid marketing of actual cotton in the South served to counteract its influence in foreign circles yesterday. This caused a decline of 10 to 14 English points in Liverpool and made a full response to the loss on this side late Wednesday. Under the combined pressure of hedge and speculative selling soon after the local opening, all trade demand on a basis of 23c for the December position was supplied and that month sold below 22.90 during the session. At one time, every month on the list changed hands below 23c when several thousand bales of May wanted at 23c were supplied and that month touched 22.08. Various houses with trade connections bought heavily and price fixing by mills in the October position reached a scale that lessened the October discount to 21 points under December. Throughout the first hour, spot interests did considerable hedging, and the quantity of contracts for sale furnished cotton for covering and trade purposes within limits of a dollar a bale. Throughout the day, demand virtually offset offerings, giving more resistence to the market than proved the case Wednesday and covering the last hour not only wiped out the early loss but carried quotations above previous closing levels.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous Day.
Oct.	22.78	22.85	22.65	22.79@22.81	22.79

Get Alcohol in Buffalo Worth $20,000

BUFFALO, Aug. 27 (AP).—Federal prohibition agents today seized a carload of grain alcohol which had been billed as lubricating oil in the Ohio Street freight yards. It was in thirty-nine drums and was valued at $20,000. Angelo Bastola, alleged owner, was committed to jail in default of $5,000 bail. Two men who were helping unload the car when surprised were given bail. The liquor was shipped from the K. H. Mollivar Corporation of Philadelphia to the K. H. Mollivar Corporation of Buffalo.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Brazilian Milreis at New High Record—Scandinavian Currencies Gain—Sterling Easier.

Heavy buying in London before the New York market opened caused an advance in Danish and Norwegian kroner to new high records. This movement and a fresh advance in Brazilian milreis furnished the major activity in the foreign exchange market. Profit-taking sales of kroner caused a reaction from the high levels reached early in the day, but a major portion of the gains was maintained, Danish closing at 24.56, a net advance of 23 points, and Norwegian at 19.70, a net advance of 24 points. Most of the buying of the Scandinavian exchanges was reported to have come from European sources. The fresh advance in milreis was attributed to buying based on the improved economic and financial outlook in Brazil and also to movement of the new coffee crop, which is causing the purchase of milreis abroad. The milreis closed at 12.62, a gain of 7 points for the day, and the highest rate in four years. Sterling closed slightly lower, and there were moderate declines also in French, Italian and Belgian currencies.

CERTAIN-TEED BONDS WILL BE REDEEMED

Remainder of Issue, Amounting to $7,760,000, to Be Called In on Nov. 1.

The Certain-teed Products Corporation announced yesterday that the remainder of the issue of its 6½ per cent. first mortgage serial gold bonds, amounting to $7,760,000, will be called for redemption as of Nov. 1. Notice of the redemption will be filed with the trustee on Sept. 1 and the necessary steps will be taken then for calling the bonds and cancelling the mortgage. This issue, amounting to $8,000,000, was put out May 1, 1923, in connection with the acquisition of the properties of Cook's Linoleum Company, Standard Inlaid Manufacturing Company and the Acme Cement Plaster Company.

With the elimination of the principal and interest charges, amounting approximately to $760,000 annually, the position of the company is substantially improved. There are 44,900 shares of the first preferred and 26,750 shares of the second preferred stock now outstanding, requiring an annual dividend charge of $361,550, the remainder of all earnings being available for common stock. The first and second preferred stocks have an unbroken record of dividend payments since the corporation was formed, and with the bonds retired they will henceforth have first claim on earnings.

It was announced also that at the next meeting of the directors, William T. Graham, for years identified with the American Can Company and other large concerns, and Harry W. Croft, President of the Harbison-Walker Company and a director of the Koppers Company of Pittsburgh, will be elected directors of the Certain-teed Corporation. It is understood that these interests have acquired substantial holdings in the corporation.

RESERVE BANK POSITION.

Comparison of the Week's Items With Those of Preceding Periods.

Yesterday's statement for the twelve Reserve Banks showed gold holdings to be at the lowest figure of the present year to date, and bills discounted secured by Government collateral to be at the highest. No other items in the return reached the highest or lowest point of 1925.

The following table shows the highest and lowest points reached thus far in 1925, and in a series of years past, by the important items in the Reserve Bank statements. Figures are in thousands of dollars:

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—4 per cent. for the best names. Wednesday—4 per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Good Demand for Men's Ties.

Buying of men's neckwear continues active, with the bold figured effects and eccentric patterns receiving most attention. A good holiday season on these is looked for. The demand for purple neckties from the consumer is now beginning to be felt, and difficulties are being encountered in making adequate deliveries. This fad, however, is looked upon as a brief one, especially since purple is not a desirable shade for men's purposes, owing to the fact that it is only suitable for light complexions. The demand for red shades is expected to be strong during the Fall.

Look for Greater Activity.

A small but steady volume of business is reported by leading factors in the local cotton goods trade. This is held likely to continue over the next ten days, but after Labor Day the trade looks for immediate delivery orders to take a considerable spurt. Many jobbers are expected to be in the market about that time to further cover their needs for the Fall season, it being generally agreed that there is much replenishing to be done. It is also pointed out that about the middle or latter part of next month there will be a more definite knowledge available of the size of the year's cotton crop. If this is the case there will be a greater feeling of confidence on the part of mills, selling agents and jobbers which should lead to more satisfactory operations. There will also be the stimulation of the openings of new lines of ginghams and napped goods.

Ostrich Feathers for Hats.

The revival of the big hat for women is said to have had a stimulating effect on the sales of ostrich feathers, which will be used extensively this Fall. The big hat is expected to require ostrich feathers of the uncurled type, while smaller hats will be trimmed with the clipped variety. Long trailing sprays of feathers, twelve to fourteen inches in length, are also being shown on latest Parisian models. A novel use of ostrich feathers, which is expected to take with the flapper element and possibly with older women, is upon the small gamin head of kidskin which is sewed to the hat. Here the feathers play the rôle of hair upon the heads of resemblances of grotesque faces of small boys. It is expected that this Parisian idea will be adapted so that the faces of pretty girls will be used instead of grotesques.

Trimming Furs Hard to Get.

Although cloak and suit manufacturers report satisfactory reordering by retailers, prompt shipment of these orders is being hindered by difficulty in obtaining furs, for which there is an active demand. Prices of furs are said to have risen 20 per cent. on the average in recent weeks, but this advance has not served to bring out stocks to the desired extent. Furs in most demand for the higher priced coats have been of the light colored variety, while for the cheaper garments all types are wanted, but particularly such pelts as mandels and French conies.

Silk Handkerchiefs Called For.

Women's silk handkerchiefs continue in active demand for the Fall, but the call for the georgette variety has now been replaced by the popularity of chiffons, while the crepe de chine type continues to sell well. The chiffon handkerchiefs are desired with hemstitched borders rather than with hand-rolled hems, since the heavier weight of the former drapes the handkerchief more attractively. Men's silk handkerchiefs continue to be favored in the bright colors and distinctive patterns. The character of the demand seems to indicate a desire for color blend with the necktie, but the patterns do not have to be alike, as was the case in tie and handkerchief sets sold during the Spring season.

New Type of Doll.

A new baby doll, which fulfills the child's desire for an action doll that can be cuddled, is now being offered by a local manufacturer. The feature of the toy is the hand-clapping effect, which is automatically produced by a slight pressure on the chest, while at the same time a crying noise is produced. In this way two characteristic actions of the infant are utilized. The doll comes fully dressed, with hand-painted or moving eyes, and is to retail at from $2.25 to $5. Buying of dolls, while later than usual, has been quite satisfactory in volume recently.

Silk Hosiery Prices to Hold.

While there has been much talk about the possibility of advances in prices on women's full-fashioned silk hosiery for next year, the best opinion in the local market is that quotations for deliveries covering the first half of 1926 will be unchanged on lines going to the jobbing trade. It is well recognized, according to the special news letter of the National Association of Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturers, that the exceptionally strong market position of full-fashioned silk goods this year has been due to the price stability insisted upon by manufacturers. To put a price advance into effect, although justified by supply and demand, would not be a good thing for the business in the long run, in the opinion of many in the trade. Aside from this is the belief that a decline in raw silk prices is likely to develop before the end of this year.

Lightweight Underwear Orders.

While the buying of women's lightweight underwear has not been heavy, the total business placed is credited with being considerably in excess of last year at this time. This is largely due to the good clearing of jobbing stocks during the Spring and the fact that many jobbers were caught short of stocks at the height of that season. The trade regards the outlook for lightweights generally as fairly good. Balbriggans are not counted upon to be particularly prominent, though there may be a substantial improvement in duplicate business in the new lines of rayon-striped merchandise. Meanwhile, the position of heavyweight underwear of all varieties, but particularly men's goods, continues very strong. It is held that there is an excellent chance of a situation developing in which the tardy jobber will not be able to cover his requirements.

Gray Goods Continued Quiet.

Trading in gray goods yesterday was again on a limited scale, with raw cotton holding to about the same levels as on the day before. It was noticeable, however, that there was a slightly greater interest in printcloths for September and October delivery. In the business done were sales of 38½-inch 60-68s, at 9⅜ cents for September, and 9¼ cents for October-November deliveries. For 39-inch 68-72s, 10¼ cents was paid for spot goods and 10⅛ cents for later delivery. The ruling prices on 38½-inch 60-48s and 7.15s were 8⅝ cents and 7¼ cents, respectively for spot lots in both instances. The 39-inch 80-square construction sold at 12⅜ cents for quick goods. Sheetings were slow. Sales were made of 36-inch 6.15s at 6⅜ cents, and of 5.50s at 7⅜ cents. Little of interest developed in drills, pajama checks or sateens.

Jade Used for Dress Ornaments.

Advices to the local jewelry trade from Paris indicate a notable vogue abroad for jade ornaments for formal wear. Among these are long-shaped barrettes, which have an oval piece of jade set in a corolla of leaves. They are diamond studded, in a gold mounting, and are very popular as ornaments for the hair. Corsage ornaments, several inches long and rather narrow, are also made of jade. These decorations are quite expensive, being set in gold encrusted with diamonds. Another item for costume wear is rectangle of jade, set within two circles of black onyx, studded with occasional diamonds.

WESTCHESTER BUS PLAN IS UNDER WAY

Suggestions as to Routes Asked From Village Governments of the County.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 27.—The first step toward the organization of a county-wide bus system by the financial interests controlling the New York, Westchester & Boston Railroad Company has been taken by Everitt S. Miller, President of that road, in letters to town and village governments of various municipalities in the central part of the county in which he asks for suggestions as to tentative routes.

Such letters have been sent to Rye, Harrison, Mamaroneck and Larchmont, which have been asked by Mr. Miller to appoint committees to confer with the bus line heads as to the procedure advisable in securing a permit to operate in and through their municipalities.

Ralph A. Gamble, assistant village attorney of Larchmont, informed the Board of Trustees of Larchmont that Mr. Miller had declared that within ninety days after the bus lines were in operation trolley lines controlled by the interests that operate the buses would cease to function.

Mr. Miller is planning a meeting to be held next month at which representatives of the new bus company, which is in process of organization, and representatives of the localities through which the buses will operate are to confer. No date has been set for this meeting. This depending upon the response from these places to Mr. Miller's letters of inquiry.

Bids for twenty-six buses of the latest type have been asked for by the new company and according to announcements from Mr. Miller's office a million-dollar organization is planned to supply feeder lines which will connect with the trains of the New York, Westchester & Boston Railroad Company.

The railroad runs trains from the Harlem River yards to Larchmont and to White Plains, and is already at work upon an extension of its Larchmont line to Mamaroneck, where a temporary terminus will be located until the line is eventually run through to Port Chester.

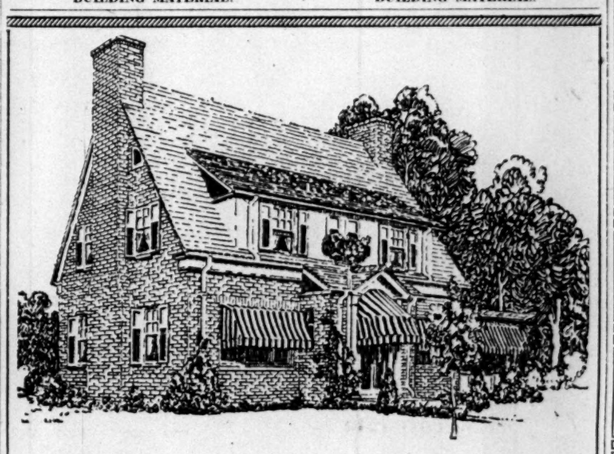
BUILDING MATERIAL.



QUALITY and ECONOMY
Although many of America's finest country houses are built of brick—this everlasting building material is equally well adapted to the modest dwelling—to which it gives that substantial homelike quality which spells permanent satisfaction.
Common brick is synonymous with Quality. It is burned at a temperature of 2,000° Fahrenheit for from three to five days, and that is why it is fire-safe and practically imperishable, making the ideal building material for the home. No wonder more people each year

already have been bought in Hudson View Gardens

THE location is the loveliest in all Manhattan; 300 feet above the Hudson on historic Fort Washington heights. The setting is as charming as nature and landscape gardening can make it. The architecture is the quaint old Tudor, with its delightful casement windows.

Each apartment has oak parquet floors (in the kitchen tiled linoleum) a door-bed compartment for guests, and is completely fitted with modern devices such as dish-washing machines, automatic refrigeration to make housekeeping easy.

Some Choice 3-4-5 Room Apartments Still Available

$4300-$9100 for Equity—Elevator & Non-Elevator

MONTHLY MAINTENANCE EXPENSE FROM $40 to $85

Each person in search of a REAL HOME who has visited Hudson View Gardens has wished that he might live there, ALL the apartments would now be taken; were they for rent. Buying a Home requires a little capital. Not much; a moderate payment down is acceptable. And we make every effort to meet the financial requirements of desirable purchasers.

When you have taken an apartment the balance of the purchase price may be paid out of your income in monthly instalments. Your total outlay at first will be about as much as the usual rent of apartments elsewhere. But only half of the amount will be Expense; the other half will be an INVESTMENT toward the purchase of your home. Soon your monthly outlay will be cut in half.

100% Cooperative Ownership Cuts the Cost of Living

It is much less costly to maintain one central plant serving many homes than a separate plant for each. The home owners in Hudson View Gardens own the whole property. Each pays his share of maintenance and general repairs, earns a landlord's profit and benefits by increased values. And he enjoys the same advantages of owning his own home just as absolutely as though it were a detached house in a suburb from which he had to commute every day.

NEW SOCIAL CREED URGED FOR AMERICA

Proposals Embodying Liberal Modern Thought Drafted by Churchmen.

DISCUSSION IS INVITED

Congregational Commission Hopes to Supplant the 1908 Symposium of Federal Council.

A social creed, which embodies some of the most liberal thought of the present day with regard to labor, private ownership, income, education and the rights of free speech and a free press, will be proposed at the twenty-first regular meeting of the National Council of Congregational Churches in Washington Oct. 20 to 28.

The proposals will be made in a report framed by the Social Service Commission. They will be presented not in the hope that all of them will be adopted, but to provoke discussion and suggestions which may lead to the adoption of a social creed by the council. On the commission were many nationally known figures, including Miss Jane Addams, William Allen White, Professor Walter Burr of Kansas, Professor Jerome Davis of Yale and several clergymen. John Calder of Boston will present the report.

Among the thirty-five proposals of the commission are the following:

That the Church no longer support war in any form.

That group interests must always be subordinated to the welfare of the nation as a whole.

That in industry and economic relations, recognition that the unlimited right of private ownership is unchristian.

Conciliation and arbitration in industrial disputes with adequate means for the same.

A frank abandonment of all efforts to secure unearned income; that is, reward which does not come from a real service.

Recognition of the right of labor to a fair share in management.

The farmer shall have access to the land he works on such terms as will insure him personal freedom and economic encouragement, while society is amply protected by efficient production and conservation of fertility, and that the cost of market distribution from farmer to consumer shall be cut to the lowest possible terms, both farmers and consumers sharing in these economies.

That in education there should be the building of a social order in which every child has the best opportunity for development and the conservation of health, including instruction in sex hygiene, abundant and wholesome recreation facilities, and education for leisure, including a nation-wide system of adult education.

Efficient rural organization along all lines.

That in racial relations there shall be the same protection and rights for other races in America as that we ourselves enjoy, especially legislation against lynching, and that racial discrimination shall be eliminated and full brotherly treatment for all races in America shall be substituted.

That in international relations there shall be the removal of every unjust barrier of trade, color, creed, and race, and the practice of equal justice for all nations. That the old methods of secret diplomacy and secret treaties are today unnecessary and un-Christian.

That the nations should associate themselves permanently for peace and the outlawry of war.

The commission believes that the proposed creed is superior to that adopted by the Federal Council of Churches in 1908, and recommends that the National Council of Congregational Churches suggest to the Federal Council of Churches that the draft be submitted to all denominations for criticism and discussion. It is hoped that then the Federal Council may adopt it with modifications.

JURIST CRITICIZES DARROW'S CONDUCT

Ohio Chief Justice Calls Lawyer's Emphasis on Evolution in Scopes Case Unethical.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 27 (AP).—The conduct of Clarence Darrow in the Scopes trial in Dayton, Tenn., was pointed to today by C. T. Marshall, Chief Justice of the Ohio Supreme Court, as "an example of the unethical practitioner," which should bring upon him the condemnation of all self-respecting members of the bench and bar."

The Chief Justice's criticism was made in an address to 200 law students sworn in as attorneys here.

"The law of that case was plain and simple," he said. "Neither the indictment nor the statute under which the indictment was framed contained any mention of evolution, neither did they in the remotest degree involve or necessarily provoke any discussion of the theory of evolution.

"The Tennessee statute provides that it shall be unlawful for any teacher in any of the public schools of the State to teach any theory that denied the story of the divine creation of man, or to teach that man has descended from a lower order of animals. That the forbidden doctrines were so taught was freely admitted by the defendant. No defense was therefore open except that of the constitutional validity of the law.

"And yet Darrow sought to browbeat and to bluff the Judge into admitting expert evidence upon the soundness of the theory of evolution."

Bishop Crane of Philadelphia Seeks to Enjoin Father Gentile.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 27.—The refusal of the Rev. Paul Gentile to relinquish his office as parish priest of the Church of Our Lady of Pompeii has resulted in injunction proceedings being brought against him by Bishop Michael J. Crane, Vicar General of the diocese of Philadelphia.

Father Gentile was appointed in May, 1914. On April 16 of this year, Cardinal Dougherty notified him that his services would not be required after Aug. 16.

The Cardinal appointed the Rev. Joseph Lanza, but when he presented his credentials Father Gentile refused to turn the parish over to him.

Faulty Target Delays Air Test.

Failure of the target towed by a Martin bombing plane of the Twentieth Bombardment Squadron to open all the way, as it was being towed past Fort Tilden yesterday, prevented officers of the Sixty-second Anti-Aircraft Artillery from giving the new .50-caliber Browning anti-aircraft guns a fair test. Several rounds were fired, but no hits were scored. The tests were postponed until today.

'The Father of Medicine'

Hippocrates, the "Father of Medicine," lived in a time when there were no such things as clinics and hospitals as we know them. He was compelled to go from home to home in his work of mercy.

At any one of the clinics, hospitals, homes and sanitariums maintained by the 91 affiliated charitable organizations of Federation treatment is accorded thousands, whereas the great Hippocrates treated only scores.

Styles which young men like are one of our long suits—

Young business men as well as young prep school and college men have their own ideas about clothes—that isn't accusing them of being freakish either—rather distinctive than jazzish.

Single breasted—

Double breasted—
Trousers comfortably wide—

For lifetime comfort and money value this new super-mattress is without any equal

Put this new Beautyrest mattress built of inner-springs and buoyant cotton, on your bed. You can enjoy its lasting sleep-luxury for less than one cent a night.

Not until you have actually slept on this super-mattress can you realize the deep, refreshing sleep which its wonderful comfort insures during its years of service.

676 small, sensitive springs, in separate fabric pockets give gentle, flexible support to your tired body. Thick layers of new felted cotton, top and bottom, form a buoyant cushion which cradles your body in the easiest and most restful position.

As the diagrams below indicate, your spinal column assumes the easy, natural position which Nature intended. Cradled in luxury, aching muscles and strained nerves relax their tension. Your sleep is sound. You awake refreshed, your body and brain recharged with energy.

Never has so fine an inner-spring mattress been offered at a price so low. The economies effected by huge production and improved methods in the world's largest bedding factories make possible the surprising low price of $39.50 for this amazing new mattress.

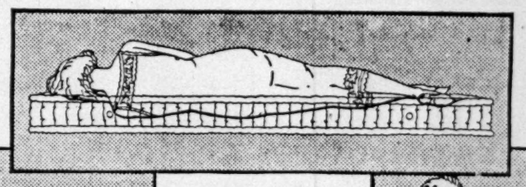
You cannot afford to deny yourself the vigor and vitality which sleeping on the Beautyrest will build. At $39.50, the Beautyrest sells for much less than the best hair mattresses—for less even than some of felted cotton. Yet its proved advantages are much greater than either.

See the Beautyrest at your regular merchant's. Compare it. See also the Simmons Ace—the finest open-box spring built, though it costs only $19.75. Then insure yourself years of sound, healthful sleep by putting both on your bed. The Simmons Company, 666 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

See how evenly the body is supported by the flexible coils. The spinal column is allowed to assume an easy, natural position. The resilient springs act independently, shaping the luxurious cushion to conform to every curve of your body.



Note how the weight of the body compresses the springs to varying heights, instead of making the body sag to meet the mattress. The supple support given by the Beautyrest allows relaxation of brain and body, inducing sound, restful, healthy sleep.

Fundamentalists vs. Modernists

More than 150 years ago Emanuel Swedenborg opened the internal sense of Genesis and Exodus, unlocked the book of Revelation, revealed the wonders of Heaven and Hell, the ways of Divine Providence, and the Marriage law that is in all creation.

He declared this a revelation—not from any angles of heaven, but directly from the Lord Jesus Christ—as the foundation of a New Age for the world.

Swedenborg printed his books in Latin, and deposited them in the libraries of the world.

A hundred years of study by scholars has left points for controversy as to the best translation.

The most modern translation is in the Rotch Edition, published by Houghton Mifflin & Co., in 32 volumes, of which 20 comprise the spiritual meaning of Genesis and Exodus.

Titles	Price
Heaven and Hell, from things heard and seen (466 pages)	$1.25
Angelic Wisdom Concerning Divine Providence (422 pages)	1.00
Marriage Love (650 pages)	2.00

Discount, if ordered together	1.25
Price of all three at one time, including postage	$3.00
